INTRODUCTION.

In presenting to the public the "Gazetteer and Business Directory of Crawford County," the publisher desires to return his sincere thanks to all who have so kindly aided him in obtaining the information it contains, and rendered it possible to present it in the brief space of time in which it is essential such works should be completed. Especially are our thanks due to the several editors of the papers published in the county, for the uniform kindness they have evinced in calling public attention to the author's efforts. Many have contributed essential aid in furnishing material for the work, and many others have kindly volunteered their assistance, to all of whom we tender our grateful acknowledgment.

The following works have been consulted in its preparation : Miss Laura G. Sanford's "History of Erie Co.;" "Report of the Public Schools, for 1872"; Gordon's "Gazetteer of Penn'a.;" "Life and Letters of Capt. John Brown," edited by R. D. Webb, London; "Lippencott's Pronouncing Biographical Dictionary"; "Zell's Descriptive Hand Atlas of the World"; "Arter's Crawford County Directory 1871-2"; and "Directory of Meadville and the Oil Regions, 1869-70."

That errors have occurred in so great a number of names and dates as are here given is probable; and that names have been omitted which should have been inserted is quite certain. We can only say that we have exercised more than ordinary diligence and care in this difficult and complicated feature of book making. Of such as feel aggrieved in consequence of errors or omissions we beg pardon, and ask the indulgence of the reader in marking such as have been observed in the subsequent reading of the proofs, and which are found in the Errata, following the Introduction.

It was designed to give a brief history of all the Church organizations in the county, but owing, in some cases, to the negligence of those who alone were able to give the necessary information, and in others, to the inability of any one to do so, we have been obliged to omit many or indefinitely delay the completion of the work.

Opium & Morphia Habit Cured! Send for Large Pamphlet. Agents Wanted. Ladies or Gentlemen. Address Dr. Ormes & Kellogg, 69 Main Street, Jamestown, N. Y.

We would suggest that our patrons observe and become familiar with the explanations at the commencement of the Directory. The names it embraces, and the information connected therewith, were obtained by actual canvass, and are as correct and reliable as the judgment of those from whom they were solicited render practicable. Each agent is furnished with a map of the township he is expected to canvass, and he is required to pass over every road, and call at every farm house and place of business in the township, in order to obtain the facts from the individuals concerned whenever possible.

The map of the county was engraved with great care by Weed, Parsons & Co., of Albany, and will, it is believed, prove a valuable acquisition to the work.

The Advertisers represent some of the leading business men and firms of this and other counties; and we most cheerfully commend them to the patronage of those under whose observation these pages may come.

While thanking our patrons and friends generally for the liberality and cordiality with which our efforts have been seconded, we take this occasion to express the hope that the information found in these pages will not prove devoid of interest and value, though we are fully conscious that the brief history of the county the scope of the work enables us to give is by no means an exhaustive one, and can only hope that it may prove a nucleus and incentive to future historians, who will be the better able to do full justice to the subject, and leave our work to secure that favor which earnest endeavor ever wins from a discriminating public.

The Titusville Herald, daily and weekly, is published by Bloas & Cogawell in the Herald Building, corner Franklin and Arch Sts. The Herald is recognized as one of the ablest newspapers in western Pennsylvania, and its corps of editors is sufficient to enable the serving of its patrons with all the news of the day and a variety of good literary matter. The Book and Job Department of the Herald is one of the largest in this section of the State. Being amply supplied with the latest styles of type, presses etc., and employing first-class "types" they are enabled to execute anything in the job printing line with neatness and dispatch. They have also a book bindery in the third story of their building. See card on page 308.

Dr. E. W. Smith, of Espyville, advertises on page 196 his valuable Verbena Bitters and Pulmonary Balsam, which for the ills enumerated have only to be tried to prove their specific value.

Kingsley & Son, manufacturers of carriages &c., at Spartansburgh, advertise on page 246. They are prompt and careful business men and using the best quality of materials, they are enabled to make superior work. They do all kinds of repairing neatly and with satisfaction. Their motto is "Good work pays best in the end," and they live up to it.

J. B. Pastorius, 76 Pine St., Titusville, manufactures gents' fine French calf boots, ladies', misses and children's boots, shoes and gaiters. Those in want of neat fitting boots, made in the best manner should remember the place. See card on page 182.

Chas. W. Benn, general Insurance Agent, publishes a card on page 246. It is no longer a question as to the desirability of life or fire insurance, and the only query is, which are the best companies in which to insure. Mr. Benn will take pleasure in satisfying you that he represents as good companies as there are.

ERRATA.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

Miss A. J. Dorand, Music Teacher Titusville, publishes a card on page 238. We take pleasure in assuring our readers that Miss D., is highly competent to instruct pupils in the musical art. She gives instruction on the piano, organ and guitar, and also teaches vocal music. She was formerly a resident of Utica, N. Y., and has taught music successfully in several cities of that State. Those seeking a thorough music teacher will consult their own interests by securing the services of Miss Dorand.

McCabe Bros., Furniture manufs. and dealers at Meadville, exhibit a nice sample of goods on page 164. They employ good workmen and do their work well and will sell at prices to suit customers. Call and see.

J. C. Goetchius, Photographer at Titusville, is prepared to take photographs in any known style and will give satisfaction every time. When you want life-like pictures give him a call. He advertises on upper margins of Directory.

The Titusville Courier is published daily and weekly by M. N. Allen, office in Odd Fellows' Block. The Courier is devoted to the interests of the Oil Region, and is the only Democratic Daily paper in north-western Pennsylvania, and has a large circulation. It supplies its patrons with all the telegraphic and local news at the earliest possible moment. As an advertising medium the Courier is to well known to require recommendation at our hands. See card on page 180.

Mrs. Mary C. A. Dickson, Meadville, publishes a card on page 164. She deals in Ladies' Dress Garments and is patentee of a Female Abdominal Supporter which for ease and efficacy is said to be unsurpassed. "Invalids who have been confined to their rooms for years, on using these Supporters, have in two days time been able to walk the streets with as much comfort and ease as when they were entirely free from disease."

*As it is inconvenient to give the decimal expressing the exact rate per cent. when the remaining fraction is less than one-half, we have made use of the section sign to indicate that the true rate per cent. is greater than that expressed; and when the remaining fraction is greater than one-half, one has been added to the integer, and the minus sign used to indicate that the true rate per cent. is less than the number by which it is expressed.

+To the total for the year 1860 is added 250, the population of Cochranston, which was organized as a borough prior to the erection of East Fairfield as a township.

The Auburn File Works, at Auburn, Cayuga Co., N. Y., have gained a wide and enviable reputation for the superior excellence of their hand-cut Files and Rasps, of which they turn out from 150 to 200 dozen per week. They employ a large force of the best mechanics to be found. Among the varieties turned out are all kinds of flat, hand, mill, round, half-round, square, three square, slotting, knife, pit saw and cabinet files and rasps, taper saw and extra horse rasps, from the best warranted English cast steel. Such is the reputation of these files that they are universally adopted throughout the manufacturing of Auburn, where they are considered superior to all others. We advise all mill owners, machinists and mechanics generally, who have not already become acquainted with their excellence, to do so the first opportunity. See card, page 180.

The Crawford Democrat steam job printing office, 79 Water St., Meadville, is a first-rate place to get done all kinds of job printing. Their facilities are such as to enable the execution of all orders with dispatch. See card on page 182.

Steele & Co., dealers in Groceries and Provisions at 101 Chestnut St., Meadville, advertise on page 166. They buy the best of goods in large quantities, and can and do sell as low as the lowest. Customers may be sure of fair dealing at this well established house.

Oakford & Hood, of Titusville, advertise on margins that they are the only Practical Hatters in the Oil Region, and they are consequently able to give you the latest styles in hats and caps, and at reasonable rates. When you are in want of a "tile" give them a call.

Meadville French Dyeing Establishment, A. H. Arnault, proprietor, advertises on page 166. Mr. A's experience in regard to colors and their application to fabrics is such that superior work is guaranteed. Scouring and renovating crapes, silks and wool is also done in the best manner. Mr. Arnault also deals in and exchanges furniture.

Mrs. A. E. Bennett's Photographic Rooms Meadville, is a first-rate place for those who desire to "see themselves as others see them." We recommend those who desire nice pictures at reasonable prices to give her a call. Card on page 180.

Chas. L. Stitzer, Lumber Manufacturer, near Meadville, advertises on colored page 352. Mr. S. will furnish all kinds of lumber, lath, fence pickets &c., and at very reasonable rates. He will also do custom sawing promptly. Those about to build will consult their own interests by purchasing the materials of Mr. Stitzer. His mill is located on road 64 (as given on map,) in township of Mead and his P. O. address is Meadville.

Burke, FitzSimons, Hone & Co., Importers, Jobbers and Retailers of Dry Goods, Fancy Goods and Woolens, Nos. 53, 54 and 57 Main St., and 1, 3, 5, 7 and 9 North St., Paul St., Rochester. This house was established in 1849, since which time its success has been uninterrupted, each year increasing its amount of business. Their annual sales amount to the enormous sum of nearly $2,500,000, their trade extending from the Eastern portions of the State to the "Far West." Occupying as they do fully 40,000 feet of flooring in actual business departments, every portion of which is crowded with immense piles of goods from foreign countries, as well as of domestic manufactures, render the facilities of this House for Jobbing equal to any in the country. The firm are also proprietors of the Elwell Manufacturing Co., where they manufacture $200,000 worth annually of Ladies' Underware, employing 500 hands. See advertisement on page 351.

Relief to the Afflicted.—Dr. B. Clark, of Washington Co., Pa., who has for many years labored zealously in the noble work of healing the sick, has made Chronic Diseases his especial study, and with such marked success, that thousands are ready to testify in his favor. From personal acquaintance, with the Doctor, and from the testimony of his patients, we deem it a pleasure to recommend him as a gentleman of ability, and one to be trusted by all who need the services of a kind and skillful physician. We hope the people of Crawford Co., who are suffering from chronic affections, or who have friends so troubled, may take the trouble to correspond with the Doctor. His advertisement may be found inside first cover.

The Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Woodcock, print an advertisement on colored page 353.

It seems to us that the plan of insurance adopted by this Company especially recommends itself to the farming community, and its success indicates that it is appreciated. No farmer can afford to remain uninsured, and the low rates of this Company remove all possible excuse for neglecting this duty.

The Meadville Theological School, publish a card on page 166. For particulars in regard to this worthy institution see pages 61 and 288.

H. J. Appleby, Plumber, Gas and Steam fitter, at Meadville, publishes a card on page 150. When you have anything to be done in this branch of business, call on Mr. Appleby, for he thoroughly understands his business and will insure you good satisfaction.

H. L. Nuse & Co., Jewelers, at 9 Franklin St., Titusville, keep constantly on hand first class silver and plated ware. They also sell the famous Elgin Watches, which are universally considered the most perfect time keepers. See card on page 150.

EXPLANATION.—Find the Year and observe the Letter above it; then look for the Month, and in a line with it find the Letter of the Year; above the Letter find the Day; and the figures on the left, in the same line, are the days of the same name in the month

Leap Years have two letters; the first is used till the end of February, the second during the remainder of the year.

To Victims of the Opium Habit.—We take pleasure in calling attention to Drs. ORMES & KELLOGG's advertisement of the great OPIUM CURE which has proved a complete success in curing hundreds of persons suffering from this dreadful habit; and every person suffering from the use of Opium or Morphine should send for the Doctors' large Pamphlet, containing full particulars for a cure, by Dr. Kellogg, of Jamestown, N. Y. Advertisement on margins of index pages.

The Crawford Journal, published by Hempstead & Co., at Meadville, is the oldest Republican newspaper in the county and its general appearance reflects credit on the publishers. Those of our readers who have not already subscribed we recommend to send for specimen copy, which will be mailed free. See card on page 164.

Crawford County Insurance Company.—This Mutual Fire Insurance Co. especially meets the wants of farmers and those who have light risks. Their low rates and complete success speak volumes for the mutual system. We say to the uninsured, or those about renewing, read particulars in regard to this Co. on page 20, and also their card on page 2, and then apply for a policy at the office No. 66 Chestnut Street, Meadville, and our word for it, you will have done a wise act.

Dr. Frank Comer, Dentist, at Titusville, Pa., whose card appears on page 196, is one of the most enterprising and pleasant young men it has ever been our pleasure to meet. His, the oldest established dental office in the Oil Region, is one of the most elegantly furnished and fitted of any in the State, outside of Philadelphia, while from the favorable remarks concerning him which we have heard expressed, we could form only the opinion, that he must certainly be the leading dentist in this part of the county.

R. Ed. Ashley, dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils &c., at Little Cooley, will furnish his customers with anything usually found at a well ordered drug store, pure wines and liquors, books, stationery &c., &c. Mr. Ashley is also a Conveyancer and Insurance Agent for reliable Companies, and will attend to all business of this character intrusted to him with promptness and satisfaction. See card on page 134.

W. D. Sackett, of Meadville, prints a card on page 134, in which he informs the public that he deals in lumber, flooring, siding, shingles, lath, doors, blinds &c. We advise those who are about to build to give him a call.

Wm. L. Perry is a dealer in Boots and Shoes, at Cambridgeboro. The unpleasantness, illustrated on page 150, was rectified by the stranger following the advice of the gentleman.

Waldie Bros., Florists at Titusville, are prepared to furnish a choice and large variety of flowering and ornamental plants and shrubs. They also make to order bouquets, wreaths, crosses &c., and will supply promptly all orders by mail or express. Send for Catalogue, and beautify your homes by making a selection therefrom. Card on page 246.

R. Bard, Dealer in Hats, Caps, Furs, Gents' Furnishing Goods, at Meadville, publishes a card on Page 292. Anything in his line, M. B. will be happy to furnish at very reasonable prices. Remember the place, 53 Chestnut St.

Miss. Mary Masson, Milliner.—We take pleasure in calling the attention of the Ladies of Meadville and the surrounding towns, to Miss Mary Masson's card, which we print on page 292. She keeps a choice and well selected assortment of Millinery and Fancy Goods, and is prepared to supply the Ladies with anything they wish for in her line of business, at prices that cannot fail to give satisfaction. Remember her place of business, No. 8 Arch Street, and give her a liberal patronage.

H. S. & F. W. Huldekoper, proprietors of Meadville Woolen Mills. This firm manufacture the best quality of Cassimeres, Flannels, Blankets, Shawls &c., at low prices, and offer special inducements to the trade. Card on page 292.

A. P. Townsend, Carriage maker and Blacksmith, at Conneautville, makes Carriages, Wagons and Sleighs of all descriptions. He employs none but good workmen, uses the best of material, and his patrons can rely on work done at his shop. Carriage, sign and ornamental painting is executed in the most approved manner with dispatch. See card on page 350.

Z. A. Hoffmann, manufacturer of Umbrellas and Parasols, at Meadville, is prepared to execute all work in his line in the best manner. His charges are moderate, and those in need of a protector from the storm or heat of the sun, should give him a call. See card on page 19.

Mrs. C. T. Canfield, M. D., is a graduate of Cleveland O. Homeopathic hospital and college, and the experience she has had coupled with her success, warrants us in highly recommending her to the afflicted. The intelligent method of treatment together with her lady-like bearing, will no doubt ensure Mrs B. a large practice. Card on page 196.

Raymond & Stem, dealers in Wall Paper, Window Shades, House Trimmings &c., at Meadville. Messrs. R. & S. do a large wholesale and retail business and when in want of goods in their line, you should certainly give them a call and examine their extensive stock. They are fair dealing gentlemen and will be pleased to show goods and secure your patronage. See card on page 350.

Dunn & Owens, Photographers at Meadville, publish a card on page 310. Having had many years experience, they fully understand the art of catching life-like pictures from A. to Z. Their rooms are centrally and pleasantly located, and fitted up with good sky and side lights, and with the best class of instruments, they are prepared to copy or enlarge pictures and finish them up in any known style. Give them a call; there is no better place.

G. A. Fullerton, manufacturer of Top Buggies, Wagons &c., at Woodcockboro, publishes a card on page 18. Mr. F. understands his business and will do justice to all who favor him with their patronage. Repairing and blacksmithing done neatly and in a satisfactory manner. Call and test his work.

Harris & Bro., dealers in Dry Goods, at Roberts' New Block, Spring St. Titusville, are among the largest dealers in western Pennsylvania. Their mammoth store is at all times filled to overflowing with foreign and domestic dry goods of all styles. Their facilities for purchasing stock is such as to enable them to supply retail customers at the lowest possible rates, a fact which thousands of their customers already know. Give them a call and be convinced. See card on colored page 1.

The Cambridge Index, published by D. P. Robbins, at Cambridgeboro, is a neat and well printed paper. Its literary and local columns are well conducted and make it a welcome visitor at the homes of its many subscribers. As an advertising medium, merchants in that locality appear to understand its value. Mr. Robbins is supplied with type suitable for executing neat job printing. See card on page 184.

E. L. Crumb, dealer in Family Groceries and Notions, at Cambridgeboro, prints a card on page 148, the cut in which represents the principle on which he transacts business, and as a consequence he is sure to prosper.

The Courier, published by J. E. & W. A. Rupert, at Conneautville, is advertised on page 238. This paper was established in 1847, and during a long series of years it has been a welcome visitor to many homes that would not willingly dispense with its weekly advent. It is just the paper for the farmer and general reader, and its large circulation makes it a first rate advertising medium. Its job department is capable of turning out superior work, at reasonable rates.

J. G. Burlingham, proprietor of Variety Hall Drug House, at Spartansburg, keeps on hand pure Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Fancy Articles and everything usually found at a good Drug Store. For quality of goods and low prices Mr. B. will not be surpassed. He is also Justice of the Peace, Land and Insurance agent. See card on page 246.

What are Crumbs of Comfort?

—Why, Crumb's Carbolic Ointment and Crumb's Carbolic Extract, two wonderful medicines prepared by the Niagara Pharmaceutical Co., at Westfield. It is an old saying that "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," and so it is with these medicines; for the proprietors have found them so valuable in allaying pain and curing disease, that they freely offer trial packages of the medicine gratuitously. They "cast their bread upon the waters," &c. Read the advertisement on page 148, and then secure some of the medicine, is the best advice we can give.

J. J. Davis, dealer in Anthracite and Bituminous Coal, at Meadville, advertises on page 148. When your supply of this needful article is low, remember the office and yard is corner of Poplar St. and Railroad.

J. H. Whalen, dealer in Boots and Shoes, at 72 Spring St., Titusville, advertises on page 18. Mr. W., is a practical man and makes as good work as can be made. Those desiring a neat fitting and serviceable boot or shoe can be accommodated at his store.

ADDENDA TO GAZETTEER OF MEADVILLE.

Crawford County Mutual Insurance Company.

At the time of the organization of this Company in 1840 but few facilities for insurance indemnity were afforded to the citizens of the County; and the great need of reliable protection being felt a few of the prominent citizens procured from the Legislature the Charter for the Company. The following being the incorporaters and first Board of Directors:—John Reynolds, David Dick, Eliphlet Betts, Norman Callender, Andrew Smith, Horace Cullum, John McFarland, Edward A. Reynolds and John P. Davis.

Mr. John Reynolds was the first President, and was continued as such (with the exception of two years,) till 1856, having served the Company 14 years in that capacity. Mr. Norman Callender discharged the duties of Secretary and Treasurer until 1861, a period of 21 years.

Hon. John Dick was president of the Company from 1860 till the time of his death in 1872, when the Hon. Henry C. Johnson was elected his successor and continues to hold the office.

The business of the Company is conducted on the purely mutual plan, and its unparalleled success has placed it in the front rank of Pennsylvania Insurance Companies, and has demonstrated the fact that properly conducted Mutual Insurance is not only the safest but by far the cheapest means of protection. From a small neighborhood affair the business has extended until at the present time the assets of the Company amount to over $325,000.00.

CRAWFORD COUNTY.

CRAWFORD COUNTY was formed from Allegheny, March 12, 1800, and provisionally embraced for judicial purposes, the present counties of Crawford, Erie, Mercer, Venango and Warren, with Meadville as the county seat. Erie was constituted a separate judicial district April 2, 1803; Venango, April 1, 1805; and Warren, March 16, 1819. This county contains thirty-four townships and covers an area of 594,076 square acres. It is situated on the west border of the State, being bounded on the north by Erie county, on the East by Warren and Venango counties, on the south by Venango and Mercer counties, and on the west by the State of Ohio. Its length is forty-one miles and its breadth, twenty-four. Its surface is undulating, and but little, if any, that is not tillable. The soil is generally of a good quality, better adapted to grazing than to grain raising. That in the western part is generally superior to that in the east. The soil in most of the valleys is very productive, and that of French Creek was sufficiently manifest at an early day, to attract the attention of Gen. Washington, who alluded to its fertility and extent in the notes kept of a visit made by him to Fort LeBoeuf, (now Waterford, Erie Co.,) in 1753. The cereals and other crops are cultivated to considerable extent, though dairying and stock raising are the chief sources of wealth and profit to the agriculturist. There are not less than thirty-three cheese factories in the county at the present time, (1873) and the number is being rapidly increased. It is well watered and was formerly well timbered, though much of the latter has been cut and sent to market. Large quantities of timber still remain to supply the numerous saw mills in the county.

The census for 1870 shows that this county stood first in the State in the number of farms, none of which exceeded 500 acres; that it had the greatest number of farms containing between twenty and fifty and fifty and one hundred acres; and that, with two exceptions, it had the largest number containing between ten and twenty acres, while it had only six containing less than three acres, and 273 containing between three and ten acres. It also stood first in the number of pounds of cheese made and hops raised; second in the number of acres of wood land, being exceeded only by Somerset; third in the value of home manufactures, and in the number of pounds of maple sugar made; fourth in the value of forest products, the number of working oxen, the number of bushels of spring wheat raised, the gallons of milk sold and of maple molasses made; seventh in the number of horses, and the number of tons of hay raised; eighth in the number of acres of improved land, in the value of animals slaughtered or sold for slaughter, in the number of milch cows and in the number of pounds of wool produced and butter made; ninth in the value of all live stock, and the number of sheep fed; tenth in the value of farm productions, including betterments and additions to stock, and in the number of bushels of buckwheat raised; twelfth in the cash value of farming implements and machinery, and in the number of bushels of oats raised; thirteenth in the number of bushels of potatoes raised; sixteenth in the cash value of farms; and seventeenth in the value of orchard products, and in the number of pounds of bees wax and honey gathered. It exceeded Nevada, the District of Columbia and each of the Territories in the number of acres of improved land; Nevada, Rhode Island, District of Columbia and each of the Territories, except Arizona (?) and Washington, in woodland; Florida, Nevada, District of Columbia, and all the Territories in the cash value of farms; all the latter except Rhode Island in the cash value of farming implements and machinery; all the latter, including Rhode Island, with the addition of Alabama, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, South Carolina and Texas in the value of orchard products; Connecticut, Delaware, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, Rhode Island, District of Columbia and all the Territories, except Montana, in the value of home manufactures; Nevada, Rhode Island, District of Columbia, and all the Territories in the value of all live stock; all the latter, except Montana, in the number of milch cows; Delaware, Florida, Nebraska, Nevada, Rhode Island, District of Columbia and all the Territories, except Colorado and New Mexico, in the number of sheep; Nevada, Rhode Island, District of Columbia, and all the Territories, except Washington, in the number of swine; California, Florida, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, District of Columbia, and all the Territories, except Washington, in the number of bushels of spring wheat raised; Connecticut, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nevada, and Washington Territory, in addition to the latter, in the number of bushels of winter wheat raised; Nevada, Oregon, Rhode Island, District of Columbia and all the Territories, except New Mexico, in the number of bushels of Indian corn raised; Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nevada, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, District of Columbia, and all the Territories in the number of bushels of oats raised; in addition to the latter, California, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, Oregon, and Virginia in the number of bushels of buckwheat raised; all the latter, except Alabama, California, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Virginia in the pounds of wool shorn; Florida, Louisiana, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, District of Columbia and all the Territories in the pounds of butter made; in addition to the latter, Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia in the number of pounds of cheese made; in addition to the latter, (excepting Kentucky, Maryland, New Jersey and Rhode Island,) Iowa, Minnesota and Missouri in the number of gallons of milk sold; all the latter, (in addition to Rhode Island,) with the exception of Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia, in the number of tons of hay raised; all the states and territories, except California, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Wisconsin, in the number of pounds of hops raised.

The streams, though numerous, are none of them very large. French Creek is the principal one. It flows in a southerly direction through the central part of the county and unites with the Allegheny at Franklin. It was formerly known as Venango (or In-nan-gu-eh.) It is a beautiful, transparent and rapid stream, being for many miles from its mouth less than a hundred feet wide, and at some seasons is navigable to Waterford for boats carrying twenty tons, though for a few weeks during the summer it cannot usually be navigated by any craft larger than a canoe. One of the first appropriations for the north-western part of the State, in 1791, was £400 for the improvement of this creek. Oil Creek flows through the eastern part of the county, in a southerly direction, making a wide detour to the west, and empties into the Allegheny at Oil City. Its name is derived from the oil springs which exist along its banks, the product of which was gathered at the surface in small quantities and sold at an early day under the name of Seneca Oil, which was supposed to possess valuable curative properties. Oil Creek is thus described in 1789, under the head of "Mineral Water," by Jedediah Morse, of Charlestown, Mass., in The American Universal Geography :—

"Oil Creek, in Allegheny county, one hundred miles above Pittsburgh, issues from a remarkable spring, which boils like the waters of Hell Gate, near New York. On the top of the water floats an oil similar to that called Barbadoes tar. Several gallons may be gathered in a day. It is found very serviceable in rheumatism, in restoring weakness in the stomach, and in curing bruises and sore breasts. When drank, the water of the spring operates as a gentle cathartic. It is gathered by the country people and Indians, boiled and brought to market in bottles, and is deemed a most valuable family medicine."

Shenango and Conneaut Creeks flow through the western part, the former in a southerly direction, near the west border, to the Allegheny at Beaver, and the latter in a north-westerly direction, to Lake Erie, at Conneaut, in Ohio. The other principal streams are Conneautte and Cussewago creeks and Conneaut Outlet, which are tributary to French Creek on the west, and Muddy, Woodcock and Sugar Creeks, which are affluents of the same stream on the east. The Indian name for Cussewago Creek "signifies 'big snake,' probably from the sinuosity of its course, though tradition says it was named so from a black snake seen on its banks." The waters of these streams are supplemented by those of Conneaut Lake, in the townships of Sadsbury and Summit, Oil Creek Lake, in Bloomfield, and Sugar Lake, in Wayne, besides several smaller bodies of water. The Indian name of Conneaut Lake "signifies 'snowplace,' and may get its origin from the snow which remains on the bosom of the lake after having thawed away in the spring from the adjacent lands." This lake, like the others named, is a beautiful sheet of water, three to four miles in length and about a mile in width, and is "the largest entirely inland lake in the province." It was formerly used as a reservoir for the Beaver & Erie Canal, its waters having been raised about eleven feet above their original height, by an embankment constructed across the outlet.

Geologically the county presents but little diversity, or but little of special interest to the geologist. It is underlaid by the slates and shales common to the Chemung and Portage groups, and is apparently destitute of calcareous rock, except in very thin veins. Iron ore has been found in various parts of the county, and coal exists in the southern part, though it is doubtful whether in sufficient quantity to give it an economic value. Considerable quantities of petroleum have been obtained in the valley of Oil Creek, principally in the vicinity of Titusville. This county lies upon the verge of the oil-producing region of the State, a fact from which it derives immense pecuniary advantage, as the products of its more fertile soil find ready and convenient market in the sterile lands where the oil is most abundant.

About four miles west of Conneaut Lake, at the summit of the old Beaver & Erie Canal, and extending about a mile and a half along its line, is a formation of quicksand, averaging some two feet in thickness. The sand lies fourteen to sixteen feet below the surface of the ground, which is here a black ash and hemlock swamp, formerly very wet, but now dry, being drained by the canal. Much difficulty was experienced in constructing the canal in this locality, owing to the yielding nature of the sand. Piles eighteen to twenty-four feet long were driven along each side, forming perfect walls, with cross timbers for a floor, the whole so compactly and firmly united as to resist the lateral pressure of the sand. At the upper end of Conneaut Lake is a formation of shell marl, which covers an area of about thirty-three acres, and appears to be seven feet thick at the upper end and two and one-half feet thick at the lower end. This marl is worked into brick form and burned, when it makes a pretty good quality of lime, though not very white. The shells, which are of the genus planorbis, are minute and abundant. In the Pymatuning swamp is a somewhat extensive deposit of soft calcareous tufa and shell marl, similar to that in the Conneaut swamp. This marl possesses a value as a fertilizer which is little appreciated at the present time, and will serve to enrich the surrounding lands when a just estimate is placed upon it. Alfred Huidekoper, in his Incidents in the Early History of Crawford County, published in 1847, thus refers to the Pymatuning swamp:—

“ * * * From ten to twelve miles in width, it has every appearance of having once been a lake whose bed had been gradually filled up with accumulated vegetable matter. Covered with the cranberry vine, with occasional clumps of alders, and islands of larch and other timber, the subsoil is so loose that a pole can be thrust into it from ten to twenty feet. Ditches that have been cut through it for the purpose of draining, exhibit fallen timber below ground, and the dead stumps of trees still standing in place, show, by the divergence of their roots, that the surface of the soil is now from two to three feet higher than it was when the trees were standing and growing.”

The principal works of internal improvement are the Erie and Pittsburgh, the Atlantic & Great Western, the Oil Creek &

Allegheny Valley, the Union & Titusville and the Pennsylvania Petroleum railroads.

The Erie & Pittsburgh R. R. extends through the western part of the county, from north to south, passing through the townships of Spring, Conneaut, Pine, North Shenango and South Shenango, with its northern terminus at Erie and southern, at Pittsburgh. It was constructed in 1867 and '8; is owned and controlled by the Pennsylvania Central R. R. Co.; and does an extensive business in the transportation of oar and coal.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. extends in a tortuous course through the central and western portions of the county, passing through the townships of Rockdale, Cambridge, Woodcock, Mead, Union, Greenwood, Sadsbury and East Fallowfield, with its eastern terminus at Salamanca, N. Y., and with its connections reaches all the principal western points. It was built in 1861-2. At Meadville the company have a commodious depot, with offices and hotel attached, and extensive brick shops for manufacturing and repairing engines. It is doing a good general freight business, and under the present management is becoming quite popular with the traveling public. The Franklin Branch of this road, which was constructed in 1862-63, and extends from Meadville to Oil City, is owned and controlled by the same Company, and does an extensive business in the transportation of petroleum.

The Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley R. R. extends through the eastern part of the county, along the valley of Oil Creek, passing through the townships of Sparta, Rome, Stenben, Troy and Oil Creek, in a southerly direction. The principal station within this county is Titusville. The principal business of the road consists in the transportation of oil and passengers.

The Union & Titusville R. R. extends in a south-easterly direction through the eastern part of the county, passing through the townships of Bloomfield, Athens, Rome, Steuben, Troy and Oil Creek. Its principal business is the transportation of oil and passengers.

The Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R. is now under construction. The line extends in a south-easterly direction through the eastern portion of the county, passing through the townships of Venango, Cambridge, Rockdale, Richmond, Athens, Steuben, Troy and Oil Creek.

The old Beaver & Erie Canal, which was recently abandoned, extends through the western part of the county, from south to north, passing through the townships of West Fallowfield, Sadsbury, Summit, Summerhill and Spring. The feeder extends down French Creek from Bemustown, above Meadville, to a point nearly opposite the mouth of Conneaut Outlet, where it crosses the former stream, and following the course of the Outlet, which it crosses at the foot of Conneaut Lake, and unites with the canal on the line of Sadsbury and Summit.

The County Seat is at Meadville, where it was originally located on the erection of the county. Its location there was made contingent upon the security for payment to the trustees of the county, within four months of the passage of the act, by the inhabitants and proprietors of that place and its vicinity, of $4,000, either in specie or land, at a reasonable valuation, for the use of a seminary of learning within the county, and in case of default the trustees were authorized to fix the seat of justice at any place within four miles of Meadville. By an act of March 5, 1804, the Commissioners were directed to erect a court house and county offices upon the public square of that town. March 13, 1800, David Mead was commissioned Associate Judge of the county, and the following day John Kelso received a similar commission, and Thomas Rnston Kennedy was appointed Prothonotary. The first court, of which there is any record, was held July 6th of that year, by Judges Mead and Kelso, Dec. 20, 1800. David Mead having resigned the position, Wm. Bell was commissioned Associate Judge, and officiated in that capacity at the third session of the court, which was held at Meadville, April 6, 1801 and presided over by Alex. Addison.

The erection of the present court house was commenced Sept. 10th, 1867, and it was completed in October, 1869. It is located on the east side of the public square in Meadville, and is constructed in the renaissance style, of pressed brick, with stone trimmings. It has an iron roof and is fire-proof throughout. Its cost, including fencing, flagging and furniture, was $249,000. It contains all the county offices, and is very convenient in its internal arrangement. The Commissioners', Treasurer's, Recorder's, Clerk of the Courts' and Arbitration rooms occupy the first floor; and the court room, Prothonotary's, Sheriff's and Jury rooms, the second floor; The Janitor's rooms are in the attic. The jail is a stone structure, located immediately in rear of the court house, and is fitted up with iron cells. The sheriff's house is in front of the jail. It has been built many years and does not meet the requirements of a modern home.

The Poor House and farm, consisting of 215 acres of good land, are located five miles north of Meadville and one mile east of Saegertown. The cost of the house and outbuildings was $40,000. The estimated value of the property, including personal property, is $55,000. The main building, which is 45 by 68 feet and three stories high, was erected in 1868, and the old part, or wing, which is 42 by 90 feet and two and a half stories high, in 1854. A kitchen, 22 by 36 feet, is attached. The whole is warmed by three heaters in the basement. An abundance of water is supplied by a spring, flowing through a pipe. The building is rather low for good drainage. The first floor of the main building is occupied by the family of the Superintendent, (E. O. David,) the director's office, a sewing room, store room, kitchen for the family and three bed rooms. The second story is twelve feet high and contains seven good sized rooms, with a hall in the center. The third story contains nine comfortable rooms. All the females are kept in the new building, except a few of advanced age, who occupy two rooms on the first floor of the wing. There is a bath room, supplied with hot and cold water, in the basement of this building. The second story of the wing contains eleven rooms, which are used as dormitories. All the men are kept in this apartment. A kitchen of good size adjoins the dining rooms. A small framed house standing a short distance from the main building is used as a laundry, and also contains a bath room. In the second story is a carpenter shop, in which a pauper, who is a carpenter by trade, makes himself very useful. The house will accommodate 150 inmates. These unfortunate recipients of public charity sleep on straw beds, but have sufficient bed clothes, and the apartments are kept clean and comfortable. They receive an abundant supply of wholesome food. A physician visits the house once a week and oftener if required. Besides the superintendent and matron only one man and two girls are employed, all the rest of the labor on the farm and in the house being performed by the inmates. Intemperance is regarded by the superintendent as the chief cause of pauperism in the county. Fully one-third of the inmates are foreigners. There is no special provision for the accommodation of the insane, but all who are required to be kept confined are sent to Dixmont Insane Asylum.

Crawford, Venango, Mercer and Clarion counties compose the Twentieth Congressional District. Crawford county forms the Thirtieth Judicial District, the Twenty-ninth Senatorial District and elects two Senators, and has two Representatives.

There are eight papers published in the county, viz: The Conneautville Courier, weekly, The Crawford Journal, weekly, The Crawford Democrat, weekly, The Cambridge Index, weekly, the Titusville Herald, daily and weekly, the Titusville Courier, daily and weekly, the Meadville Republican, daily and weekly, and The Sunday Press. The first paper published in the county, and the first west of the Alleghanies, was the Crawford Weekly

Messenger, which was started at Meadville by Thomas Atkinson and W. Brendle, in 1805, the first number being issued on the second of January of that year. It was Republican in politics and its columns were avowedly open to all. The only restriction imposed required that discussions should be conducted with liberality, candor and decency. "This commendable rule," says Huidekoper, in his Incidents in the Early History of Crawford County, published in 1847, "seems to have been observed for the first few numbers of the new paper, but shortly after, when the contest began to increase in warmth between the friends of Mr. Snyder and Governor McKean, we find the political essays in the Messenger marked with the same bitter personalities which mar and disfigure similar contests at the present day," and the stricture is not less applicable after the lapse of over half a century. Justice prompts the admission that such, however, was not the character of the editorials.

THE CONNEAUTVILLE COURIER was commenced Nov. 14, 1847, by A. J. Mead and George W. Brown, and has been issued weekly continuously since that date. The following November Mr. Mead sold his interest to his partner, who continued in charge till May, 1854, when he sold to A. J. Mason and D. Sinclair Brown. Such was the success which attended the labors of these gentlemen that the subscriptions reached nearly 2000 in number, and obliged them to introduce steam power. Theirs was the first steam power press in the State west of the Alleghanies. In May, 1856, Mason purchased Sinclair's interest, and in August, 1862, sold the establishment to R. C. & J. H. Frey, to accept the command of a volunteer company during the war of the Rebellion. He was fatally wounded at Fredericksburgh, Va. In February, 1864, the Frey Brothers sold to J. E. & W. A. Rupert, by whom the paper was consolidated with the Crawford County Record, under the title of the Record and Courier. The Record was started in 1858, by John W. Patton, as an advertising sheet for gratuitous distribution, but meeting with great favor it developed into a regular weekly paper and soon became a formidable rival of the Courier, both being Republican in politics. At the breaking out of the Rebellion Mr. Patton joined the army as a lieutenant, and was subsequently promoted to the rank of major. At his death from wounds received at Chancellorsville, Va., in May, 1863, Fred. H. Broggins bought the establishment, which he had previously leased from Maj. Patton, and in December, 1863, it was purchased by J. E. & W. A. Rupert, the present proprietors, who in December, 1870, changed the title to The Conneautville Courier, on account of the age of that paper. It is strictly a local newspaper, and is the home organ of a region composed of the western part of Crawford county, the south-western part of Erie and the north-western part of Mercer, in Pa., and the eastern part of Ashtabula county, Ohio, embracing a population of fully 70,000, who are principally engaged in dairy farming. It is Republican in politics and is ably conducted.

The first paper published in Conneautville was the Union, which was started in October, 1846, by Platt & Son, and discontinued the following May.

THE CRAWFORD JOURNAL, published at Meadville, is the successor of the Crawford Weekly Messenger, before alluded to, which in 1834, passed into the hands of Joseph C. G. Kennedy, (late Superintendent of U. S. Census Bureau,) who conducted it for a year and a half, when Jos. C. Hays purchased the material, and July 27, 1836, changed the name to Crawford Statesman, which was Whig in politics. In 1841, Mr. Hays sold to a company, and the paper was successively edited by Samuel Magill, A. P. Whitaker, H. B. Brooks, James Onslow and James Burchfield, Democratic in politics. In 1848, the material was purchased by Mr. Hays, who, on the 13th of January of that year, commenced the publication of The Crawford Journal, as a Whig paper. The Meadville Gazette, another Whig paper, started by L. L. Lord, in 1845, was purchased by Mr. Hays and consolidated with the Journal in 1850. Mr. Hays conducted the Journal as a Whig, American and Republican organ, until November, 1864, when it was purchased by John D. Nicholas. In December, 1865, the office was entirely destroyed by fire. In the spring of 1866, the Journal was re-issued by Edward Bliss and John D. Nicholas. Since April, 1867, it has been successively under the editorial control of Thomas McKean, McKean & Frey, Johnson & McKean, McKean & Andrews, Robert Andrews & Co., Hollister & Metcalf, Chalfant & Tyler, C. W. Tyler and Thickstun & Hollister. In April, 1873, it was purchased by Hempstead & Co., the present proprietors.

THE CRAWFORD DEMOCRAT was started at Meadville, in 1833, by James E. McFarland, who sold it, in 1859, to Wm. Wilson, by whom it was sold, in 1861, to Thomas W. Grayson, the present editor and proprietor. The paper has always been Democratic.

THE CRAWFORD INDEX is the outgrowth of The Index, a monthly advertising pamphlet, which was started at Cambridgeboro, in 1869, by A. W. Howe, who issued a few numbers at remote periods, until declining health and financial embarrassments compelled him to relinquish the project. At his death in February, 1872, D. P. Robbins, M. D., purchased the press and material, and in April, 1872, issued the first number of the Weekly Index, which, by untiring zeal, he established upon a paying basis. At the beginning of the second volume he admitted B. T. Anderson as a partner, enlarged the paper to its present size and changed its name to the Cambridge Index, under which title it is now published. In June, 1873, Mr. Anderson withdrew from the firm, leaving Mr. Robbins the sole proprietor, and by whom it is still published.

Evidences of settlement at a time long anterior to the advent of the present race exist in various parts of the county, but too little is known in regard to them to assign them to a definite era. Among the nomadic Indians who occupied the country when the present settlements were commenced a tradition was extant that these traces of civilized occupancy were the works of a larger and more powerful race of people than they, and their character precludes the idea that they were wrought by the uncultured red men. In Gordon's Gazetteer of Pennsylvania, is "the following notice of a curious mound in the county," "taken from the N. Y. Jour. of Commerce, 1830."

"On an extensive plain near Oil Creek, there is a vast mound of stones containing many hundred thousand cart loads. This pyramid has stood through so many ages that it is now covered with soil, and from its top rises a noble pine tree, the roots of which running down the sides, fasten themselves in the earth below. The stones are many of them so large that two men can scarce move them, and are unlike any in the neighborhood; nor are there quarries near, from which so large a quantity could be taken. The stones were, perhaps, collected from the surface, and the mound one of the many that have been raised by the ancient race which preceded the Indians, whom the Europeans have known. These monuments are numerous further north and east, and in the south and west are far greater, more artificial and imposing."

We extract from Huidekoper's Incidents in the Early History of Crawford County the following relative to the Indian occupancy of the country embraced in this county:

"There were originally two circular forts about a mile below the present village of Meadville. The one in the valley, on the farm of Mr. Taylor Randolph, and the other a quarter of a mile below, on the bluff point of a high knoll, where a small stream puts into the canal. The plough and annual tillage of the soil, have now destroyed them. There was also a mound to be seen a short distance above the fort, which stood in the plain. It is now nothing but a smooth eminence, some two or three feet high, and extending from north to south some fifteen or twenty feet, and about twice as much from east to west. It is described, however, by Mr. Isaac Randolph, one of the oldest settlers, on whose farm it stands, as having been composed originally of two mounds connected by a narrow neck between them. The material of one of the mounds he represents as having been of gravel, and the other of alluvial earth. The ground around the mound is alluvial, without stone, and it is evident the material was carried some distance to construct the mound, as there was no ditch or excavation near it, from which it could have been taken. The mound stands some thirty rods from the stream, where gravel is abundant.

"The fields in the neighborhood abound with small pieces of Indian crockery, resembling common earthenware, except that it is not glazed nor so well burned.

"In ploughing in the neighborhood of the above mound some years ago an Indian grave was discovered, covered with a large stone, under which, among the bones, were found some interesting relics. Among the rest, some sharp instruments of agate or other hard stone, shaped in the form of the segment of a circle, from three to five inches long, and having one edge, and the points very sharp; they were probably used either for surgical instruments, or for tattooing, &c. Indian arrow-heads of flint, and axes of greenstone, are frequently found in the flats along the creek, and occasionally the remains of pipes for smoking carved out of stone. A small idol, carved in the form of an owl, of soapstone, was found a few years since, and is now in the cabinet of Mr. Frederick Huidekoper, in Meadville. A small turtle, either a petrification, or a relic of Indian sculpture, has lately been discovered in excavating for a furnace on the Big Sugar Creek; it is now in the possession of Mr. J. Russell, at Russellville, in Venango County. The fossil is a siliceous stone, and was unfortunately and wantonly broken by the laborers who exhumed it; the pieces, however, have been obtained and preserved by Mr. Russell. The head and front part of the body are entire; the head a little distorted, but very distinct. From a hasty inspection I had of it in passing Mr. Russell's, a few days since, I should be inclined to believe it a specimen of Indian sculpture, and an idol of the Delaware, or some other tribe of Indians, who regarded the turtle as sacred.

"The most perfect of the Indian fortifications in the county is a circular fort, still in a tolerable state of preservation, which stands on a point of land projecting into the Pymatuning Swamp in North Shenango township. The area of the fort includes some two acres of ground, now covered with large timber. The breastwork is about three feet high, and the fosse from two to three feet deep; there are from four to five places of egress from the fort, where there are intervals in the ditch. The breastwork has probably originally been fortified with a stockade, and the portals occupied with gates. On the land side, or the side opposite to the swamp, is another breastwork, some twenty or thirty yards from the fort, and now less distinct.

"In the interior of the fort there are a great number of places where there is a slight depression in the surface, as though a hole had been dug some two feet in diameter. In excavating in these places the ground has a burnt look, and among the earth are small pieces of charcoal, indicating that these holes have been receptacles for fire, and were probably made use of in cooking. On the top of the breastwork trees are now growing, one of which, a white oak, measured more than ten feet in circumference. In the neighborhood of the fort are Indian graves and remains, that have not yet been explored."

At "Green Mount," upon the farm of Mr. Rufus Smith, about two miles south of Meadville, have recently been exhumed human skeletons, which, from their position and other circumstances connected with their burial, have induced in some the belief that they are Indian remains. While the evidence thus far adduced does not fully establish this as the fact, the position is not rendered less tenable by the counter theory, which seeks to show, upon the authority of Mr. Alexander Shaw, of Shaws Landing, and other early settlers, that the remains are those of early white settlers, and the locality a burial ground which was laid out upon the farm when it was the property of James Randolph. There is little doubt that the spot was used as a place of burial by the early white settlers; and the irrefragable evidence which exists that this was once the home of the red man, renders it highly probable that this mound, so characteristic of the Indian sepulture, and yet, possibly, only a natural conformation of the ground, was used by them for interring their dead. It is not impossible, therefore, nor improbable, that the remains of both white and red men repose there. The remains which have been disinterred are placed in the Natural History Department of the Meadville Theological School, and may prove to be interesting aboriginal relics.

In Cussewago township and other localities numerous Indian relics have, from time to time, been disclosed by the agency of the plow and otherwise. Huidekoper relates that in 1834, while engaged in surveying the extreme western part of the county, near Sorrel Hill, he discovered trees which had been blazed one hundred and twelve years before that time. On blocking these trees the mark of the ax or edged instrument was very distinct. Very recently Mr. Eli Brown, while engaged in felling a large oak tree, upon his farm in Summit township, discovered near its center a cut which was apparently made with an ax or other sharp instrument of similar design. The number of rings marking each year's growth, from the cut outward, as counted by Mr. Brown, indicates that the incision was made more than three centuries ago, as early as 1573, but by whom can only be conjectured.

This section of country seems to have been considered by the Indians as neutral ground, and was probably only the temporary home of nomadic tribes. It is not definitely known that any permanent Indian village existed within the limits of the county, though suppositions that such is the fact have been and are still entertained. Their nearest village on the east, of which we have any authentic record, was Cornplanter's, at Tinneshantago, on the Allegheny River, and the nearest settlements of the western Indians were at Cuyahoga and Sandusky. Among the Indians who were living at the mouth of Conneaut Creek was a chief, named Canadaughta, to whom, and his three sons, (Flying Cloud, Big Sun and Standing Stone,) the early white settlers were indebted for many acts of kindness and friendly protection.

Settlement by the whites was commenced in 1787, by David and John Mead, who, in the summer of that year, impelled by the acrimonious disputes engendered by conflicting claims between Connecticut and Pennsylvania, left their homes in Northumberland county to explore the valley of French Creek. "They found the soil rich and productive, and many of the finest portions of the valley covered with herbage and grass, the forest trees having apparently been long previously removed, giving the cleared portions, at this time, much the appearance of a natural prairie." Their favorable report of the country induced Joseph Mead, Thomas Martin, John Watson, James F. Randolph, Thomas Grant, Cornelius VanHorne and Christopher Snyder to accompany them the following spring with a view to making it their permanent home. They located upon French Creek, in the vicinity of Meadville, some upon the east bank, but principally upon the west side, at the mouth of Cussewago Creek. Owing to the frequent outrages perpetrated by the hostile Indians upon the settlements of this frontier, by which these pioneers and the few who subsequently united their fortunes with them were several times driven from their improvements and compelled to seek protection at Franklin, the nearest fortified place, the settlements were much retarded during the first eight years, nearly every one of which was marked by the brutal ferocity and vindictiveness of the Indians; and not until the consummation of the treaty of Gen. Wayne with the western Indians, which was made Aug. 3, 1795, and ratified Dec. 22, of the same year, and which brought tranquility and security to them, did a rapid, healthy and enduring improvement take place. Early in 1794 the settlers organized themselves into a military company, of which Cornelius VanHorne was chosen captain, and a block house was built, in the upper story of which a cannon was mounted. The blockhouse was a rough log building, with the upper story projecting beyond the lower one, and was provided with a centry box on the top. It was situated east of Water street, in the city of Meadville, and remained standing till the summer of 1828, when, in the progress of improvement, it was removed. The settlers worked their farms as best they could, keeping together in small companies, fearing the isolation which was sure to provoke attack from a covert enemy, and ever on the alert to anticipate and avert the danger with which they were constantly threatened.

Wishing to avoid repetition we refer the reader to the respective towns, where further details pertaining to the early settlements will be found.

GAZETTEER OF TOWNSHIPS.

ATHENS, was formed in 1831. It is an interior town, lying north-east of the center of the county and contains 17,113 square acres. The surface is pleasantly diversified by upland and valley. The soil is of good quality, being well adapted to the growth of grass, barley, rye, oats, corn and buckwheat, and is well watered in the western and central parts by Muddy Creek, its tributaries, and the numerous springs from which they take their rise, and in the eastern part by Oil Creek, which crosses the north-east corner of the township. It is populated by a thrifty and intelligent people, who are engaged principally in agriculture, lumbering and the various industries growing out of the latter. Among the principal manufacturing interests are Wright & Harter's cheese box factory and planing mill, situated at Little Cooley, and giving employment to five men in the manufacture of 200 boxes per day; Samuel Clement's steam saw and shingle mill, located on road No. 11, which employs two men and turns out 3000 feet of lumber and 20,000 shingles per day; J. M. Parker's shingle mill, located in the south-east part, which employs eight men and is capable of producing 20,000 shingles per day; D. & J. Riggs' steam saw and shingle mill, located on road No. 35, which gives employment to three men and is capable of cutting 2000 feet of lumber and 10,000 shingles per day; and the Athens Mills, located on road No. 26, near the south line, consisting of steam saw, shingle and lath mills, in which twenty-five men are employed and 15,000 feet of lumber, 20,000 shingles and 10,000 lath can be made per day.

The township is traversed by the Union & Titusville R. R., which crosses the north-east corner, and the Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R., which crosses the south-west corner.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1317, of whom 1290 were native, 27, foreign and all, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained nine schools and employed sixteen teachers. The number of scholars was 460; the average number attending school, 335; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,677.77.

LITTLE COOLEY, (p. v.) situated in the western part of the township, on Muddy Creek, and on the line of the P. P. R. R., is a promising village containing a church, (United Brethren,) school house, hotel, six stores, a grist mill, cheese box factory and many comfortable dwellings.

TAYLORS STAND (p. o.) is situated on the State Road, in the north part.

The settlement of the township was commenced about the latter part of the last century by a man named Smith, who lived in lonely seclusion without neighbors or companionship save that of the nomadic Indians who frequented his locality, and with no better roads than the Indian paths afforded. Franklin was the nearest reliable place from which he could obtain supplies, and these were conveyed upon the backs of horses which were eventually lost in the wilderness. His house stood upon the Dr. Taylor farm and its ruins were discernible when the doctor took possession. He finally abandoned his improvements, but whether he reached the settlements in safety, or became a victim to the treachery of his savage companions is not known. Smith was followed by Elisha Root, Dr. Silas Taylor, Jonah Edson, Wm. King, John Shawburger and Abraham Wheeler, who battled heroically with the hardships incident to pioneer life and effected permanent settlements. Taylor and Wheeler, far advanced in years, have lived to see the wonderful transformations, by which a wilderness forbidding in aspect and habited by wild beasts has given way to the fruitful farms of the prosperous husbandman and the busy hum of the mechanic arts, and to enjoy in sweet tranquility the fruits of their early arduous labors. The absence of roads of any kind was one of the first difficulties which demanded the attention of these brave and sturdy yeomen. By an act of the Legislature a State road was authorized and had been cut out, but the underwood had obtained vigorous growth and obstructed its passage. Steep hills needed leveling, deep morasses making passable and streams bridging; while dense forests covering all the lands denied them subsistence. Nothing daunted they set themselves to the task of removing these obstacles. Dr. Taylor and John Brown (the latter of Harpers Ferry notoriety, who settled at a later day in the township of Richmond, which adjoins this on the west,) were active in opening the State road through their respective townships, and soon had the satisfaction of seeing a serviceable highway which answered well its purpose, and laid the foundation for more permanent improvement. The settlement of the township was retarded by the conflicting titles arising from discrepancies in the surveys made by Doe and Herrington. Many who came purposing to take up and improve the lands were deterred from doing so and sought homes in other localities where patrimony was less likely to be affected by legal contention. Happily, however, all these clashing interests have been harmonized by wise legislation, and the bitter controversies which threatened the peace of the whole community have long since ceased and their memory is partially obliterated by the lapse of time.

Robert Cage, a native of Harpers Ferry, Va., who died in August, 1869, settled in April, 1824, on the 200 acre tract, "No. 1718," on which his son John now lives.

The first improvement on the site of the village of Little Cooley was made by Isaac A. Cummings, in 1848, and for some time his was the only habitation in that locality.

The "Church of God" (Advent,) was organized with three members, in 1855, by Elder Charles Crawford, the first pastor. The Society is without a house of worship, meetings being held in the grove during the summer and in the school house during the winter. There are seventy members. To certain inquiries propounded relative to this church, Elder C. N. Burrell, the present pastor, facetiously replies that the house of worship was erected "when God made the world," and will seat "all that will come." Its cost, he says, "God only knows" as "the trees are his first temple."

A beautiful and conspicuous church edifice graces the village of Little Cooley. It is under the supervision of the United Brethren, though it was built with funds contributed by all denominations and its doors are open to all orthodox sects and to moral entertainments.

BEAVER was formed in 1811. It lies in the north-west corner of the county, bordering upon Ohio on the west and Erie county on the north, and contains 21,668 square acres. The surface is level and watered by several small streams tributary to Conneaut Creek, which have their rise in the south part of the township and flow north, parallel to each other, through it. In the south-western part is a salt spring, which has yielded considerable quantities of salt. The waters were not strongly impregnated with saline matter and as it was believed that by boring deeper a stronger brine would be obtained, a well was sunk an additional depth of 200 to 300 feet, but instead of yielding a stronger brine oil was obtained, not, however, in sufficient quantity to render it profitable. The oil mixing with the salt water rendered the latter valueless for commercial purposes. An effort was made to restore the salt spring to its former purity by filling the well to its former depth, but that, proving futile it was abandoned. The soil is well adapted to grazing, and dairying and stock raising form the chief pursuits of the agriculturist as well as the principal occupation of the inhabitants. Lumbering is carried on to some extent. The lands in the northern part of the township, having been in the hands of speculators, evince but slight improvement, though they are now being rapidly brought under cultivation.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1177, of whom 1101 were native, 76, foreign and all, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained eleven schools and employed twenty-two teachers. The number of scholars was 373; the average number attending school, 307; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,834.07.

BEAVER CENTER (p. o.) is located in the center of the township, four miles from the Erie & Pittsburg R. R., and contains two churches, (both recently built,) two stores, two saw mills, (one operated by steam and the other by water,) a manufactory of hand-rakes, bent fellies, spokes and wagon neaps, a cheese factory, two blacksmith shops and about twenty-five dwellings.

J. W. Wood & Co.'s manufacturing establishment, located here, gives employment to about eight persons and annually produces about 12,000 to 15,000 hand rakes, 5,000 sets of fellies and wagon shafts, 2,000 wagon poles and 1,500 sets of spokes.

The settlement of the township was commenced about the beginning of the present century. George and William Foster are believed to be the first who located within its limits. They came from the eastern part of the State about the year 1800 and settled near the center. William preceded his father a few months. He brought with him upon a hand sled a barrel of flour and superintended his own cuisine, which, it is fair to presume, was of a most primitive character. His meat was supplied by the game which was then abundant. About the same time the Fosters came settlements were made by a Mr. McGuire in the southern part of the township, by two families named Silverthorn, in the south-east part, on Silverthorn Run, and by a Mr. Thompson, in the south-western part. A Mr. Durham, settled south of Beaver Center near the same time.

The Gateses, Hollenbecks, Browns and Larkins came in a little later. Lotan Reid, a native of Massachusetts, located in the south-western part in 1834, having previously resided in Canada. At that late day there were no roads in the locality in which he settled, and the blazed trees of that period were the only guide the traveler had in traversing the dense forests.

The first store in the township was probably kept at Beaver Center, by Lester Griswold. The first grist mill was built at the same place, by Robert Foster, it contained a single run of stones, which were obtained from rocks found in the vicinity. The first saw mill is believed to have been built by Wm. Plymat, about a mile west of the center.

The Church of the United Brethren at Reeds Corners, was organized with ten members in 1850, by Rev. Willis Lamson, the first pastor. Their house of worship was erected in 1861, at a cost of $800, and will seat 350 persons. It is free to all orthodox denominations. The present pastor is Rev. J. Denis; and the number of members, thirty-one. The Church property is valued at $600.—[Information furnished by Mr. W. W. Lamson.]

The Christian Church, at Beaver Center, was organized with twenty members in 1870, by Rev. I. R. Spencer, the first pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 200 persons, was erected in 1871, at a cost of $2,400. There are at present thirty-two members, who are under the ministrations of Rev. J. J. Summerbell. The Church property is valued at $2,600. An organization of the Christian denomination existed in this place about 1840, continuing eight or ten years, with Elder J. E. Church as its pastor.—[Information furnished by Mr. Luther Gates.]

BLOOMFIELD was formed in 1811. It lies upon the north border of the county, east of the center, and contains 39,465 square acres. The surface is broken by the valley of Oil Creek, (which extends diagonally through the central part of the township,) and its numerous tributaries, the principal of which are West Gate Creek and Streve and Mosey runs. The east and west branches of Federal Run irrigate the surface of the western part of the township and contribute their waters to Muddy Creek, a tributary of French Creek. Oil Creek Lake lies about the center of the township.

Dairying is an important industry of this township, and manufacturing is carried on to a limited extent. The staple productions of the manufactories are lumber and cheese. Among the industries which engage the attention of the people, are Wm. Porter & Son's butter and cheese factory, situated at Chapinville, which was completed in May, 1873, gives employment to four persons, receives the milk of 275 cows and produces fifty pounds of butter and eight to ten cheeses per day; Dawson H. Fisher's cheese factory, located on road 17, which employs two persons and produces eight cheeses per day; Eugene C. Wood's shingle mill, situated on road 42, which employs two men and is capable of cutting 6,000 shingles per day; W. D. Brunstetter's saw and lath mill, located on road 1, which employs eleven men and is capable of sawing 7,000 feet of lumber and 3,000 lath per day; Samuel B. Wallace's saw mill, situated on Mosey run and on road 4½, which has facilities for sawing 2,000 feet of lumber per day; Wm. W. Woodward's saw and grist mill, situated on Mosey Run and on road 20, with one run of stones and a capacity for sawing 2,000 feet of lumber per day; Perry Shreve's saw mill, situated on a branch of West Gate Creek and on road 46; Dobben & Wise's saw mill, situated at the junction of roads 17 and 19, which employs five men and has facilities for sawing 10,000 feet of lumber per day; Henry M. Batchelder's saw mill, situated at Lincolnville, employing five men and producing 8,000 feet of lumber per day; and Davenport & Son's saw mill, located at Riceville, which employs four men and is capacitated to saw 2,500 feet of lumber per day.

The Union & Titusville R. R. extends diagonally through the township, following the course of Oil Creek.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,262, of whom 1,238 were native, 24, foreign and all, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained "ten and one-half schools," and employed nineteen teachers. The number of scholars was 377; the average number attending school, 274; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,512.50.

RICEVILLE, (p. v.) situated on the south line, near the south-east corner, and upon Oil Creek, is a station on the U. & T. R. R. In 1870 it had a population of 301. It contains a church school house, hotel, four stores, two saw, one grist, and two shingle mills, one cabinet, two wagon, and two blacksmith shops, a foundry and agricultural implement manufactory, a sash, door and blind factory and about seventy-five dwellings.

LINCOLNVILLE (p. o.) is situated on Oil Creek and on the U. & T. R. R., a little south of the center of the township.

CHAPINVILLE (p. o.) is situated on the line of Rockdale.

BLOOMFIELD (p. o.) is situated north-east of the center, at the head waters of West Gate Creek.

The first settlement of which we have knowledge, was made by a man named Cunningham, who is believed to have located in 1795, on land subsequently purchased by James and Elkanah Blakeslee. In 1798, James Hamilton came into the township, as the agent of John Fields, of Philadelphia, and with his advent commenced the first substantial improvement. He built the first grist mill in 1800, near Oil Creek Lake. It was rebuilt in 1821. Mr. Hamilton removed to Meadville in 1808. Between 1798 and 1800 settlements were made by the Bloomfields, — Negus, — Piper, James Bryan and Joseph Kirk. Richard Shreve, a son of Gen. Wm. Shreve of Borden-town, N. J., who served seven years under Washington, was born Sept. 22, 1760, and came to Bloomfield in 1798, from Red Stone, where for eight years previous he was in charge of the Washington Mills, built by George Washington. He had thirteen children, nine sons and four daughters, of whom Charles and Margaret are the only survivors. Charles is now living on road 16, and has raised a large family. Wm. and Barzillai Shreve brought a carding machine, which they run two seasons. It was the third brought into Allegheny county, of which Crawford county was then a part, the other two being owned by Lot Lewis, of Meadville, and E. Hewes, of Erie. James Blakeslee came to this township from Genesee county, N. Y., in May, 1819, followed in June of the same year by his son Elkanah, who was born August 23, 1796, in Washington county, N. Y., and removed thence with his father to Genesee county, in 1799. The Blakeslees located on the Cunningham place, which they purchased of some Swedes, who succeeded Cunningham in the settlement thereon. James died at the age of 87 years. The first house built on the site of Riceville was erected by Samuel Rice. It was constructed of logs. The first saw mill at that village was built in 1830. Seth Lincoln, a native of Massachusetts, came from Fabius, N. Y., in December, 1837, and took up a tract of 400 acres on the site of Lincolnville, where he cut the first tree and erected the first saw and grist mills. The saw mill is still in operation, but the grist mill relapsed into disuse about two years ago. While passing a chute with a raft, on his way to Pittsburgh, in 1847, Mr. Lincoln received a blow on the head from a scantling, which caused his death. Salmon N. Sturdevant, also from Fabius, joined Mr. Lincoln the year following that of his settlement. He purchased ten acres from a gentleman living in Meadville, and subsequently fifty acres from Mr. Lincoln, on which he is still living at the age of 74 years, and filling the office of town clerk.

The Bloomfield Baptist Church, at Shreve Corners, was organized with eighteen members, Dec. 24, 1850, by Rev. R D. Hays, the first pastor, and and their church edifice, which will seat 250 persons, was erected in 1854. The Church now has eighty-five members. During its existence 167 persons have been added by baptism, letter, experience, and former baptism; 71 have been dismissed by letter; and 22 have been excluded and their names erased from the Church membership. It has had seven different pastors, the present incumbent, Rev. C. Shreve, our informant, now being on the twelfth year of his pastorate. The Church property is valued at $2,500.

CAMBRIDGE was formed from Venango in 1852. It lies about the center of the north border of the county, and contains 11,162 square acres. It is drained by French Creek and its tributaries, the principal of which are Conneantte and Little Conneant Creeks. French Creek enters the township near the center of the east border and flows in a westerly direction to its confluence with Conneautte Creek, on the west border, when it deflects to the south. These two streams form the west boundary of the township, separating it from Venango. The soil throughout the township is a rich loam, well adapted to dairying, which forms the chief pursuit of the inhabitants.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. extends through the township, following the course of French Creek, and the Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R. crosses the central part, from west to east, nearly.

The population of the township in 1870, was 747, all of whom were white, and all, except 47, native born.

During the year ending, June 3, 1872, the township contained six schools and employed eleven teachers. The number of scholars was 207; the average number attending school, 150; and the amount expended for school purposes, $792.01.

CAMBRIDGE (p. v.) is centrally located, on French Creek and the A. & G. W. R. R., and is distant fourteen miles north of Meadville, the county seat. It is a thriving village, containing five churches, three hotels, a bank, (organized in 1872,) eleven stores, a saw mill, tannery, shovel-handle factory, two planing mills, three carriage and two shoe shops, three liveryies, and had in 1870, 452 inhabitants. It was incorporated as a borough in 1867. The tannery is owned by F. W. Winchester and is capable of tanning 1,200 hides per annum. The handle factory is operated by B. M. Sherwood & Son. In it fifteen men are employed and one hundred dozens of handles made per day. These gentlemen have a saw mill, capable of sawing 10,000 feet of lumber per day, and a shingle mill, capable of cutting 10,000 shingles per day. They are also engaged in the manufacture of cheese boxes. One mile north of Cambridge is H. N. Rockwell's lath mill, containing one drag and five circular saws, employing six men and capable of cutting 15,000 lath per day.

The Cambridge Masonic Lodge was organized with eight charter members, in July, 1870, with Prof. H. D. Persons as first W. M. The lodge has a good hall, well furnished, and is in a prosperous condition. The present (June, 1873,) number of members is over fifty, including many of the best citizens in the community. Regular meetings are held the second and fourth Fridays of each month.

DRAKES MILLS (p. o.) is situated in the north part of the township.

Settlement was commenced the latter part of the last century. Robert Humes, a native of Ireland, came here in 1797 and is said to have settled the first farm in the township, on lot 141, on which his son David now resides. He helped to raise the first cabin built in Meadville. Archibald Humes and Michael Sherred, from Susquehanna county, came about the same time. The former built the first grist mill in this part of the county. Other early settlers at this or a little later date were John I., Thos. and Archibald (Jr.) Humes, John Sherer and Henry Allen, the latter a native of England. Henry Baugher, from the vicinity of Harrisburg, came in about 1800. Leonard Docter came from Susquehanna county in 1801, and located on lot 128. Isaac Kelly, Thos. Fullerton, Edward Hicks, James Durham, James Weston, John Sinclair and Alex. Anderson settled here in 1811, and John Langley, a native of Ireland, in 1812. James Birchard, from Berkshire county, Mass., and Amos Ames, from the same State, came in 1813; and Charles T. Cummings and Dr. Perkins, who also settled here the latter year, purchased a large tract of land which was settled by emigrants from Massachusetts, and is at present known as "Yankee Hill." Daniel and Sylvester Root, brothers, from Hampshire Co., Mass., settled in the township in 1819. These early settlers were accustomed to go to Erie for salt and other necessities, which were conveyed on forked poles, drawn by a yoke of oxen. This was a rude conveyance—one which the descendants of these worthy pioneers could scarcely be induced to adopt at the present day—but one which was adapted to the times and the condition of the country through which they passed.

The first religious meetings held in the township, when this was a part of Venango, were held on the bank of French Creek, near the cemetery. The worshipers assembled under heaven's blue canopy, sheltered by the forest trees. A stump cut down the center, one-half left a few feet higher than the other, served as a pulpit, while the congregation sat upon logs and such other conveniences as the location afforded.

The Cambridgeboro Baptist Church, (formerly known as the Rockdale, but originally as the Lebanon Baptist Church,) was organized with twelve members, Oct. 31, 1812, by Revs. Wm. West and Thomas Rigdon. The Society has erected three church edifices. We are not advised of the year in which the first was built, but the second one was constructed in 1835, and the present one, which will seat 380 persons, in 1870, at a cost of $6,000. The first pastor was Rev. George Miller, the present one is Rev. Ross Ward, our informant. The Society numbers ninety-five members, and its property is valued at $6,800.

From the minutes of the Forty-Ninth Annual Session of the French Creek Baptist Association we learn that the members at its organization were "Geo. Miller, Alex. Anderson, Isaac Kelly, John Langley, Jas. Anderson, Sally Clark, Barbar Miller, Hannah Kelly, Elizabeth Daniel, Christina Miller and, Lydia Anderson;" and the following relative to the discipline of the Church:—

"In the early history of the church every member was required to attend every meeting ; if any one but once failed to do so, he was required to give an excuse ; if he failed twice, he was visited by brethren appointed by the church, who reported at the next meeting. Brethren appointed on any committee were required faithfully to perform their duty ; if any one committed a misdemeanor which came to the knowledge of the church, some judicious brother was appointed to admonish him. A yearly meeting was held which all were expected and were glad to attend, and which was ever attended by members of sister churches, commencing Saturday P. M. and continuing over the Sabbath. Their greetings on those occasions were hearty. Their evening meetings often extended far into the night. When they voted to hold a special or protracted meeting, they gave themselves to prayer and fasting, arranged their business so that all could attend from the first, and gave word to their friends near and far. Neighboring pastors would attend. These meetings were short, but frequently from the first, sinners would ask for the prayers of Christians."

The First Presbyterian Church of Cambridge, at Cambridge borough, was organized with twenty-three members, April 22, 1852, by Revs. R. Craighead, E. W. Beebe and Elder — Kerr. Their house of worship was erected the same year, at a cost of $1,500. It will seat 350 persons. Rev. G. W. Hampson was the first pastor, and Rev. W. A. McCarrell, our informant, is the present one. There are one hundred members. The Church property is valued at $2,500.

CONNEAUT was formed in 1811, and derives its name from the lake of the same name. It lies upon the west border of the county, north of the center, bordering upon the State of Ohio, and contains 23,896 square acres. The surface is quite level or gently rolling, and is watered in the western part by Paden Creek and other small streams and in the eastern part by Mill Creek. The soil, which is a gravelly loam, produces good grass and grain, and dairying and stock raising form the chief vocations of the people. The Erie & Pittsburgh R. R. passes through the eastern part of the township.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1729, all of whom were white, 1667, native and 62, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained sixteen schools and employed thirty-two teachers. The number of scholars was 560 ; the average number attending school, 505 ; and the amount expended for school purposes purposes, $2,212.23.

PENN LINE, (p. v.) situated in the western part of the township, and distant about half a mile from the Ohio line, is surrounded by a tolerably good farming and dairy country, and contains two stores, one hotel, one tannery, two blacksmith and two shoe shops and about sixteen dwellings.

STEAMBURG, (p. o.) situated on Paden Creek, in the north part of the township, contains a church, steam saw mill, cheese factory, blacksmith shop and about ten dwellings.

SUMMIT STATION, located in the eastern part, on the E. & P. R. R., derives its name from the fact that the summit of the road is a short distance north of this locality.

Settlement of the township was commenced near the close of the last century, but of the precise year we are not advised. Wm. Shotwell, one of the first settlers, if not the first, located near the center, but remained only a short time. Several settlements were made in 1798, or about that year. Among those who settled at that time were Wm. and Thos. Rankin, Obed Garwood, Isaac Paden, Samuel Patterson, Robert Martin, Jas. Martin and Wm. Latta. The Rankin's were natives of Ireland. Wm. located at Penn Line, where he cleared a large farm on which he resided till his death; and Thomas, about one and one-half miles south-east of that place, where he cleared some land and built a saw mill, and eventually removed to Indiana where he died. Garwood came from Red Stone, Pa., and settled in the southern part and cleared a large farm, on which he remained till his death, and on which some of his children now reside. Paden, who came from the same place as Garwood, located in the south-west part, where he probably built the first grist and saw mills, and where he remained until his death. Patterson was from N. J. and settled on the site of Steamburg, where he cleared a large farm and spent the remainder of his days. The Martin's and Latta were natives of the Emerald Isle. Robert Martin located at Steamburg, and resided there till his earthly labors were ended by death; while James Martin and Latta settled at Penn Line. Latta built the first framed building—a barn—erected in the township. Many others settled in the township about this time, but soon left in consequence of the alleged breach of faith of the Holland Land Co., who offered to settlers 400 acres of land in consideration of eight years settlement and the projection of certain improvements. Samuel Potter settled in the northern part in 1799. He came from Elizabethtown, N. J., with an ox team, part of his journey lying through the woods, in which his only guide was blazed trees. He took up land, put in some crops and built a log house, and at the end of a year he returned to N. J., where he remained another year, when he retraced his steps to his new home, where he died at the age of 93 years. He was drafted during the war of 1812 and served three months at Erie. Henry Frey came from York county in 1800, and settled in the southern part of the township, on the farm upon which his youngest son now lives, where he died. Samuel Brooks, from Red Stone, Pa., came about the same year and settled in the eastern part. He brought his goods up French Creek on a flat boat to Meadville, and thence by land to within a mile of where he finally settled, after a year's residence. He took up and cleared 266 acres. When he came game, consisting of deer, bears and wild turkies, was abundant. Meadville was their nearest trading place, and thither Mrs. Brooks was accustomed to go with two tubs of butter carried upon a horse, starting early in the morning and returning the same day, and selling the product of her labor at about six cents per pound. A Mr. Gilliland settled at an early day in the south-west part of the township; and Wm. Hill settled in the western part in 1807, on 150 acres of "donation lands," on which he remained till his death. This country was heavily timbered, and with the rude implements for tilling the soil then at their command—such as are suggested by the wooden plow—the early settlers experienced much difficulty and arduous labor in clearing their lands and putting in their crops. Frequently before this could be accomplished much suffering was undergone, and the problem of obtaining the necessaries of life became so difficult of solution that they were often reduced to the verge of starvation. The first school is believed to have been taught by Samuel Garwood, in a log house in the western part of the township, near the settlement of Mr. Paden, and some of the scholars who attended it were obliged to travel several miles through the woods to do so.

Frey Chapel, (of the M. E. denomination,) located in the southern part of the township, was organized with eight members about 1818. The edifice was erected in 1850. It cost $1,500, the present value of Church property, and will seat about 200 persons. Rev. — Drigs was probably the first pastor; Rev. Charles W. Foulke is the present one. The Society numbers about 62.—[Information furnished by Mr. Simeon N. Frey.]

The First Congregational Church of Conneaut, at Conneaut Center, was organized with seven members, May 2, 1833, by Rev. Peter Hassinger. The first house of worship was erected in 1841, and the present one, which will seat 300 persons, in 1873, at a cost of $2,500. The first pastor was Rev. — Hart; the present one is Rev. H. D. Loring. The Society consists of twenty-one members and its property is valued at $3,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. S. P. Warriner, Church Clerk.]

The Steamburg M. E. Church was organized with about twenty members, in 1867, by Rev. R. C. Smith, the first pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 300 persons, was erected in 1870, at a cost of $1,500, the present value of Church property. There are about thirty members, who are under the spiritual tutelage of Rev. C. W. Foulke.—[Information furnished by Mr. John Maxwell.]

CUSSEWAGO was formed in 1811. It lies upon the north border of the county, a little west of the center, and contains 23,496 square acres. The surface is a rolling upland, the highest point being about 200 feet above the surrounding country. In the eastern part of the township, north of the center, is a fine plateau, and a more extensive one in the south-western part. The valley of Cussewago Creek, south of the center of the township, is somewhat swampy and is consequently more heavily timbered and less improved. The western, central and south-eastern portions are drained by Cussewago Creek, (which flows in a southerly direction through the west part,) and its numerous branches, and the north-eastern portion by small streams which are tributary to French and Conneaut creeks. The soil in the valley of the Cussewago is a highly productive gravelly loam, interspersed occasionally with a mixture of clay and sand, the first range of farms upon either side being free from stones; that upon the uplands consists generally of a good quality of clay loam and sand, and occasionally of gravelly loam. Agriculture is a prominent industry, the attention of the farmers being directed principally to dairying and stock raising, though grain in sufficient quantity for home consumption is raised. Manufacturing is carried on to a limited extent. Among the establishments devoted to the latter branch of industry are two steam saw mills, one located one and one-half miles west of Mosiertown and owned by Bennett Bros., and the other in the south part, owned by P. L. Potter; a planing mill, located in the east part; a fork handle and stave factory, located a Mosiertown, and owned by Clark & Benjamin; and two cheese factories now in successful operation, one at Crossingville, owned by Wm. Nash & Bro., and the other located in the east part and owned by John Cole, while the building of a third one at Mosiertown is being agitated by the farmers in that vicinity.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,674, of whom 1,578 were native, 96 foreign, 1662, white and twelve, colored.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained thirteen schools and employed twenty-five teachers. The number of scholars was 438; the average number attending school, 328; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,806.39.

CROSSINGVILLE, (p. o.) is a flourishing village, pleasantly located on Cussewago Creek, in the north-west part of the township. It contains two churches, two stores, one hotel, two blacksmith shops and a cheese factory. It is surrounded by a good farming country, and derives its name from the fact that the Indians were accustomed to cross the Cussewago here.

CUSSEWAGO (Mosiertown p. o.) is situated south-east of the center, on a branch of Cussewago Creek, and is equi-distant from Crossingville, Saegertown and Venango, being within five miles of either place. It contains two churches, two stores, one hotel, blacksmith, shoe, carriage and harness shops, one of each, a tannery, which is temporarily inoperative, and eighteen or twenty dwellings.

POTTERS CORNERS (p. o.) is located in the south-west part, at the confluence of Cussewago and Little Cussewago creeks.

Settlement was commenced in 1795 by Robert Erwin, (father of Leonard Erwin,) who located on the farm on which James Hatch now resides, where he built a log house and remained several years. He married in 1802. Settlements were made in 1797 by Alex. and John Sweeney, John Chamberlin and John Clawson. The Sweeneys were brothers and natives of Ireland, and came in the spring of that year, after a three years' residence in Northumberland county. Alex. bought 1,600 acres of land, and built a log cabin on each 400 acres, in which he settled his relatives. Their united efforts were bent to the furtherance of improvements, and in a few years they were able to support a school composed of their own children. During one winter the school was attended by thirty-six scholars, all of whom were first cousins. Chamberlin was a native of New Jersey, near Trenton, where he married Elizabeth Wykoff, who was born at the same place. After his marriage he resided some time in Sussex county, whence he came to this township, where most of his children were raised. He built a cabin of such logs as he and another man could roll up. The chimney was constructed of sticks and mud, and the roof, door and floor of split poles. The openings for windows were covered with greased paper as a substitute for glass. He was obliged to carry his grist to Meadville. A bushel of grain was conveyed thither upon his back, ground, and he returned with it the same day. With his gun he provided meat for the family from the game which was abundant. Wild beasts were numerous and troublesome, especially to the stock. After a few years he built a house of hewn logs, and when it was raised, so few and scattered were the settlers, that help came from Meadville, among them the county judge. Clawson also came from New Jersey and settled about the center of the township, on the farm now occupied by his son Martin. Upon this farm is an orchard raised from seed planted by John Clawson. In it is an apple tree seventy-five years old and measuring nearly seven feet in circumference. The following year, (1798,) Jacob Hites came in from Philadelphia county and settled upon the farm on which Jacob Moyer now resides. He erected a cabin of rough logs, exhibiting the devices employed in the construction of houses of that period. Mr. David Hites, who was six years old when his father came here, says their nearest neighbor was Rev. Owen David. Michael Greeley, a Virginian, lived north of them, and Robert Erwin next north of him. Several families had located in the vicinity of Crossingville. Among those who settled about this year (1798) were Patrick and Bartholomew McBride, Miles Tinny, (natives of Ireland,) and John Donohue, a native of Delaware. Tinny on coming to this country first settled in Northumberland county, where, after a few years' residence, he married Miss Martha, daughter of Bartholomew McBride. Many of the descendants of these families still reside in this part of the country. Daniel McBride, son of Patrick, who was born within sight of the place where he now resides, says his father settled here in 1797. Donohue settled one mile from John Clawson. He built a log cabin, in which he kept bachelor's hall four years, when he erected a better house and married. He carried his supplies, except such articles as he could raise on the limited piece of ground he had cleared, on his back from Meadville. He traded his cow for a gun, with which he supplied himself with meat. Grove Lewis, a native of Bucks county, came with his family to Meadville in 1798, and to Cussewago the following year. The settlements were then very sparse, and as the product of the cleared lands was inadequate for their support, much suffering was experienced. Mr. Eber Lewis, (son of Grove,) who now resides in the north-eastern part of the township and is the only surviving soldier of the war of 1812 living in that part of the county, relates that some of his neighbors felt so keenly the pangs of hunger that they were driven to the necessity of digging up the potatoes they had planted for food, and he recollects of being obliged himself to eat bread made from sifted bran. Many of the necessities of life could be obtained no nearer than Pittsburgh, and the article of salt was worth $20 per barrel. Mr. Lewis has just obtained a pension for services rendered in the war of 1812, the installment just received amounting to about $2. John McTier came on foot from Cumberland county with his family, consisting of his wife and three children, and settled in Cussewago in November, 1799. He carried one of his children (now Mrs. Nancy McBride) all the way in his arms. He immediately commenced the erection of a log cabin, which he covered with poles, brush and moss. It had no door, the only means of ingress and egress being ladders placed within and without the wall, which was thus scaled. It was also devoid of a chimney, one corner of the building being occupied by the fire place. In this rude habitation the family lived about a year, when a more comfortable log house was built. Lewis Thickstun came from New Brunswick, N. J., in 1802, and settled on the farm on which his son William now resides. Samuel Lefever came in 1810 and moved his family in the next year. At his house, says his daughter, Mrs. P. King, was held the first township meeting. Harmon Rice moved into the county from Orange county, N. Y., in 1815, and in 1816, he settled in Cussewago, on the farm upon which his son, L. E. Rice, now lives. Thomas Potter and his two sons, (Aaron T. and Job,) natives of Connecticut, came the latter year and took up about 800 acres in the vicinity of Potter's Corners, where his grandsons, C. H. Potter and his brother, now reside, and in 1819 he moved his family here. In 1818 he built a saw mill and in 1821, a grist mill, each of which was the first of its kind in the township. Wm. Alward settled in the township in 1832, and at that late day, says his son, Daniel, the country was an almost unbroken wilderness and log houses and barns were in vogue.

Upon the farm of Mrs. L. Erwin and in other localities in that vicinity the relics, consisting of tomahawks, arrow-heads, &c., which have been exhumed indicate that there were Indian burying grounds there. It is supposed that this point on Cussewago Creek was the site of an Indian village, and that the soil was cultivated by the aborigines to some extent. Apple trees in this locality evincing great age were believed to have been planted by the Indians.

There are seven churches in the township, two at Cussewago, (Baptist and Lutheran,) two at Crossingville, (Catholic and United Brethren,) one (Seventh-day Baptist,) located in the east part of the township, near Cole's cheese factory, one (United Brethren,) at Hotchkiss' Corners, and one of the same denomination on the Saegertown road, about three-fourths of a mile from Cussewago.

Carmel Church, (Baptist,) at Cussewago, was organized with twenty members, in November, 1805, by Thomas G. Jones. The first church edifice, constructed of hewn logs, was erected in 1810; the second one, in 1839; and the present one, which will seat 250 persons, in 1856, at a cost of $1500. The first pastor was Elder Miller; the present one is Rev. J. M. Collins. The Society numbers 123; its property is valued at $2000. [Information furnished by Mr. Wm. Thickstun.

Union Church, (Lutheran and Reformed,) near Cussewago, was organized with sixteen members in 1829, by P. Yeiser, its first pastor. The first house of worship was erected in 1832, and the present one which will seat 150 persons, in 1855, at a cost of about $700. There are forty-four members who are under the pastoral care of Rev. J. Apple. The Church property is valued at $1500.—[Information furnished by Deacon Reuben Mosier.

Cussewago Church, (United Brethren in Christ,) near the Hotchkiss school house, was organized with twenty members, in 1852, by Rev. Wm. Cadman, the first pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 350 persons, was erected in 1857, at a cost of $660. The present pastor is Rev. H. F. Day, and the number of members, sixty. The Church property is valued at $1500.

The Seventh-Day Baptist Church, at Cussewago, was organized with seventeen members, in 1857, by Elder A. A. F. Randolph, the first pastor. The house of worship was erected in 1858, at a cost of $800. It will seat 175 persons. The pulpit is supplied by Rev. Joel Green. There are thirty members, and the Church property is valued at $1500.—[Information furnished by Mr. Perry Cole.]

The United Brethren in Christ Church, at Crossingville, was organized with seven members, in 1870, by Rev. Cyrus Castiline, its first pastor. The Church edifice was erected the same year. It cost $1700, and will seat 400 persons. The Church consists of thirteen members and is ministered to by Rev. Lafayette Day. The Church property is valued at $1900.—[Information furnished Mr. Wm. Ward.]

EAST FAIRFIELD was formed from Fairfield in 1869. It is an interior township, lying south of the center of the county and on the east branch of French Creek, by which it is separated from Fairfield. It covers an area of 7,734 square acres. The surface is rolling and drained by French Creek and its tributaries, the principal of which is Sugar Creek, which crosses the north-east corner of the township. The soil is very productive and is chiefly devoted to grain culture, though dairying is beginning to engage the attention of the people.

The old French Creek Canal crosses the north-west corner of the township, and the Franklin branch of the Atlantic & Great Western R. R., passes through the township along the valley of French Creek, crossing the canal within the limits of the township.

The population of the township in 1870 was 741, all of whom were white, 661 native and 80, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained five schools and employed ten teachers. The number of scholars was 220; the average number attending school, 158; and the amount expended for school purposes, $877.28.

COCHRANTON (p. v.) is pleasantly situated on French Creek, in the south angle of the township, and is the principal station on the Franklin branch of the A. & G. W. R. R., by which it is distant eleven miles south of Meadville. It is surrounded by a rich agricultural country, and is the depot for a vast amount of farm produce which seeks a market by the railroad. From the country in its immediate vicinity large quantities of ties are brought in for use on the A. & G. W. R. R. It contains three churches, (M. E., Presbyterian and United Presbyterian,) three hotels, twelve stores, a tannery, grist mill, oil barrel manufactory, three blacksmith shops, a shoe shop and had in 1870 a population of 459. It was organized as a borough April 16, 1855, and derives its name from Joseph and James Cochran, who were early settlers, bought large tracts of land and inaugurated the first substantial improvements in this locality. The present population is about 475.

SHAW'S LANDING (p. o.) is situated on French Creek, five miles above Cochranton, and on the Franklin branch of the A. & G. W. R. R. It derives its name from Peter Shaw, an old settler, and contains a hotel, store and oil refinery.

STITZERVILLE (Pettis p. o.) is located in the eastern part of the township and contains a store, saw mill and cider mill.

The first settlement, so far as we have been able to learn, was made by Henry Marley, who came from Ireland to New York in 1790, and to this township in June, 1793. He built the first house erected in the township. It was constructed of logs and was located on the Creek road. His son James J. Marley, our informant, was born in the township in 1804 and still resides here. Wm. Dean, from Westmoreland county, and John Wolford from Somerset county, came here in 1794. Dean came on horseback from Pittsburgh and arrived in April of that year. Thos. Powell, from Allegheny county, settled here in 1796; Peter Shaw, from the same county, in April, 1797; and John Adams, from Susquehanna county, in 1798. Adams located at Cochranton and commenced that village by the erection of a saw mill, in 1807. Four years from the latter settlement—in 1802—the first school house was built on the Creek road, on the place settled by Andrew Gibson. In 1803, Robert Harvey came here from Cumberland county. Walter Evans, from Lancaster county, settled in Meadville in 1810, and removed thence to this township.

The M. E. Church, at Cochranton, was organized with twelve members, in January, 1839, by Rev. Wm. Patterson, the first pastor. The church edifice was erected in 1843 and remodeled in 1870. Its original cost was $900. It will seat about 400 persons. There are seventy-five members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. John Abbott. The Church property is valued at $2,500.—[Information furnished by Mr. E. P. Slocum.]

The Presbyterian Church, at Cochranton, was organized in 1870, by Rev. David Patton, the first pastor. Their house of worship, which will seat 400 persons, was erected in 1850, at a cost of $1,500, one-half the present value of Church property. The Society is without a pastor, the pulpit being filled by supplies.—[Information furnished by Mr. John Bell.]

EAST FALLOWFIELD was formed in 1804. It lies upon the south border of the county, west of the center, and contains 16,616 square acres. The surface is hilly and drained by Crooked Creek, which separates this township from West Fallowfield and a few small streams tributary to it, the principal of which are Union and Henrys runs, the former in the northern and the latter in the southern part. The soil is gravelly. Upon the farms of J. H. and J. M. McEntire in this township, so we are informed, has been discovered a vein of anthracite coal five feet in thickness. It is the only bed of coal yet found in this part of the county. If we are correctly informed the fact disproves the opinion which is prevalent that anthracite coal does not exist west of the Alleghanies. It is doubtful however.

The manufactures of the township are of considerable and increasing importance. They consist principally of two cheese factories, one located about one and one-fourth miles from Atlantic and owned by Messrs. Findley & Breckenridge, which uses the milk of 300 cows and presses an average of eight cheeses per day, and the other, located in the north-eastern part of the township and owned by Messrs. Mellon & Co., which was started in the spring of the present year, (1873) used the milk of 200 cows, and pressed five to seven cheeses per day; McQuiston & Co's flouring mill, located on Crooked Creek, in the south-western part, which employs two persons and contains four runs of stones with a capacity for grinding sixty bushels of grain per day; J. L. Johnson's oil barrel factory, located at Atlantic, which gives employment to four persons and the annual product of which is valued at $6,000 to $10,000; and G. K. Miller's steam mills, located about one-half mile east of Atlantic, which give employment to six persons, and daily produce 10,000 feet of sawed and 5,000 feet of planed lumber, besides a quantity of nail keg headings.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. passes in a southerly direction through near the center of the township.

The population of the township in 1870, was 1,167, all of whom were white, 1,098, native and 69, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained seven schools and employed fourteen teachers. The number of scholars was 302; the average number attending school, 248; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,443.16.

ATLANTIC, (p. o.) (formerly known as Adamsville p. o.,) on the A. & G. W. R. R., is pleasantly situated on elevated ground overlooking a wide extent of country, and contains three stores, a barrel factory, stove mill, two shoe shops, a millinery shop and about fifteen dwellings. New buildings are being put up with considerable rapidity and the place gives promise of speedily becoming an active business center.

The earliest settlement which has come under our observation was made in 1792, by Thomas Frame and Daniel Miller, who came about the same time. They are reputed to have been at that time the only white settlers west of Meadville. Frame came from Dunnstown, on the Susquehanna, and settled upon a tract of 600 acres in the northern part of the township. Abner E. Frame, his son, relates that when his father started from Meadville on his exploring expedition, he took with him upon his back his rifle, camp kettle and two weeks provisions, all of which, with his camp, were consumed by fire. Thomas Smith, Thomas McMichael and Abraham Jackson came in 1798. The two former settled in the northern part of the township. Jackson came from Susquehanna county. He helped to repel the Indians in Western Pennsylvania and was a soldier in the war of 1812. Daniel Dipple came from Caroline township, Cumberland county, in 1800, at which time there were but few settlers in what is now comprised in the townships of East and West Fallowfield and Greenwood. His neighbors were Smith and McMichael before named. His death, which occurred Nov. 20, 1811, is said to have been the first in this township. Jacob Dipple, his son, who was but six years old when his father came, is still living on the old homestead. John McEntire, a native of Scotland, immigrated to this country in 1801, and took up a large tract of land in this township. John Andrews settled upon a tract of 400 acres in the north-western part of the township in 1803, having emigrated the same year from Ireland. The locality in which he settled and the country for many miles in all directions was a dense wilderness. Mr. Miller and Adams, also natives of Ireland, were his only neighbors.

Fallowfield M. E. Church, at Hannas Corners, was organized in 1872, with one hundred members, by Rev. J. A. Hume, the first and present pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 300 persons, was erected the same year, at a cost of $1,800, the present value of Church property. It has 160 members.—[Information furnished by Mr. J. D. Dunbar, trustee.]

FAIRFIELD was formed in 1811. It is situated near the center of the south border of the county and contains 10756 square acres. The surface in the north is rolling and hilly, while in the south it is generally level. It is drained by French Creek and Conneaut Outlet, which form the northern boundary, and small streams flowing into these. The soil is a gravelly loam, well adapted to the uses of the pomologist.

The population of the township in 1870 was 871, all of whom were white, 822, native and 49, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained seven schools and employed twelve teachers. The number of scholars was 323; the average number attending school, 214; and the amount expended for school purposes, $967.30.

CUSTARDS, (p. o.) situated in the north-east corner, near the line of Greenwood, contains a store and two saw mills.

CALVINS CORNERS (p. o.) is situated about two miles east and a little south of Custards. Mail is received and forwarded three times a week.

Settlement was commenced as early as 1791, in which year Joseph Dickson, from Cumberland county, located on the farm now owned by E. P. Slocum. He came alone and on foot, and it is related that at night he was accustomed to seek protection from the hostile Indians within the friendly shelter of a hollow tree. He was working at one time on French Creek, in company with Wm. Finley and B. McCormick, and in response to the sound of the horn he started for dinner. His companions did not accompany him and soon after his attention was attracted by two shots. An examination revealed the dead bodies of his two friends, who had been shot and scalped. Archibald Hill came from Ireland, where he had followed the vocation of a weaver, in 1796. The country was a dense wilderness, infested by deer, bears, wild cats, raccoons and wild turkies. He was married May 30, 1800, and died May 3, 1817, in his fifty-third year. The following year (1797) Andrew McFaden, in company with his brother John, came from Susquehanna county and settled on Conneaut Outlet, where he remained a year and a half, when he removed to Sugar Creek, and thence to Sugar Lake, where he remained till his death, in 1823, at the age of seventy-two years. At that time two Indians for every white man could be seen here. Truman Mallory came from Connecticut in 1817. He was a carpenter by trade and brought with him his square. Four families named Weller, Sweney, Dewey and Ellis came the same time. Weller was killed the same year by the fall of a tree which he felled, and Mallory made the coffin in which he was buried. During the night the wolves unearthed the coffin and gnawed through it, but owing to the approach of daylight were deterred from molesting the body.

The Reformed Church, in the eastern part of the township, was organized with five members in 1854, by Rev. L. L. Liverman, and the church edifice, which will seat 300 persons, was erected in 1859, at a cost of $1250. The first pastor was Rev. John Kutzing. The Society numbered twenty-five and its property is valued at $1300.—[Information furnished by Mr. Andrew M. Hanes.]

Mumford Chapel, (M. E.) in the northern part, was organized with twenty-five members, in 1859, by Rev. John Abbott, the first and present pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 200 persons, erected in 1861, at a cost of $1200. The Society numbers forty and its property is valued at $1400.—[Information furnished by Mr. Wm. Hurt.]

GREENWOOD was formed in 1830. It lies upon the south border of the county, west of the center, and contains 19387 square acres. The major portion of its northern boundary is formed by Conneaut Outlet. The surface is generally level, being a little broken in the north-east part. Conneaut Marsh, which extends along the north border, is about half a mile wide and from 100 to 200 feet below the general level of the land. It is well watered by springs of pure water which give rise to numerous small streams flowing north into Conneaut Outlet, and to Little Sandy Creek and Sandy Run, which flow south-east, all eventually mingling their waters with those of the Allegheny. The soil is a fertile, gravelly loam, well adapted to dairying and fruit culture. The timber consists of beech, maple, pine and hemlock, Its numerous springs of wholesome water constitute it a healthy township.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. extends through the north part.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,782, of whom 1,761 were native, 21, foreign, 1,771, white and 11, colored.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained thirteen schools and employed twenty-two teachers. The number of scholars was 603; the average number attending school, 460; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,785.61.

GENEVA (p. v.) (formerly known as Suttons Corners, which name it derived from John Sutton, who still resides there,) is situated in the northern part on the A. & G. W. R. R. and contains two churches, a school house, two hotels, seven stores, two wagon shops, five blacksmith shops, a telegraph office, shoe shop, harness shop, tin shop, about 100 dwellings and 400 inhabitants. It was incorporated as a borough Jan. 23, 1872.

SANDY CREEK is located in the southern part, on Little Sandy Creek. The post office at this place was discontinued in 1872.

GRINNELS is a hamlet located a little north of the center of the township.

WEST GREENWOOD is situated in the west part, a little south of the center.

Settlement is believed to have commenced soon after the settlement of the Meads at Meadville, by Asher and William Williams, who took up 800 acres of land, but our information is not sufficiently authentic to clearly establish the date. Abraham Martin settled here in 1794 and died in 1820. Samuel Anderson, from Sherman, came in 1796, and settled upon a tract of 400 acres in the central part of the township. At that time the nearest market was Pittsburgh. In 1797 Richard Custard, a native of Chester county, came from the west branch of the Susquehanna and settled upon a tract of 400 acres in the eastern part, where for some time he kept a hotel. John McMichael came from the Susquehanna to Meadville, in 1797, and remained there one winter, when he removed to the western part of this township. In 1799 he erected a saw mill and grist mill, the first erected in the township. Robert Adams emigrated from Ireland to Philadelphia, in 1799, and came to this township in 1801, with a yoke of oxen. He located on the farm now owned by George Adams. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and died May 17, 1844. Alexander Clark and Thomas Abbott came in 1802. Clark was a Virginian and settled on a tract of 400 acres. His son, John R. Clark, our informant, was then two years old. Abbott came from New Jersey and located on the site of Geneva. He died in 1854, in his 72d year. John Sutton, a native of New Jersey, came with his father of the same name in 1803. They came the entire way with a wagon. The same year Francis Porter, from Cumberland county, came with a five horse team, having to chop a road for many miles, and settled upon a tract of land upon which the Presbyterian church now stands. Wm. Brooks emigrated from Ireland to Philadelphia in 1798, and removed thence in company with John Cook and family and John Dermant to the bank of Shenango creek in South Shenango. In 1808 he settled in this township, on the farm now owned by Alexander Caldwell. He was a soldier in 1812, and in 1813 he removed to Geneva. Joseph Thacher came from Washington county in 1810, in company with his wife and two children and his wife's sister and her two children. They came from Pittsburgh on horseback, his wife also on horse back, carrying the children while he went ahead. He was drafted in 1812, and during his absence his wife threshed the grain with a flail. He died in 1862, aged 72 years. John M. Wood, a native of Vermont, settled in the township about 1812. Peter Smith who came from Blooming Valley, in Woodcock township, was the first merchant in Geneva. He sold the first goods in 1860, at which time, he says, that borough contained but six or eight shanties and not a single painted house.

Greenwood Free Will Baptist Church was organized with six members, Jan. 22, 1832, by Rev. George Collins, the first pastor. The Church edifice was erected in 1843. The building of a new one is contemplated. It is to be constructed of brick and cost about $3000. There are 104 members. The pastor is Rev. A. C. Bush.—[Information furnished by Mr. William Thacher.

Greenfield Presbyterian Church, in the south-west corner of the township, was organized with twenty members, June 22, 1854. The church edifice was erected the same year at a cost of $1500. It will seat 250 persons. The first pastor was Rev. George Scott, but previous to his installation (June 27, 1860,) the pulpit was supplied by Rev. James Coulter and others. The present pastor is Rev. I. W. McVitty. The Society consists of forty-five members; its property is valued at $1250.—[Information furnished by Mr. James Hamilton.

The Church of the United Brethren in Christ, at Geneva, was organized with four members, in 1870, by Rev. P. W. Ish, the first pastor, and the house of worship which will seat 500 persons, was erected in 1871, at a cost of $2700. The pastor is Rev. — Everts, and the number of members, twenty-four. The Church property is valued at $2800.—[Information furnished by Mr. I. D. Christ, class leader]

HAYFIELD was formed in 1830. It is an interior township, lying a little north-west of the center of the county and contains 22,641 square acres. The surface is well drained by French and Cussewago creeks and their numerous tributaries. The former of these creeks forms the eastern boundary of the township, and the latter flows in a southerly direction through the town a little west of the center.

The population of the township in 1870, was 1,824, of whom 1,732 were native, 92, foreign, 1,821, white and three, colored.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained sixteen schools and employed thirty teachers. The number of scholars was 464; the average number attending school, 358; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,129.25.

COONS CORNERS (p. o.) is a hamlet, situated on the Cussewago Creek, a little west of the center of the township, and contains two churches, a store, blacksmith shop, carriage shop, two shoe shops and a few dwellings.

LYTTLES CORNERS, (p. o.) situated one mile west of Coons Corners, contains one church, two stores, three steam and one water power saw mills, a shingle mill, turning establishment, grist mill, tannery, shoe shop, and about twenty dwellings.

We are not advised of the date of the first settlement, nor by whom it was made. Coonrad Cole, who settled here 1802, is said to be the first man who crossed the Alleghanies with a wagon. He cut his own road. After few years residence in this township he removed to the east bank of French Creek, where he raised four sons and four daughters.

The M. E. Church at Coons Corners, was organized with twelve members in 1844, by Rev. — McClellen, the first pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 300 persons, was erected in 1848, at a cost of $700, twice the present value of the Church property. There are thirteen members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. — Brown.—[Information furnished by Mr. Joseph Cease.]

The M. E. Church, at Lyttles Corners, was organized with nine members, in 1852, by Rev. J. K. Hallock, the first pastor. Their house of worship was erected in 1865. It cost $1,700, and will seat 400 persons. The Society, which numbers seventy, is ministered to by Rev. A. R. Rich, and its property is valued at $2,500.—[Information furnished Mr. A. DeForest.]

The Lutheran Church of Hayfield, at Blacks Corners, was organized with fourteen members, in 1854, by Rev. J. A. Nuner, the first pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 200 persons, was erected the same year, at a cost of $400. The present pastor is Rev. D. M. Kemerer, and the number of members, eighteen. The Church property is valued at $550.—[Information furnished by Mr. Roderick Frazier.]

The Christodelphian Church of Hayfield, at Coons Corners, was organized with twelve members, in 1861. They do not have a pastor. They meet the "first day of the week," their worship consisting in prayers, thanksgivings and the breaking of bread. The Society, which numbers twenty-four, has no property of its own, and worships in the house of the Baptists.—[Information furnished by Mr. T. H. Dunn, Lecturer.]

The Church of the United Brethren, at Blacks Corners, was organized with forty members, in 1869, by Rev. Silas Casterline, the first pastor. The church edifice was erected in 1870, at a cost of $1,700, and will seat 250 persons. There are thirty members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. Reuben D. Day. The Church property is valued at $2,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. Hermon Rice.]

MEAD was formed in 1790. It is an interior township, lying upon the east bank of French Creek, a little south of the center of the county, and contains 25,472 square acres. The surface is hilly, but the soil produces good crops, especially in the valley of French Creek, where it is very fertile and supports a wealthy population. French Creek forms the western boundary and is the principal stream, the only other considerable stream being Sugar Creek, which drains the eastern and western portions of the township. The farmers are chiefly engaged in dairying and stock raising. Manufacturing, in the city of Meadville, forms an important branch of industry.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. and the Franklin branch of that road, extend in a continuous line through the township, along the valley of French Creek. The main line crosses the creek a little south of Meadville. The old Erie Canal feeder also extends through the township, along the valley of the creek, from Bemustown, its northern terminus.

The population in 1870, exclusive of the city of Meadville, was 2,421, of whom 2,073 were native, 348, foreign, 2,398, white and 23, colored.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township, exclusive of the city, contained sixteen schools and employed nineteen school teachers. The number of scholars was 503; the average number attending school, 332; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,398.36. The city contained twenty-one schools and employed twenty-four teachers, all of whom were females. The number of scholars was 1,214; the average number attending school, 800; and the amount expended for school purposes, $28,296.92.

MEADVILLE, the seat of justice of Crawford county, is situated in the rich and picturesque valley of French Creek, about the center of the west border of the township, and on the line of the A. & G. W. R. R. and the Canal feeder. The fine hills which surround it rise gently from the creek, presenting a beautiful and varied landscape and affording many eligible building sites. A commendable appreciation of these advantages is evinced in the ornate and substantial public buildings and the many elegant and costly private residences which adorn its streets and lend an additional charm to the otherwise attractive scenery. A public park inclosing about five acres of ground is centrally located, and adjacent to it are situated the county buildings, which have previously been described. Meadville is named in honor of David Mead, its founder. It was incorporated as a borough March 29, 1823, and received a city charter Feb. 15, 1866. It contains four wards, and had, in 1870, a population of 7,103, of which number 1,661 were in the first ward, 1,961, in the second, 1,635, in the third and 1,846, in the fourth. It is the seat of Allegheny College, and the Meadville Theological School, and contains a Business College—one of the Bryant & Stratton chain of colleges—four banks—the First National, established in 1863, with a capital of $200,000; the Merchants' National, established in 1864, with a capital of $100,000; the Meadville Savings Bank, established in 1867; and J. R. Dick & Co.'s Banking Office, established in 1853—a new elegant and commodious opera house, and various manufacturing establishments, prominent among which are the Meadville Agricultural Implement Works, which were established Dec. 29, 1868, with a capital of $100,000, and give employment to about seventy persons; the Dick Foundry and Machine Works, established in 1864, with a capital of $30,000, and giving employment to about thirty persons; the Eagle Foundry and Machine Works, the oldest establishment of the kind in the city, which employ thirty persons; the Meadville Woolen Factory, which gives employment to seventy-five persons in the manufacture of cassimeres, flannels, blankets and yarn; Sayer & Co.'s Planing Mill, which was established in 1865, with a capital of $25,000, and gives employment to fifteen men; Thomas & Harper's Sash and Blind Factory, employing twenty men and a capital of $20,000; O. C. Whitney's Cabinet Organ and Melodeon Manufactory, which gives constant employment to a large number of persons; A. McMichael's and J. A. Dunn & Co.'s Carriage Factories, the former of which was established in 1866, and the latter in 1857, the aggregate annual product of which is valued at $45,000; a Stave Factory, employing fifteen men and a capital of $8,000; and the Meadville Tannery, which was established in 1860, and the annual product of which is valued at about $20,000.

Allegheny College was projected at a meeting of the intelligent citizens of Meadville, which was held June 20, 1815. The main building was erected in 1816—17, and the school was opened July 4, 1816, though it was not incorporated until March 24, 1817. Its establishment is mainly due to the enlightened efforts and untiring zeal of Rev. Timothy Alden, D. D., its first president, to whom, also, it is largely indebted for the valuable library in its possession, the most liberal contributor to which was Rev. Dr. Bentley, a Unitarian clergyman, of Salem, Mass. When chartered it received a grant from the State of $2,000, which was subsequently increased to $7,000. The patronage received from the Presbyterians, under whose auspices it was started, was inadequate to its support and the institution languished. In 1829, an unsuccessful attempt was made to establish a military school; and in 1833, its care devolved upon the Erie and Pittsburgh Conference of the M. E. Church, under whom it has become a flourishing institution. In 1851, a large three-story brick structure, containing the chapel, library, laboratory, &c., was erected east of the main building, at a cost of $6,000, and in 1864, through the munificence of Hon. C. V. Culver, was built and furnished the commodious boarding hall, which stands opposite the building erected in 1851, and is capable of accommodating over one hundred students with lodgings. The college is situated north of the city, upon elevated ground, which overlooks the valley and surrounding hills. It enjoys the use of a valuable collection of astronomical instruments, complete and most approved chemical and philosophical apparatus, and extensive and well selected conchological, lithological, paleontological and entomological cabinets; and a commencement has been made in the formation of a museum to illustrate the history of the Fine Arts.

The Meadville Theological School was established by the efforts of the Unitarians, in 1844, and has an endowment of real and personal property of about $150,000. Though denominational in tendency the act of incorporation declares that "no doctrinal test shall ever be made a condition of enjoying the opportunities of instruction in the School, except a belief in the divine origin of Christianity." Applicants unknown to the officers of the institution are required to produce satisfactory testimonials of good character before their admission; and those desiring advanced standing must have completed the studies previously pursued by the class they propose to enter. No charge is made for tuition, nor for the use of the library and text books, and students who bring satisfactory evidence of their need may receive aid from the Beneficiary Fund. The library contains about 12,000 volumes, about 1,200 of which are text books. Private and public libraries, containing more than 10,000 volumes, are also open for the use of students.

Meadville is the headquarters of the 20th Division of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, comprising the Meadville Zouaves, German Rifles, Conneautville Zouaves, Conneautville Greys and a colored company of Titusville.

St. Joseph's Hospital, situated near the eastern end of Pine street, in a quiet, pleasant and healthy locality, was established as an asylum for orphans, in 1865, by mother Agnes, Sister Superior of the sisters of charity of this city, who drew largely upon her own private means for the construction of the building and the care of its unfortunate inmates. Not only orphans, but many others sick, wounded, or destitute found food and shelter in this institution. The rapid growth of the city made the need of a building to be devoted to the exclusive uses of a hospital more and more felt, and as the means were not available for its erection application was made to the Legislature at its session in 1869—70 for the conversion of this asylum into a hospital. A charter was granted under the present title, and provides that patients shall be received without regard to sect or condition. The institution is in charge of a competent physician and surgeon, and is under the supervision of the Sisters of Charity. It is heated by furnaces and supplied with pure water from a spring, and is capable of accommodating about thirty patients. It is self-supporting, and while those receiving its benefits who possess the means are expected to pay, no applicant is rejected by reason of his or her inability to do so. Thus, while Meadville has made ample and excellent provision for the scholastic needs of its youth, this establishment, which stands as an enduring monument to the energy, earnest devotion and noble self-sacrifice of those who projected and continue to sustain it, shows that its physical requirements have not been overlooked.

FRENCHTOWN (p. o.) is located in the eastern part of the township, and derives its name from the fact that its inhabitants are principally French. It contains a church, (Roman Catholic,) a school, store, blacksmith shop and about twenty dwellings.

MEAD CORNERS (p. o.) is situated a little east of the center of the township.

Settlement was commenced by the first settlers of the county. In the summer of 1787, John and David Mead, from Northumberland county, explored the valley of French Creek with a view to making it their future home. The favorable report which their impressions enabled them to give induced seven others to accompany them the following spring to this locality for the purpose of settlement. The party comprised, besides the two already named, Joseph Mead, Thomas Martin, John Watson, James T. Randolph, Thomas Grant, Cornelius Van Horne and Christopher Snyder. The latter two were from New Jersey, and arrived at Sunbury, whence the party started, while preparations for the journey were in progress. This little band of pioneers reached French Creek on the 12th of May, and spent the first night on the east side of that stream, near "Kennedy's Bridge." The next day they crossed the creek, above the mouth of Cussewago Creek, and erected a temporary place of abode. Ten acres were plowed in a field, which had previously been cleared by some unknown party, and planted with corn. A freshet in the stream soon after destroyed the crop and the piece was replanted in June, and yielded a good crop, which was considered common property. The site of Meadville was first settled by Thomas Grant, who, for some reason, left it in the fall and returned to Northumberland county. John and David Mead brought their families here that fall, and the latter, who had previously selected a place immediately south of his brother's, on the west side of the creek, about a mile above Meadville, crossed the Creek and occupied the place abandoned by Grant. Mead erected a double log house, which was the first one built upon the site of the city which perpetuates his name. The families of the Meads were the first to settle in the county. The remainder of the party located on the west side of the creek, principally upon the point of land formed by the confluence of French and Cussewago creeks. Having fully established themselves in their new homes, their number was soon increased by other settlers, among whom were Samuel Lord, John Wentworth and Frederick Haymaker. In 1789, they were joined by Frederick Baum, Robert FitzRandolph and Darius Mead, the father of John and David Mead; and these were soon followed by many others, so that the colony became respectable in numbers, as well as in the character of those who composed it.

In this year occurred the first birth in the county — that of Sarah Mead—in the family of David Mead; and a saw mill was commenced by the same individual, and was completed the following year. From this mill in the spring of 1790, was sent to Pittsburgh, together with a raft of logs, the first raft of boards which descended the Allegheny. The lumber was sold for twelve shillings per hundred to Major Isaac Craig, who was Quartermaster to the troops located at that place. These early settlers were obliged to transport their provisions and utensils from Pittsburgh, or the more distant Susquehanna country, whence many of them came, through dense forests, devoid of roads, and over bridgeless streams. For a long time the streams were their only common highways, and along these, as might be expected, the settlements were first projected. But in addition to the hardships and privations incident to pioneer life, they were for several years harassed and subjected to imminent peril by the frequent warlike incursions of the bands of hostile Indians who infested this country, and who so long retarded its settlement and for some time threatened the utter expulsion of the whites, who were too few in number to cope successfully with their wily adversary. Happily, however, a few of the nomadic Indians preserved their friendship for the whites, to whom they rendered valuable aid by giving timely warning of the approach of their enemies. Among these were a chief named Canadaughta, and his three sons, Flying Cloud, Standing Stone and Big Sun, who occupied wigwams at the mouth of Conneaut Creek, in Ohio; Halftown, also a chief, and half-brother of the celebrated chief Cornplanter; an old chief named Strike Neck, and an Indian named Wire Ears. During the year 1790 the settlers tilled their farms without molestation, but about the first of April, 1791, they were apprised by Flying Cloud of a contemplated attack by the western Indians, who were then on their way to the settlement. This was corroborated by Wm. Gregg, who reported having seen eleven strange Indians four miles north-west of Meadville. Immediate preparations for flight were made, and on the second day of April, the women and children were sent in canoes down French Creek, under the escort of six of Halftown's warriors on each side of the stream, to Franklin, a small military post established in 1787, where were about forty effective men. That chief, at the head of his remaining warriors, some fifteen in number, then acted in concert with the whites, who remained to guard their property. They lay in wait during the day at Kennedy's Bridge, on the east side of the creek, expecting the enemy would ford the stream at that place, but as nothing further was seen of them they retired at night to the house of David Mead, which had been fortified by means of a stockade and rendered capable of defence against small arms. The next day the settlers, after consultation, started for the fort at Franklin, to rejoin their families. They arrived at their destination on the fourth, with their cattle and moveable effects, accompanied by Halftown and his men. After a month's stay at the garrison three of the party (Cornelius VanHorne, Wm. Gregg and Thomas Ray,) returned to the farms they were obliged temporarily to abandon for the purpose of putting in their spring crops, but the hazardous adventure resulted in the death of Gregg, at the hands of the Indians, and the capture of both VanHorne and Ray, both of whom, however, effected their escape and subsequently became useful and honored citizens, the former locating in the township of Vernon, and the latter on the east side of the creek, above Bemustown, where he died. This same year witnessed the capture and death of Darius Mead, by the same agency. He was made a prisoner while engaged in plowing in a field adjacent to the fort, by two Indians, and is supposed to have met his death while attempting an escape, as his dead body was subsequently found lying beside that of one of his captors, near the Shenango Creek, in Mercer county. The year 1791 was one of extreme peril to the settlers on the western border of the State, as owing to the defeat of the army under Harmer in the early part of the year, and that under St. Clair in November, they were left almost entirely to the mercy of their savage enemies. Being thus exposed, the settlements in this county were abandoned, and the locality was only visited by scouting parties and surveyors. In the spring of 1793, Gen. Wayne having been appointed to command the army, and confidence in a measure restored, the settlers returned and were joined by others from the Susquehanna country. At their solicitation Gen. Wayne detached a company of twenty-four men, under command of Ensign Lewis Bond, from his army to protect them while engaged in putting in their crops. This company was stationed at the house of David Mead, before alluded to. During the summer it was recalled to join the main army, and soon after its departure the settlers were again notified by the friendly Flying Cloud that their old foes were about to make another descent upon them. Being without any adequate protection they had no alternative but to flee to the fort at Franklin, or continue to cultivate their lands at the peril of life. Prudence dictated the former course and consequently the improvements were again abandoned. Some, however, of the more resolute ones returned in the fall and winter of the same year, in defiance of the dangers which beset them. In the spring of 1794 nearly all the old settlers had returned and many new ones had joined them. Many improvements were instituted; municipal law began to be enforced, and a militia company, of which Cornelius VanHorne was elected captain, was organized. The settlers resolved to defend themselves and their homes against the assaults and barbarities of their savage foes, and the more effectually to effect this object a rude but serviceable block-house, mounting a cannon in the upper story, and surmounted by a sentry-box, was constructed on a triangular lot, at the corner of Water Street and Steer's alley. It was built of logs, and the upper story projected beyond the lower one. In 1828, having served at various times as a school house, carpenter shop, blacksmith shop and tenement house, it was removed to make way for the improvements of the growing village. The lot on which it stood was donated by Mr. Mead for school purposes. It was subsequently transferred by the Legislature to the Meadville Female Seminary, and by the trustees of that institution was sold to Thomas Wilson.

Prior to the enforcement of municipal law it must not be presumed that the social intercourse of the settlers was characterized by entire harmony; on the contrary disputes hot and fierce often occurred, and were sometimes settled with their fists, but more frequently by the arbitrament of a disinterested party. A somewhat singular instance of this character is related in which a dispute between David Mead and John Wentworth, relative to a field of corn which the one agreed to cultivate for the other, was referred to two strangers who were passing through the village at the time and were accosted by the disputants on Water street. They immediately unslung their knapsacks and, having listened to the statements of both parties, rendered a decision which gave mutual satisfaction, when they resumed their journey. David Mead was the first commissioned justice of the peace in the county, an office which he held till 1799, when he became one of the Associate Judges of the county. One of the first cases on his docket was an action for debt, in which he was plaintiff and Robert Fitz Randolph, defendant. Unfortunately when the Governor gave the people a justice he forgot to give the justice a constable. Here was a novel dilemma, but Mead did not suffer it to defeat the ends of justice. He issued and served the summons himself, and when the day of hearing came a trial was had and a judgment rendered the plaintiff for the amount of his claim. He then issued and served an execution, levying upon a horse, the property of the defendant, which he advertised for sale. He put up the notices, and at the sale, over which he presided, he bought the horse, and paid the surplus proceeds over to the defendant.

During this year (1794) the settlers worked their farms in small companies, ever on the alert to avert the danger which constantly threatened them. Great anxiety was felt for the safety of the women and children, and when imminent danger was apprehended they sought security in the house and cellar of David Mead, a precaution which subsequent events proved to be a wise one. On the 10th of August of that year, a settler named James Dickson, a native of Scotland, who lived to a good old age and left a numerous and respectable family, while searching for his cows on the eastern bank of French Creek, almost within sight of the block house, was fired upon by a party of Indians in ambush. One ball passed through his left hand, a second one inflicted a wound in the hip and a third, in the right shoulder. Supposing the attacking party had discharged all their guns, and being desirous to return the compliment, as he had his gun with him, he endeavored to discover the concealed foe. When the smoke had sufficiently cleared away he discovered the barrel of another gun leveled at him, and concluding that the head of the individual holding it was not far distant from the end opposite that directed toward him, he raised his gun to fire, but before he could do so the weapon pointed at him was discharged, and the ball passed through his hat, grazing the top of his head. Disliking to be made the target of a concealed foe the bold Scotchman retorted with a shout of defiance and called upon "the cowardly dogs to come and fight him fair." Eager to accept the challenge, or goaded by the caustic rebuke, two of the Indians sprang from their concealment and rushed toward him, tomahawk in hand. Each covered his advance by dodging behind trees, evidently fearing the Scot's rifle, which was yet undischarged. Seeing that his retreat to the blockhouse was likely to be cut off, Dickson rushed toward the Indian on his right, and as he advanced the latter retreated. He repeated this maneuver several times, all the time reserving his fire, and having gained the shelter of the woods he endeavored to reach an old log cabin, intending when there to revenge the injury he had sustained before trying his speed, wounded as he was, in a foot race to the blockhouse. Before he reached the cabin, the Indians abandoned the pursuit and were seen no more, though Flying Cloud, and three or four others, having heard the firing, immediately started in pursuit, in which Dickson was with difficulty dissuaded by his wife and friends from joining. "The old man insisted to the day of his death, that once, when he was just in the act of firing, a low voice said to him, 'Don't shoot'; whereupon he reserved his load, and thereby preserved his life." The last depredation committed by the Indians in this county, resulting in loss of life, occurred on the 3d of June, 1795, when James Findley and Barnabas McCormick were surprised and shot dead while engaged in splitting rails about six miles south-west of Meadville. The treaty made by General Wayne with the western Indians, August 3, 1795, and ratified the 22d of the following December, brought peace to the settlers in North-Western Pennsylvania, so far as Indian hostilities were concerned.

With the cessation of these depredations was inaugurated a period of substantial growth, and improvements of a permanent character were commenced. Roads were laid out and more comfortable houses built, and settlers who had previously been deterred by the unsettled condition of the country, came in large numbers. A saw mill, the construction of which had been commenced some time before, was completed in 1789.

Among the settlers, who moved in about this time was Wm. Williams, who came from Perry county, through the woods, with a wagon drawn by a span of horses, in 1796, and located near the State road in the northern part of the township. Nearly two months were consumed in making the journey, and for several days he was followed by a panther. He cleared his farm and lived upon it the remainder of his days. James De France came from Lycoming county the same year, to the south-eastern part of the township, and took up one hundred acres and purchased fifty more of the Holland Land Company. After a residence there of several years, he removed to Mercer county. Daniel Holton came from Rhode Island in 1796, and located at Meadville. In 1815, he removed to Union township. Samuel Hobbs and James Hunter came in 1799. Hobbs was from Vermont and located at Meadville. After a year or two he married and took up a farm in the northern part of the township. Hunter was from Logan's Ferry, Allegheny county, and settled in the central part. During the first night after his arrival he was awakened by his dog—his only companion—and discovered near the fire he had kindled a bear, which he shot. This, with a deer he shot about daylight, furnished him with plenty of meat for some time. He cleared a part of his land, put in some crops and made some other improvements, when he returned to his former home, where he married in April 1801. He returned here with his wife the following month. David Thurston came from New Jersey, in 1800, and settled in the south-east part of the township, where he took up a farm on which he resided till his death. Peter Kinney and James McDill settled in the same locality about the same time. Kinney was a native of Ireland, and settled upon the farm on which one of his sons still resides. McDill was a Revolutionary soldier and was accustomed to ride to Meadville upon an ox to draw his pension. The same ox served to carry his wife to meeting, sometimes a distance of several miles. Bariah Battles settled upon the site of Frenchtown, in 1800, and lived there for many years, finally removing to Ohio. He was a carpenter and found employment at his trade in finishing log houses. A little later Joseph Baird settled in the southern part of the township.

Meadville was laid out in 1795, and in 1800, upon the erection of the county, was made the county seat. In 1802 an act was passed incorporating a seminary of learning, and David Mead and six others were appointed trustees. In the fall of 1805, a one story brick building, containing two rooms, was completed, in the extreme eastern part of the village, and in this was opened, the same year, the Meadville Academy, under the supervision of Rev. Joseph Stockton, who, in addition to an extensive scientific course, taught Latin and Greek. The building stood about twenty years, when it was removed by Arthur Cullum, who had purchased the lot, to make room for a dwelling house.

St. Paul's Reformed Church, in Meadville, was organized in 1800, with forty-nine members, by Rev. L. D. Leberman. The present church edifice was erected in 1856, at a cost of $12,000, the present value of Church property, and will seat 600 persons. The first pastor was Rev. — Eblinghous; the present one is Rev. D. D. Lebenman. The present number of members is 140.—[Information furnished by Mr. J. L. Lebenman.

The First Presbyterian Church of Meadville, (O. S.) was organized in 1800, by the Presbytery of Erie. The first house of worship was erected in 1818; the present one, which will seat 600 persons, in 1874, at a cost of $40,000. Rev. Joseph Stockton was the first pastor, and Rev. J. Gordon Carnahan, our informant, is the present one. The Society numbers 265, and its property is valued at $60,000.

Mead's Corners Baptist Church was organized about 1820, with fourteen members, by Mr. Ju-tin Dewey. Their house of worship was erected in 1840, at a cost of $1000, one-half of the present value of Church property. It will seat 200 persons. The first pastor was Elder Enos Stewart; the present one is Rev. David J. Williams, our informant. The Church consists of eighty-four members.

The First M. E. Church of Meadville, was organized with twenty members, in 1825, by Rev. R. C. Hatton, and erected their first house of worship in 1830. The present edifice, which will seat 1,500 persons, was erected in 1866, at a cost of $95,000, the present value of Church property. The first pastor was Rev. J. W. Hill, the present one is Rev. W. W. Wythe, our informant. The Society consists of 463 members.

Christ Church, (Protestant Episcopal,) at Meadville, was organized with thirty-four members, by members of the Protestant Episcopal Church, assisted by Rev. (afterwards Bishop,) J. Hopkins, in 1825, and their church edifice, which will seat 500 persons, was erected the following year, at a cost of $8,000. The first pastor was Rev. — Miller. Rev. Wm. G. W. Lewis, our informant, is the present one. The Church numbers 140, and its property is valued at $15,000.

The First Independent Society, (Unitarian,) at Meadville, was organized in 1830, by H. J. Huidekoper, A. Cullum and others. Their church edifice was erected in 1832, at a cost of $5,000. It will seat 500 persons. The first pastor was Rev. E. Peabody; but at present the pulpit is unoccupied. The Society numbers fifty; its property is valued at $20,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. A. A. Livermore.

The First Baptist Church of Meadville, was organized with sixteen members, in 1831, by Rev. — Foote and a council of churches, and in 1833 was erected their first house of worship. The present edifice, which will seat 400 persons, was built in 1843-5, and has recently been repaired and an organ added to its attractions. The Society, which comprises 265 members, is under the pastoral care of Elder Wm. B. Grow, our informant. The first pastor was Elder Adrian Foote.

St. Hippolytus Church, (Roman Catholic,) at Frenchtown, was organized by Bishop Kanrick, in 1834, in which year was erected their first house of worship. The first pastor was Rev. M. A. DeLaroque : the present one is Rev. Eugene Cogneville, our informant. Their present house was erected in 1866, at a cost of about $2,500, about one-half the present value of Church property. It will seat 250 persons. There are about 500 members.

The Second Presbyterian Church at Meadville, was organized in 1839, with Rev. E. W. Kellogg as the first pastor, and erected their house of worship, which will seat 500 persons, in 1843, at a cost of $15,000. There are 290 members, who are under the spiritual tutelage of Rev. R. Craighead. The Church property is valued at $20,000.

State Street M. E. Church, at Meadville, was organized in June, 1869, and their house of worship, which will seat 400 persons, erected in that year and the one following. The first pastor was Rev. T. P. Warner ; the present one is Rev. J. S. Albertson, our informant. The Society numbers 150 ; its property is valued at $9,000.

Pine Grove M. E. Church was organized at a very early day, but in what year we are not advised. The church edifice, which is situated six miles east of Meadville, and will seat about 300 persons, was erected in 1858, at a cost of about $1000. The Society, numbering eighteen, is ministered to by Rev. John Abbott, and the property is valued at about $1,500,—[Information furnished by Mr. Francis Brawley.]

The African M. E. Church, at Meadville, was organized with five members, by Jacob Palmer, the first pastor, but in what year we are not advised. Their house of worship will seat 270 persons. Its original cost was $500. It was repaired in 1867, and the property of the Church is valued at $3,000. There are fifty-two members. The pastor is Rev. J. Morris. —[Information furnished by Mr. Richard Henderson.]

The State Road M. E. Church erected their first meeting house about 1824, and the present one, which is located on the State road, four miles north-east of Meadville, and will seat about 400 persons, in 1847, at a cost of about $1,500. The Society numbers about sixty, and its property is valued at about $2,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. Athan A. Williams.]

St. Bride's Catholic Church.—We have been unable to obtain any data relative to this Church, or the German Lutheran.

NORTH SHENANGO was formed together with South and West Shenango in 1811. It lies upon the west border of the county, south of the center, and contains 15,865 square acres. It is watered by Shenango Creek and several small streams flowing into it, the principal of which is Bennett's Run, which drains the central portion, flowing north-west. Shenango Creek enters the township from Sadsbury, near the south-east corner, and flowing in a north-westerly direction through Pymatuning Swamp, which impinges on the north border, forms the major portion of the north boundary, when it deflects to the south-west, crossing the line in its course into Ohio a short distance, when it again enters the township and finally leaves it in the south-west corner. The surface is level, and the soil of good quality, producing excellent crops. That part of the township in the north, covered by swamps, is but little cleared, while the southern part is in a good state of cultivation. The inhabitants, though chiefly engaged in dairying and stock raising give some attention to lumbering.

The Erie & Pittsburgh R. R. passes through the central part of the township.

The population in 1870 was 901, of whom 866 were native, 35, foreign, 898, white and three, colored.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained seven schools and employed fifteen teachers. The number of scholars was 301; the average number attending school, 189; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,390.15.

ESPYVILLE, (p. o.) situated in the western part, about one mile from the E. & P. R. R., contains a church, store, school house, wagon shop, shoe shop, paint shop, three blacksmith shops, a saw mill and about twenty dwellings. It derives its name from George Espy, an early settler there.

D. & J. F. Patton's Steam Saw Mill, located at Espyville station, gives employment to twelve persons and cuts about 600,000 feet of lumber, 1,500,000 shingles and 500,000 lath per annum.

STEWARTSVILLE, (North Shenango p. o.) is situated on Bennetts Run, in the eastern part of the township.

Indications that the country embraced within the limits of this township was occupied by a race of people versed in the arts of civilization, at a period long anterior to the advent of the present inhabitants, are found in the remains of fortifications and relics of an early period exhumed in their vicinity; but whether these evidences are referable to the operations of the French in this locality, or to a period anterior to their occupancy can at present only be conjectured. These forts, which are circular in form, are located on Shenango Creek, about one-fourth of a mile apart, and each covers an area of half an acre to an acre. The outlines of two of them are still discernable, the glacis being two to three feet high, and the rifle pits of similar depth. Upon these embankments large trees have grown, which give evidence of their great age, while within old gun barrels, fragments of human bones and other relics of an earlier age have been disclosed. Andrew Linn, while opening a spring in the northern part of the township, disclosed a portion of a stone wall, which, though evidently a piece of masonry, does not sufficiently indicate its design.

The present settlement was commenced as early as 1798, in which year David McKee and Anthony Bennett, from Susquehanna county, located—the former in the south-western part, near Espyville, and the latter in the northern part. McKee came with an ox team to Meadville and thence through the woods, guided by blazed trees to his place of settlement, where he arrived in the spring of the year. Bennett built the first saw and grist mills in the township, upon the stream which bears his name. The following year Sidney Herriott and Henry Bennett became settlers. Herriott was from New Jersey, though he had lived two years at Williamsport, Pa., and located in the northern part of the township. He came from Pittsburgh on foot. Bennett came from Northumberland county and settled a little east of the center. He came up French Creek by canoe to Meadville, and lived on the farm upon which he settled the remainder of his days. Sam'l Barackman settled in the northern part in April, 1800. He came from Susquehanna county the previous year, but remained during the winter in Greenwood. He had to cut a road through the woods from Hartstown in order to reach his destination with his ox team. When he first came he was obliged to go to Sugar Creek, a distance of about thirty miles, to get his grinding done. The journey there and back usually occupied two days, sometimes much longer. Several years later a grist mill was built at Colts Station, in the southern part of Conneaut township, and thither, across the swamp, which was made passable with brush and poles, he carried upon his back one and one-half to two bushels of grain. Salt cost $15 per barrel, and could be obtained no nearer than Pittsburgh. Pork was worth two shillings per pound, and potatoes two dollars per bushel. He built a log house on the farm he settled and on which he lived till his death. He erected the first framed building—a barn—built in the township, about the year 1818. Hannah Linn came with her family in May of the same year, (1800) and settled in the western part, where they cleared a farm, on which she resided till her death, and which is now owned by the family. They came from New Jersey via Pittsburgh with a four horse team, and cut their road through the woods from that city. During the first winter of their residence here, blankets were used as a substitute for doors, and would seem to have afforded meager security against the wild beasts which made the night hideous with their frightful screams. Wm. Reed settled with his family in the south-western part about the same year. They came from the Susquehanna and proceeded as far as Franklin in a canoe, his wife following along the river upon horseback and driving two cows before. When they had got within fifteen miles of Franklin, their supply of provisions became exhausted, and Mr. Reed proceeded on foot to procure a new supply. They stopped at first in the eastern part of the township, but subsequently removed to the vicinity of a spring discovered by Mrs. Reed while lost in the woods, she, in company with Mrs. Bennett, having started out with their husbands' dinners. It is related by Isaiah Collins that these two women, having lost their way rambled through the woods and at night took refuge in small trees up which they climbed. During the night an animal, which they supposed to be a panther, made its appearance, and Mrs. Reed urged her companion to appease the hungry beast and secure themselves from harm by the sacrifice of the babe she had with her; but the thought so repugnant to a mother's sensibilities was too horrifying to be obscured by that of personal danger and was promptly rejected. In the morning their fears of immediate danger were removed by the retreat of the animal. They descended and after some time their attention was attracted by the sound of chopping, toward which they turned their steps, and soon were gratified with the sight of two men, engaged in digging out a trough, by whom they were piloted to their homes, where they learned that the neighborhood was aroused and searching for them. James Reed, son of Wm., is believed to have been the first child born in the township.

Isaac W., Henry and Elijah Collins, brothers, came from Mifflin county, with a four horse team, and settled, the former at Espyville, and the latter two near the central part, in 1801. Isaac was a soldier in the war of 1812, and resided on the farm he cleared till his death. Henry and Elijah settled on one farm, but the former lived only three or four years in his new home. The Espys were among the first settlers. Geo. Espy came from Redstone, Bedford county, about 1802, and located at Espyville, to which place he gave his name. Patterson Espy probably kept the first store, a little south of this place. Patrick Davis, a native of Ireland, came from Lancaster county, and settled in the eastern part of the township about 1803. He cleared a farm and lived on it the remainder of his days. James Pollock came from Westmoreland county in 1803 or '4, and settled in the north-western corner of the township where he resided till his death in 1815.

The first school house was built at Espyville, but the first school is believed to have been taught by Joseph Wright, in a log (private) house in the central part of the township, at what is known as Elliotts Corners.

Center Chapel, (M. E.) at Elliott's Corners, was organized with sixteen members, in 1825, by Revs. Chas. Elliott, the presiding Elder, and Thomas Carr, the first pastor. The first edifice was erected in 1827 or '8, and the present one, which will seat 250 persons, in 1850, at a cost of $800. The Society consists of forty-eight members, is ministered to by Rev. Ira D Darling, our informant, and its property is valued at about "$200."(?)

The Espyville M. E. Church, at Espyville, was organized with seven members in 1831, probably by Rev. Wm. Thorn, who is believed to have been the first pastor. The first house of worship was erected about 1832, and the present one, which will seat about 400 persons, in 1870, at a cost of $6,000. There are sixty members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. Ira D. Darling, our informant. The Church property is valued at $7,500.

North Shenango United Presbyterian Church was organized in 1849, by Rev. H. H. Thompson. Their house of worship, which will seat 250 persons, was erected in 1846. The first pastor was Rev. W. Dalzell; the present one is Rev. H. H. Hervey, our informant. The Society numbers one hundred.

OIL CREEK was formed in 1820. It lies in the south-east corner of the county, bordering upon Venango and Warren counties, and contains 18,679 square acres. The surface is broken by the deep valley of Oil Creek, which, and Little Oil Creek, are the principal streams. The chief business carried on in the township, outside the city of Titusville, is lumbering and the interests growing out of that industry, prominent among which are, Charles Hyde's saw and planing mill, which is situated on Little Oil Creek and is capable of sawing 8,000 feet of lumber per day, also his lath mill and sash and blind factory located at Hydetown; Lewis G. Wardin's saw mill, situated on Little Oil Creek, one and one-half miles above Hydetown, and capable of cutting 10,000 feet of lumber per day; Shepard Knapp's saw mill, situated on Mully Run, and capable of cutting 3,000 feet of lumber per day; Andrew J. Kerr's saw mill, situated on Hyde Creek, with a capacity for sawing 2,000 feet of lumber per day; Patrick H. Powers' saw and lath mill, situated at Hydetown, which gives employment to ten men and is capable of sawing 10,000 feet of lumber per day; and Silas Kerr's steam saw mill, which is situated on road eleven, (see map.) employs six men and is capable of sawing 5,000 feet of lumber per day.

The township is traversed by the Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley, Union & Titusville and Pennsylvania Petroleum railroads, the latter of which is under construction and all of which extend along Oil Creek within the township.

The population of the township (exclusive of the city of Titusville,) in 1870, was 2,041, all of whom, except one, were white, 1,768, native and 273, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township, exclusive of the city, contained thirteen schools and employed fourteen teachers. The number of scholars was 502; the average number attending school, 395; and the amount expended for school purposes, $4,842.64.

TITUSVILLE is beautifully situated upon Oil Creek, and about the center of the south line of the township. The city proper or that part of it representing the principal business and popu lation, lies upon the north bank of the Creek, from which the south bank rises abruptly. Upon the north the valley of the Creek stretches out about a mile in width, and is terminated by a similar bluff. For a mile to the westward and nearly three miles to the eastward, when the view is obstructed by a series of elevated table lands, the valley presents a landscape of pleasing and varied beauty. The western bounds of the city still exhibit evidences of the swamp which originally characterized that part of it lying west of Franklin street, but which a thorough system of drainage has transformed into eligible building sites.

From the insignificant village of a quarter of a century ago, when it contained about two hundred inhabitants, it has rapidly grown with the development of petroleum, until today, with a population of about 10,000, it is the recognized metropolis of the oil region. It was incorporated as a city in 1867. In 1870 it had a population of 8,639, distributed among its four wards as follows: in the first, 1,905; in the second, 2,334; in the third, 2,275; and in the fourth, 2,125. The city presents an attractive and solid appearance. Its principal streets are wide and handsomely graded, and adorned with sightly stores, mostly brick structures, and fine residences, elegant in style and elaborate in finish. The thoroughfares are well lighted with gas and kept in good repair. During the past year—since July, 1872—more than a mile of wooden pavement has been laid in the principal avenues, (Spring, Diamond, Franklin, Pine and Washington streets.) It contains about a dozen churches, representing the various denominations, and has four public schools, one in each ward, two of which are large and substantial brick structures, that have cost not less than $30,000 each. It has a public park. It is supplied with water by the Holley system of water works, which have just been completed. There are five banking establishments, a Board of Trade, an Oil Exchange, three newspapers, (the Herald and Courier, each published daily and weekly, and The Sunday Morning Press.) It possesses important manufacturing interests, prominent among which are two large iron working establishments, (the Gibbs & Sterritt Manufacturing Co., and the Titusville Manufacturing Co.,) employing hundreds of men in the manufacture of engines and boilers, oil well tools, car tanks, oil tanks of immense capacity, &c. There are other industries of less capacity, Adam Good's brass foundry and machine shop, being among those deserving special notice. In addition to these Titusville has eleven oil refineries. Its hotel accommodations are second to no town or city in Western Pennsylvania. It has an opera house, which, for size and beauty, is not excelled in this portion of the commonwealth. Three railroads enter the city—the Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley R. R., which connects at Corry with the Atlantic & Great Western and Philadelphia & Erie roads; the Union & Titusville R. R., which makes a similar connection at Union; and the Dunkirk, Warren & Allegheny Valley R. R., which is at present completed only to Titusville, though its prospective terminus is Oil City, to which point the road bed is nearly completed. This number will be augmented by the Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R., when completed, and which is now in process of construction. These roads with their connections afford easy and rapid communication with all desirable points.

Titusville possesses all the advantages and attractions of a growing western city. It has wealth and its citizens evince a fair degree of enterprise and thrift, which bespeak its future prosperity.

The public schools of Titusville are organized under the general school laws of the State. They are under the immediate control of a Board of Directors consisting of eight members, two from each ward. The term of office is two years, and one member is annually elected from each ward. In accordance with the amended school laws a Superintendent of Public Instruction was elected June 1, 1872, who holds the office for three years. The schools are thoroughly graded and have attained a high degree of excellence in study and discipline. The departments are Primary, Intermediate, Grammar and High. The school buildings consist of two new and elegant brick structures and two wooden ones, valued at $90,000. Twenty-two teachers are employed, and the number of scholars in daily attendance is about 1,000. The High School is the fortunate possessor of a rare and valuable cabinet of Geology, Mineralogy and Lithology, the gift of Jonathan Watson, Esq. of Titusville. It was purchased of Prof. Henry Ward, of the University of Rochester, and put in position under his special supervision. It is probably excelled by no cabinet in Western Pennsylvania. The course of study pursued in the High School is thorough and complete, and affords opportunities for culture in Higher English, French, German, and Latin and Greek as far as required for admission to the best colleges in the land.

Titusville Soldiers' Orphan School was instituted in Titusville in 1867, and removed to its present location in 1871. It is eligibly situated upon moderately elevated ground in East Titusville, outside the city limits. The buildings, though incomplete, owing to the lack of funds, are projected on a scale calculated to ensure the health, comfort and convenience of its inmates.

The rooms, especially the study, recitation and sleeping rooms, are spacious, light and airy, and their arrangement has been made to conform with the sanitary requirements of the pupils. An abundant and unfailing supply of pure, cold, soft water rises in springs upon the premises. The moral and religious culture of the children is sedulously cared for, and the scholastic instruction afforded is of a superior character. Prof. Joseph N. Beistle was the first principal. In 1872 Mr. Gurdon S. Berry, its proprietor and founder, assumed its management. The school has 175 State pupils besides private day scholars and boarders. This institution is doing a noble work and is eminently worthy of the moral and pecuniary support of those who have so generously contributed of their means for the furtherance of its objects. The management is laboring under financial embarrassments which necessarily curtail its usefulness to a very great extent. The citizens of Titusville and vicinity owe it to themselves and the brave men whose representatives claim their charity and fostering care, to see that this asylum does not languish for want of substantial aid.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Titusville maintain free reading and assembly rooms in the Second National Bank Building.

The Titusville Oil Exchange is organized to regulate the transactions in the sale and purchase of petroleum, which has become a vast and important interest in this city.

OIL CREEK BOROUGH (Hydetown) is situated on Oil Creek, three and one-half miles above Titusville, and on the Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley and Union & Titusville railroads, and on the proposed line of the Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R. It contains a school, three hotels, four stores, two milliner shops, a meat market, two blacksmith and wagon shops, three cooper shops and had in 1870, a population of 428. It possesses a good water power. It was organized as a borough in 1869.

KERRS HILL is a hamlet located one and three-fourths miles from Titusville, and contains two churches, a school, a store, a blacksmith and wagon shop and twenty-five houses. It derives its name from the Kerr family, who were early settlers in that locality.

Settlement was commenced soon after the Meads and their associates located at Meadville. Among the first settlers was Jonathan Titus, (in whose honor the city of Titusville was named,) who came here about 1790, and soon after, in company with Samuel Kerr, purchased from the Holland Land Company a tract of some 1700 acres, which is embraced in the city limits. A temporary shanty was erected and served as a shelter for both families until better dwellings could be built. The house built by Mr. Titus was the first permanent residence constructed in this vicinity. It stood in the rear of the present Ralston and Harrington Block.

John Thompson and Wm. Fulton came here the latter part of the last century and settled at Kerrs Hill. Fulton sold to Wm. Alcorn, who in turn sold to Andrew Kerr, a native of Ireland, who had previously settled on road 12, whence he moved to Kerrs Hill. Previous to his settlement here Mr. Kerr had resided a short time in Huntindon county. James Kerr, also a native of Ireland, came with his father to this country at the age of ten years, and settled below Pittsburgh. In 1799, at the age of twenty-four, he removed to Oil Creek township, and located a tract of 500 acres, now occupied by Isaac Weed, on road 18. He died suddenly about thirty-one years ago, being in apparent good health five minutes before he died. John Gilson emigrated with his father, Wm. Gilson, from England to Maryland and removed thence to Bedford county in this State. In 1800 he set out for French Creek, with the intention of settling in that locality, but having reached Oil Creek he accidentally cut his knee while chopping a tree on which to cross that stream. He retraced his steps to Hydetown, where he met with Daniel Titus, with whom he stopped. He subsequently settled the place now occupied by his son, John B. Gilson, and returned to Bedford county. The following year, having then attained his majority, he removed his wife to the place he had selected, and built a log hut, which he covered with bark. The same year (1801) his father came to this township with his family, consisting, besides John, who was the eldest, of his wife and five boys and three girls, named respectively, William, Thomas, Richard, Peter, Benjamin, Sarah, Charity and Martha. All the girls, except Martha, are dead, and only two of the boys, Peter and Benjamin, are living. Peter was eighty-one years old in June, 1873, and Benjamin, seventy-nine in August of that year. Thomas Mitchell, a native of Ireland, moved here with his family, consisting of wife and four children, from Hollidaysburg, Blair county, May 6, 1803, and settled upon the place now occupied by his grand-son, Joseph Henderson. Mr. Mitchell died April 21, 1805. His daughter, Rebecca, now Mrs. Samuel Henderson, is still living. She was 84 years old Jan. 22, 1874. She was married May 17, 1814. Her husband died April 14, 1855. With the exception of a five years' residence in Portland, Chautauqua county, N. Y., she has lived here since 1803. John McIntyre settled at an early day on a tract of 400 acres, where his son, James, now lives. He emigrated from Ireland to Juniata and removed thence to Pine Creek, Crawford county, where he remained about two months, when he came to this township. He died in 1813, aged forty-five years.

The first settlement at Hydetown, was made in 1796, by Daniel and Peter Titus, brothers of Jonathan Titus. Each took up 400 acres. The first saw mill at this place was built by Chas. Ridgway, who came from Brownville, Fayette county, in 1797.

An early settler in the vicinity of Titusville was Capt. Sheffield, who came here in 1816 and opened a store and trading post, which was the first in this locality. He trafficked principally among the Indians for furs, &c., this point being on the line of march from their trading station on the Cussewago to their encampments at Sandusky, Ohio. After conducting the business some years he sold his store and goods to Joseph L. Chase, the son of a Presbyterian minister, who came to this region in 1812. A post office was established in 1818, and Samuel Kerr was appointed post master, a position which he filled for ten years. It is a noteworthy fact that Mr. Kerr's commissions averaged from $1.25 to $3.75 per quarter.

The first church here was the Oil Creek Presbyterian Church, which was organized by Rev. Amos Chase, (father of Joseph L. Chase,) who during his active life in this region formed thirty-three churches in the counties of Crawford, Venango, Allegheny, Washington, Westmoreland, Mercer and others in Pennsylvania, and several in the State of New York.

In 1847, William Robinson, John M. Titus and Salmon P. Chase were appointed Commissioners to survey, define and mark out, within the tracts Nos. 27, 28, 29, 33 and 34, the boundaries of a borough to be called Titusville. The village had at that date a population of 275, and derived its chief support from the lumber traffic carried on in this section. Joseph Case then had a grist mill, double saw mill and a woolen mill with machinery for carding and weaving jeans. There was also a saw mill owned by Brewer, Watson & Co. From this period until 1859, nothing of importance, connected with the growth of the village is to be recorded. On the 28th of August of the latter year the Drake oil well was completed and oil obtained. This event gave an impetus to its growth which it still perpetuates, and has given it a world-wide notoriety from the development of the vast hidden wealth of the oil regions of Western Pennsylvania. The oil from a spring on the Watson flats, a short distance below Titusville, had attracted the attention of of the early settlers, who collected and sold it as a medicine, known to commerce as "Seneca Oil;" but they little dreamed that a few feet below the surface existed a mine of wealth greater than the famed gold fields of California and Australia. It was reserved for the prescient mind of Geo. H. Bissell, of New York, to fathom old Mother Earth's hidden treasures and give to the world a light with all its beneficent and civilizing influences, and a commodity whose possible value is as yet but faintly appreciated. Mr. Bissell's attention was first called to the subject of petroleum in 1853, in which year he saw at the office of Prof. Crosby of Dartmouth College a bottle filled with this substance which was found by Dr. Brewer of Titusville, upon his lands on Oil Creek, and given by him to Prof. Crosby. He became greatly interested in the product and about six months afterward sent Mr. J. G. Eveleth, his partner, to Titusville. They bought together one hundred acres in fee simple, and took one hundred and twelve acres on a lease of ninety-nine years duration, for which they paid $5,000. These lands are situated on Oil Creek, about two and one-half miles from Titusville, and were then thought to be the principal oil lands of Pennsylvania. In 1854, they organized The Pennsylvania Rock Oil Company, which was the first petroleum company in the United States. The capital was $500,000, and most of the stock was owned and retained by these gentlemen, who were the officers of the company. The company proceeded to develop its lands by trenching them and raising the surface oil and water into vats. The supply was limited, amounting to, perhaps, a few barrels in the season. The oil was sold for $1.50 per gallon to parties who sold it for medicinal purposes. In the spring of 1855, Prof. Silliman of Yale College was employed to analyze the oil, Messrs. Bissell & Eveleth furnishing the apparatus for his experiments and paying the entire cost of the analysis. Prof. Silliman's report, published in the fall of that year, attracted attention in New Haven, and led to the re-organization of The Pennsylvania Rock Oil Company with that gentleman as its president.

The work of trenching the lands was continued until 1858, when the question of boring an artesian well was discussed and strongly advocated by Mr. Bissell, the idea having been suggested by the fact that Mr. Kier of Pittsburgh had obtained a small quantity of oil from one of his salt wells near that city, at a depth of about 400 feet. A want of harmony was manifested between the New York and New Haven stockholders, but after much discussion and difficulty a contract was concluded between the company and some of its members, by which the latter agreed to lease the lands for a term of years and pay to the company a royalty of twelve cents per gallon on all oil raised. A new company was organized in New Haven, based on the aforesaid lease, and one of its members, Mr. E. L. Drake, was designated as superintendent and furnished with the necessary capital to carry out the projected idea, Mr. Drake proceeded to Titusville and after encountering many delays and obstacles, on the 28th of August, 1859, the first vein of oil was struck and the first petroleum obtained from an artesian well, drilled on Oil Creek, in the northern border of Venango county, under the auspices of The Seneca Oil Company lessees of The Pennsylvania Rock Oil Company, the organization of which, and the first purchase and development of lands under it, were mainly due to George H. Bissell; and through this agency Titusville was transformed from an uninviting back-woods village to a beautiful and wealthy city.

The First Presbyterian Church of Titusville was organized as the Congregation of Oil Creek, in 1815, by Rev. Amos Chase, its first pastor, who continued his ministrations to this Society until 1830. From 1815 to 1826, Mr. Chase labored as a missionary, dividing his time between this and other churches. May 24, 1826, he was installed pastor of this Church, to which he devoted half his time till 1830, when the relation was dissolved. He died at Centerville, Dec. 23, 1849, in the ninetieth year of his age, and the sixty-third of his ministry. In 1838, the Society was incorporated by the Supreme Court and its charter recorded in the office of the Secretary of the State under the name of The Presbyterian Congregation of Oil Creek in the County of Crawford. In 1870 the name was changed by the Court of Common Pleas of Crawford County to that it now bears. The number of members at its organization is not known, but the regular attendance numbered about 200, which is its present membership. Prior to the organization religious services were conducted by the Presbyterians, and Missionaries of that denomination were sent to this place, which was then known as "Oil Creek" and sometimes as "Titus'es," in 1802 and 1803, and again in 1807. In 1809 it was reported to the Presbytery as being able to furnish its own supplies, and in that year communion was held in Mr. Titus' log barn, by two Presbyterian ministers, Samuel Tait and Richard Stockton. About ten members were present. A church was built of round logs in 1812, but was never entirely finished. In 1815, one constructed of hewed logs was commenced and was finished about 1823. A framed house was begun in 1833, completed in 1834-5, and sold in 1863. In 1864 the building of the present edifice was commenced and was completed the following year, at a cost of about $17,000. It will seat comfortably 536 persons. Since its completion permanent improvements to the value $3,000 have been added. The present value of Church property, including parsonage, is about $20,000. The present pastor is Rev. Alexander Sinclair, who was installed in the fall of 1869.—[Information furnished by Mr. Samuel Minor.]

St. James Memorial Church, (Protestant Episcopal,) at Titusville, was organized with five members, in 1862, by Rev. Henry Purdon, the first and present pastor. The building of the church edifice was begun in 1863 and finished in 1864. It cost $12,000 and will seat 300 persons. The Society numbers 110 and its property is valued at $30,000.

"This Church was erected to the memory of the Rt. Rev. Samuel Bordman, D. D., Assist. Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, who died suddenly on his way to the Oil Regions at Freeport, on the A. V. R. R., August 2, 1861."—[Information furnished by Rev. Henry Purdon.]

The First Baptist Church of Titusville was organized with eleven members, in 1865, and erected its house of worship, which will seat 400 persons, in 1868, at a cost of $20,000. There are 109 members who are under the pastoral care of Rev. Andrew Murdoch, our informant. The first pastor was Rev. — Gundy. The Church property is valued at $25,000. The Sunday School connected with this Church has an average attendance of 180 scholars.

The M. E. Church, at Titusville, has 150 members. The pastor is Rev. A. Craft. The church edifice will seat 450 persons. The Church property is valued at $28,000.—[We have been unable to get fuller data relative to this Society.

PINE was formed in 1847. It is an interior township, lying near the center of the west border, and contains 6369 square acres. The surface is level, and inclines slightly toward the south. It is well watered by Shenango Creek and several small streams tributary to it. Only the northern portion is tillable, well populated and cultivated, the whole southern part being occupied by Pymatuning Swamp. Agriculture forms the chief industry, though lumbering is carried on to a limited extent. The soil is well adapted to dairying, which and stock raising form the chief agricultural pursuits. The Erie & Pittsburgh R. R. extends through the central part, in a southerly direction.

The population of the township in 1870 was 777, of whom 749 were native, 28, foreign, 772, white and five, colored.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained four schools and employed seven teachers. The number of scholars was 93; the average number attending school, 71; and the amount expended for school purposes, $747.69.

LINESVILLE, (p. v.) situated on Mill Creek, near the line of Conneaut, and on the E. & P. R. R., was incorporated as a borough April 23, 1864, and derives its name from the Line family, who were the first settlers there. It contains two churches, two hotels, about a dozen stores of various kinds, two harness shops, four blacksmith shops, three shoe shops, a photograph gallery, a tannery, grist mill and two steam saw mills, one of which, (S. E. Bundy's) including a sash, door and blind factory, gives employment to about ten men and annually cuts about half a million feet of lumber, besides a large quantity of lath, and manufactures several thousand dollars worth of sash, doors and blinds. The population in 1870 was 434.

Pine Lodge A. Y. Masons No. 498, at Linesville, was instituted Dec. 22, 1871. Its charter was granted Sept. 6, 1871, and its first meeting was held Jan. 2, 1872. The first officers were G. T. Rankin, W. M., C. C. Minneley, S. W., and J. A. Crockett, J. W.

On the morning of Wednesday, Nov. 12, 1873, a destructive fire occurred in the principal part of the village, involving a loss of nearly $20,000.

Local authorities differ in regard to the date of first settlement. Joseph Line, of Linesville, says that Samuel Glenn, a native of Ireland, who located in the southern part of the township, on a farm upon which he spent the remainder of his days, was probably the first settler, and his house the first one erected; and that Robert Graham, Martin Cunningham, Wm. Burnside, a widow named Margaret Robison and another named Patterson, settled in the southern part about the same time, without assigning any date; while George Graham states that Wm. Burnside, a native of Ireland, settled in the northern part in 1797 or '8, and after a few years residence removed to Meadville, and that Robert Graham, of the same nationality, and a miller by occupation, also located in the northern part, in 1802, and after about two years removed to the farm on which he resided till his death; and Thomas Glenn advises us that Samuel Glenn, settled in 1811. Amos Line, the first settler at Linesville, came from Plainfield, N. J., in 1818, and laid out the borough which perpetuates his name. He was a Quaker and did most of the surveying for the Population Co. and the people who came into this country. He built the first saw mill in 1820; the first framed house, in Linesville, in 1825, though the first framed house in the township was built the previous year, by Joseph Allen; he kept the first store in the northern part of the township, and taught the first school in Linesville, in a log building in 1835. His daughter, Rachel V. Line, was probably the first child born in the township, in 1819. The first grist mill in the township was built at Linesville, in 1800, by Jabez Colt, and this was probably the first framed building erected in the township. Smith Line kept the first store in Linesville. The first hotel in Pine was kept at Linesville by Horatio N. Mead. The first death is believed to have been that of Charles Waste, who was killed by the fall of a tree during a thunder storm, in 1820. The first school in Pine was taught in a log school house in the north-east part of the township, in 1824, by Joseph Line. The first tannery was built at Linesville in 1833 or '4, by S. C. Stratton.

The early settlers were supplied with salt by the Indians, and the fact that it was warm when they received it led to the belief that it was obtained in the locality of Pymatuning swamp, though the precise locality remains a secret to this day.

The first church, a log structure, was built in the north-east part of the township, and the first sermon was probably preached by Rev. Mr. McMullen, a Baptist, in 1818.

The Linesville Baptist Church was organized with eighteen members, March 11, 1851, by Rev. E. M. Alden, the first and present pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 300 persons, was erected in 1852, at a cost of $2,500. The membership has increased to 112, and the Church property is valued at $6,000.—[Information furnished by the pastor.]

St. Philip's Church, (Roman Catholic) at Linesville, was organized with about forty-five members, in 1870, by Bishop Mullen. The Society has no house of worship. It consists of seventy members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. J. Donnelly.—[Information furnished by Mr. Patrick Woods.]

RANDOLPH was formed in 1824. It is an interior township, situated a little south-east of the center of the county, and contains 23,697 square acres. The surface is quite hilly, and is drained by Woodcock and Sugar creeks, the former flowing in a northerly, and the latter in a southerly direction. The eastern part of the township is comparatively new and but thinly settled. The soil produces good crops and is well adapted to grazing. Dairying and stock raising are the chief pursuits of the inhabitants, though lumbering is carried on quite extensively.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,732, of whom 1,566 were native, 166 foreign and all, except one, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained thirteen schools and employed twenty-one teachers. The number of scholars was 442; the average number attending school, 350; and the amount expended for school purposes, $3,268.15.

HICKORY CORNERS (p. o.) is situated in the north-west corner and contains a church, store, blacksmith shop and about ten dwellings.

GUY'S MILLS, (p. o.) situated on Sugar Creek, a little west of the center, contains three churches, one hotel, two stores, a saw mill, blacksmith shop, wagon shop and twelve dwellings. It derives its name from Jacob Guy, the first settler there, who built a mill there at an early day.

BLACK ASH (p. o.) is a hamlet situated in the south-east part, about one and three-fourths miles from the east line.

The first settlement was made in 1795 by James Brawley, who came from Lycoming county and located in the south-western part of the township. He built a log house, the first erected in the township, and having cleared a small piece of land he planted it with potatoes, the seed for which he procured at Franklin, carrying them upon his back through the woods, up French and Sugar creeks, guided by an Indian path. He then joined a surveying party in Erie county, with which he remained till fall, when he returned to dig his potatoes. When he reached his cabin it was occupied by Indians, who, supposing him to be dead, had dug and eat his potatoes and were preparing to leave. They opened their packages and each generously shared with him their furs and dried meat. With the proceeds of these he purchased wheat, which he sowed and then returned to Lycoming county. The following spring he returned to his new home in company with his mother and her family, arriving June 6, 1796. They with great difficulty came through the woods with an ox team and wagon, driving before them three or four cows, the milk from which was strained and being put into a churn was converted into butter by the motion of the wagon. The journey occupied six weeks, and when they reached their destination they had just twenty-five cents in money, with which they purchased a quart of salt. There were no mills accessible and the family subsisted for some time on frumenty, until Mr. Brawley heard, in the fall, of a mill at the mouth of Oil Creek. He put four bushels of wheat upon an ox and started for the mill through the trackless forest, with naught save his pocket compass for a guide. He was six days in performing the journey. At night he removed the load from his ox and turned it out to browse, while he built a fire beside which he camped, and by which the ox was accustomed to lie when he had appeased his hunger. Mr. Brawley built the first saw mill and the first framed house and barn in the township. In 1800 Mr. Brawley married Mary Glenn, and theirs was probably the first marriage contracted in the township. Wm. R. Brawley, who was born Jan. 29, 1802, was doubtless the first white child born in the township; and Mary A. Brawley, who died in 1805, is believed to be the first person who died in the township. Mr. Brawley was followed in the settlement by Amos Daniels, who located in the south-western part, on the Oil Creek road, Alex. McFadden, who located in the southern part, and both of whom settled soon after him, Archibald Stewart, who came from Lycoming county and settled on the Oil Creek road, Alex. Johnson, who came from near Harrisburgh and settled in the western part in 1799, Michael Radle, a native of Germany, who came from Philadelphia in 1806 and settled in the northern part, and Dennis Kane, a Revolutionary soldier, who located in the southern part, on land reserved for the soldiers, and who are believed to have settled in the order named. Jacob Guy settled at Guys Mills in 1815. He came from Whitehall, N. Y., in 1813 or '14, and located first at Meadville, where he lived about two years, when he removed to Randolph. He was a graduate of Yale College and interested himself in surveys for himself and neighbors. The first house built there was erected for him. It was constructed of poles and covered with hemlock brush. The saw mill built by him in 1816 or '17 was the first framed building erected at Guys Mills. He also put up the first framed house there and was the first justice of the peace in the township. It is said that the settlers kept him busy during the winter examining wolves scalps, on which they obtained a bounty. He kept the first store in the township at Guys Mills, and the first hotel was kept at the same place, by James Foreman. Mr. Guy was prominently identified with the interests of the township, and lived on the place in which he settled the remainder of his life. George and Jacob Cutshall came from Cumberland county in 1814, and settled in the northern part on the same farm, where they remained about two years, when George removed to a farm one mile north of his brother's. They came through the woods with a six horse team, crossing the streams that were too deep to ford by using their wagon box as a boat, in which their goods were conveyed a few at a time. On the way one of their horses died and a bull which they drove was driven in the harness in its stead the rest of the way. George had to go to Meadville to work out his road tax, as there were no roads in his vicinity. In 1816 Wm. Waid, from New York State, settled a little north of Guys Mills; John Oaks, from Massachusetts, settled in the southern part, on the Oil Creek road, where he spent the remainder of his days; and Leonard Hall, from Vermont, located at Hickory Corners, where he was the first settler. He walked all the way, averaging, he says, the almost incredible distance of forty miles per day. He was married in 1820, and his wedding tour consisted of a visit to his then far distant Vermont home. The journey was made with an ox sled, for which he was obliged to cut a road some distance, while his father-in-law, who accompanied him a part of the way, drove the ox and sled bearing his wife. What a contrast this with the expensive luxuries which are frequently indulged on such occasions at the present day! Moses Gilbert, from Fort Ann, N. Y., settled near a spring in the central part in 1818, and remained there till his death. Isaac Childs, also from Washington county, N. Y., settled in the north-eastern part of the township in 1821, and there died. The first school was taught by Miss Mary H. Guy, in the upper story of a barn. The first school house is believed to have been built in the south-western part. It was constructed of logs and greased paper was substituted in the windows for glass.

Mount Hope M. E. Church, in the southern part of the township, on the Oil Creek road, was organized with about fifty members, in 1858, by Rev. J. Whitely, the first pastor, and the house of worship, which will seat about 300 persons, was erected the same year, at a cost of about $900. The Society consists of seventy members; is under the pastoral care of Rev. J. Eckels; and its property is valued at about $2,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. Smith Byham.]

The M. E. Church of Guys Mills was organized with about fifty-five members, in 1871, by Rev. John W. Blasdell, the first pastor, and their house of worship, which will seat 350 persons, was erected the same year, at a cost of $3,500, the present value of Church property. There are about seventy-two members, who are ministered to by Rev. John Eckels.—[Information furnished by Mr. Horace T. Sikes.]

The Baptist Church of Randolph, at Guys Mills, was organized with ten members, in 1820, by a council of ministers from sister churches. The first church edifice was erected in 1826 and was the first built in the township; the present one, which will seat about 250 persons, in 1868, at a cost of $1,800, the present value of Church property. The first pastor was Elder Oliver Alfred. At present the Church is without a pastor. The number of members is twenty-three.—[Information furnished by Mr. Calvin Hatch.]

The First Congregational Church of Randolph, at Guys Mills, was organized with twenty members, as a Presbyterian Church, Oct. 31, 1825, and as a Congregational Church in 1839. The first church edifice was erected in 1845; the present one, which has a seating capacity for 300 persons, in 1871, at a cost of $5,000, the present value of Church property. The first pastor was Rev. Nathan Harned; the present one is R. F. Markham, our informant. There are 120 members.

The East Randolph M. E. Church was organized with about eight members, about 1850, by Rev. Edwin Hull, the first pastor. The church edifice was erected in 1866. It cost $1,275, and will seat about 200 persons. The Church property is valued at $1,300. The number of members is twenty-eight.—[Information furnished by Mr. John Bogardis.]

RICHMOND was formed in 1830. It is an interior township, lying a little north-east of the center of the county, and contains 21,744 square acres. The principal streams are Woodcock Creek, which crosses the south-west corner, Muddy Creek, which crosses the north-east corner, and Mackey Creek, which rises in the north-west part and flows in a north-easterly direction to its confluence with Muddy Creek in the north-east corner. The north branch of Woodcock Creek rises in the north-west corner of the township. It is a rich dairy township, and that branch of industry forms the chief pursuit of the inhabitants. The Keystone Creamery, the largest one in the township, gives employment to eight persons, uses the milk of 750 cows, and daily produces 300 pounds of butter and 1000 pounds of cheese. Lumbering is also an important industry, and the steam saw mill owned by Grace & Bachelor, and located in the eastern part of the township, gives employment to five persons and is capacitated to saw 10,000 feet of lumber per day.

The proposed Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R. crosses the north-east corner of the township.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,399, of whom 1,376 were native, 23, foreign and all, except one, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872 the township contained twelve schools and employed ten teachers. The number of scholars was 436; the average number attending school, 358; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,973.41.

NEW RICHMOND (p. o.) is a hamlet situated near the center.

LINES HOLLOW (p. o.) is a hamlet situated two miles south of New Richmond.

We are unable to state definitely the date when settlement was commenced, but Daniel and Lucas Winston and Horace Hulbert from Cortland county, N. Y., and Horatio Winston from Canandaigua, N. Y., were among the first to settle in this township. Dean Swift moved in from New Haven, Conn., with an ox team, in 1816, the journey occupying eight weeks. Gould M. Lord from Conn., and Ebenezer Hunt from Vermont, came in 1818. The nearest mill was then in Woodcock township and the nearest post office was Meadville. In 1830 Mr. Lord built a log hog pen and corn crib, and in the upper part of this rude structure school was taught for three months. Russel Flint, from Chautauqua Co., N. Y., was an early settler. Michael Bresee moved in from Ontario Co., N. Y., in 1819. David Hunt moved in from Whitehall, N. Y., with an ox team in 1820. Wm. Sanburn, from Canada, George Milles from New Haven, and Chester Jones settled here about the same year. Robert Townley emigrated from Ireland in 1795 and settled first in Erie county. He removed thence to this township in 1821. He says he has carried butter to Meadville on foot and sold it for six cents per pound in trade. Hollis Hull, from Washington Co., N. Y., settled here in 1822. He says he has been to Meadville afoot, trained all day and walked home again at night. Ananias Phillips moved in from Washington county, N. Y., in 1824. Jesse Wheelock, who was born in Cheshire county, N. H., in 1800, moved with his father, in 1806, to Windsor county, Vt., in 1816, to Ontario county, N. Y., in 1822, to Erie county and in 1824, to Richmond, where he has since resided. In 1826, John Brown, whose singular devotion to the interests of negro slaves in this country, and the folly displayed by a rash and suicidal attempt at their liberation, gained him so unenviable a notoriety—for however much we may sympathize with his motives, every order loving citizen must deprecate the means by which he sought to consummate his purpose—settled in this township. John Brown was born of poor but respectable parents at Torrington, Conn., May 9, 1800. At the age of five he removed with his father to Hudson, Ohio, where, at the age of fifteen, without even a common school education, for unhappily his time at school was not profitably employed, he commenced working at the tanner and currier's trade, at which he spent most of his time until the age of twenty, keeping bachelor's hall, and officiating as cook, and for most of the time as foreman of the establishment under his father. Having acquired deep religious convictions and, with the aid of a valuable library to which he was generously allowed access, made commendable progress in acquiring the rudiments of an education, at the age of eighteen he commenced a course of study, with a view to preparation for the ministry in the Congregational Church, but inflammation of the eyes compelled him to abandon this project. He, however, with the aid of books managed to become tolerably well acquainted with common arithmetic and surveying, which he practiced more or less after the age of twenty, in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Western Virginia. June 21, 1820, he married Dianthe Lusk, at Hudson, and in 1826, he removed to Richmond, where he still engaged in tanning. He afterward combined his trade with the business of farming and sheep keeping. The remains of his tannery, which was the first erected in Richmond, are still standing near the center of the township. The strictest integrity characterized his life, and it averred by one who served with him as an apprentice that he refused to sell his leather until it was perfectly dry, or as nearly so as human ingenuity could make it, lest his customers should be cheated in value or weight. About this time he joined the Presbyterian Church, with which he remained in communion till his death. In 1832 his wife died, and the next year he married Mary A. Day, of Meadville. In 1835 he removed to Franklin Mills, Ohio, and in 1840 he returned to Hudson and engaged in the wool business. He subsequently removed to Akron, Ohio, and formed a partnership with a Mr. Perkins. They opened a large warehouse in Springfield, Mass., and sold wool on commission, chiefly for farmers living in Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, and in 1846 he removed to that city. But they came in competition with the New England manufacturers, who had been accustomed to purchase wool from the growers at their own terms, and who combined against and refused to deal with them. Being thus deprived of a market, Brown took about 200,000 pounds of wool to England, where he was obliged to sell it for half its value. This loss almost reduced him to poverty. While in England he submitted to prominent abolitionists a plan which he originated about 1839, for the liberation of slaves in America—a subject which engaged his attention when a mere boy—but he received no encouragement. He returned to America and abandoned the wool business for awhile. Learning that Gerritt Smith, of Peterboro, N. Y., had offered to give to colored settlers portions of lands out of large tracts belonging to him in the wild regions of the Adirondacks, he obtained an interview with that gentleman in which he detailed the supreme difficulties under which the negroes labored in their efforts to reclaim the lands in that inhospitable wilderness—difficulties which were immeasurable enhanced by their inexperience—and being thoroughly conversant himself with pioneer life, he offered to give to those who chose to avail themselves of the offer the benefit of his experience, and to exercise over them a fatherly supervision. Mr. Smith approved the project and, though he was entirely unacquainted with the applicant, accepted the proposition. In the summer of 1849 Brown removed his family to North Elba, Essex Co., N. Y., where they remained two years, and in 1851, they returned to Akron, where Brown managed Mr. Perkins' farm and again became associated with him in the wool business. In 1855 he removed his family to North Elba and went to Kansas to assist his sons who had settled there. He took a prominent and active part in the stirring scenes which were enacted there about that period, and opposed with all the energy of his nature the efforts of the pro-slavery party to make Kansas a slave State. At Ossawatimie in August, 1856, with a band of sixteen men illy armed he held in check some 500 lawless Missourians, who were splendidly equipped. The place where this brilliant exploit occurred afterwards became a distinguishing suffix to his name, and the phrase "John Brown, of Ossawatimie," is only exceeded in familiarity by the title of the tract in the great wilderness of Northern New York which bears his name. In May, 1859, he called a secret convention of the friends of freedom, which met at Chatham, Canada, organized an invasion of Virginia and adopted a constitution. The following July he rented a farm house about six miles from Harpers Ferry, and collected there a supply of pikes, guns, &c. On the night of Oct. 16, 1859, aided by about twenty men, he surprised Harpers Ferry, seized the arsenal and armory and took over forty prisoners. About noon on the 17th Brown's party was attacked by the Virginia militia. After two of his sons and nearly all of his men had been killed, and himself wounded in several places, he was captured. He was tried in November and hung at Charlestown, Va., Dec. 2, 1859.

The M. E. Church, at New Richmond, was organized with eleven members, about forty years ago, by Rev. Walter B. Lord, the first pastor. The church edifice, which will seat 250 persons, was erected in 1864, at a cost of $1,200. The Society, which numbers about 75, is under the pastoral care of Rev. John Eckles, and its property is valued at $1,500.—[Information furnished by Mr. P. W. Webster.]

North Richmond M. E. Church was organized about 1840, and the church edifice, which will seat 400 persons, was erected in 1854, at a cost of $1,500. The Society numbers about sixty. The present pastor is Rev. Reuben

Smith. The Church property is valued at about $2,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. Emerson Chamberlin.]

Richmond Church, (Baptist) at "Lyons Hollow," was organized with fifteen members, Dec. 25, 1841, by Rev. E. H. Stewart, the first pastor, and others. The first house of worship was erected in 1841; the present one, which will seat 375 persons, in 1866, at a cost of $3,500. There are seventy-eight members, who are under the spiritual tutelage of Rev. C. W. Drake. The church property is valued at $4,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. Ebenezer Hunt.]

ROCKDALE was formed in 1811. It lies upon the north border of the county, east of the center, and contains 21,702 square acres. It is well watered by French Creek, (which enters the township near the center of the north line, flows south to near the center and deflects to the west, leaving it near the center of the west line,) and streams tributary to it, the principal of which are Muddy Creek and Thomas and Mohawk runs. The surface is hilly, except in the valleys of French and Muddy Creeks, which are low and level. The soil in the valleys is a rich alluvium of great fertility; elsewhere it is a mixture of clay and sand. Agriculture is the chief pursuit of the inhabitants, and dairying the principal branch of agriculture. Until within a few years a large portion of the township was devoted almost entirely to lumbering, which, at present, forms an important industry. There is now more lumber shipped at Millers Station than any other along this route. Lumber is the principal article of manufacture. There are not less than five important saw mills which manufacture daily over 60,000 feet of lumber, besides a large quantity of lath and shingles; a grist mill, capable of grinding 45 bushels of grain per hour; and a cheese factory, built the present year, (1873) capacitated to use the milk of 400 cows.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. traverses the north-west part of the township, following the course of French Creek, which it crosses within the limits of the township.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,664, of whom 1,591 were native, 134, foreign and all, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained twelve schools and employed twenty-four teachers. The number of scholars was 516; the average number attending school, 396; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,110.99.

MILLERS STATION (p. o.) is a hamlet situated on the A. & G. W. R. R., a little north-west of the center, and contains one hotel, three stores, one blacksmith shop and one shoe shop.

Settlement was commenced contemporaneously with that of the county, in 1786, by John Hayes 2d, a native of Delaware, who accompanied Gen. Mead in his journey to the county.

He purchased of Wm. Hutchinson a piece of land on which he had commenced, but not completed a settlement, paying therefor $1,100. His daughter Sarah, now Mrs. Joseph King, who was born in this township, May 24, 1798, and married to her husband (who served as a captain under Gen. Hull in the war of 1812,) in September, 1814, is still living with her daughter, Mrs. Ezra A. Tubbs. The principal settlements were made about 1795, under the auspices of the Holland Land Company, who are believed to have built the first house in the township, near what is now known as Jarvis' Mill. Isaac Kelly, from Delaware county, and George Miller, a Baptist clergyman, from Lehigh county, settled here about 1800. Kelly located on the east side of French Creek, near the center of the township, at the place now known as Wing's saw mill. Other settlers about the same year were Hugh and Patrick McCulloph, and a man named Priest. The McCullophs, it is believed, were natives of Ireland. Nathan Mitchell, a native of Mass., moved into the township from Canada, where he had resided four years, in 1802. He settled on the line between Erie and Crawford counties, and died in 1834. Jesse Brown, who was born in Mass., Feb. 5, 1777, removed with his father to Vermont, where they remained till after the war of 1812. In 1815, they removed to the township of LeBoeuf, Erie county, and in 1818, to this township, where they purchased a tract of land, on which his father died, April 22, 1871. "When we came to this place," says Mr. Brown, "we underwent great inconveniences. We had to go fourteen miles through the woods to mill. But game was plenty, and we got half our living out of the woods. The wolves used to trouble our sheep. The bears and panthers, though numerous, did not trouble us much." The farm of H. R. Colwell was donated by the State to Col. Benjamin Flower, as a Revolutionary grant, in 1785, but the present owner was the first to settle it, in 1838.

The only church ever erected in the township was built by a Baptist Society, in 1825. It was situated on the farm now occupied by Daniel Miller, but was long since torn down. Elder George Miller, was the officiating clergyman. Isaac Miller was an active member of this church. He was drowned in French Creek one Sabbath morning in 1832, while crossing upon the ice on his way to attend church.

ROME was formed in 1830. It lies upon the center of the east border of the county and contains 22,554 square acres. It is abundantly watered by Oil Creek and its numerous tributaries, the principal of which are McLaughlin Creek and Thompsons Brook. The soil is productive. Its manufacturing interests, especially in lumber, are quite important. It contains nine saw mills, which give employment to some forty persons and have an aggregate capacity of about 50,000 feet of lumber per day, besides a considerable quantity of shingles, and an extensive shook factory, which furnishes employment for twenty-six persons, ten of whom are engaged in the shop, and the remaining sixteen, in the woods, preparing the red oak timber used in the manufacture. Sixty shooks are made, fitted and packed per day. They are shipped to New York and thence to the West Indies.

The Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley and Union & Titusville railroads pass through the north-western part of the township.

The population in 1870 was 1,274, all of whom were white, 1,140, native and 134, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained eleven schools and employed seventeen teachers. The number of scholars was 356; the average number attending school, 291; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,002.48.

CENTREVILLE, (p. v.) situated near the west line, at the confluence of Big and Little Oil creeks, and on the O. C. & A. V. and U. & T. railroads, is a thriving town of 387 inhabitants, containing a church and school house, the latter of which was built in 1872, at a cost of $3,500. There are several stores and mechanic shops. The soil is a mixture of sand, gravel and black muck, and is very fertile. The water is clear and wholesome. It was incorporated as a borough April 14, 1865.

Arethusan Lodge No. 323 I. O. of G. T. at Centreville, was chartered May 11, 1867. The charter members were T. L. Noble, C. F. Chamberlain, I. A. Wright, Gaylord and L. Matterson, G. W. Rockwell, W. P. Klingensmith, J. M. Lewis, Bruce Southworth, Gates Sexton, Mrs. E. S. Southworth, Mrs. Viola Tubbs, Mrs. Sarah Fields, Mrs. E. Klingensmith, Mrs. N. Birch and Mrs. S. S. Chamberlain. There are now eighty members in good standing.

MORRIS CORNERS is situated a little south-east of the center.

The first settlement of which we have any account was made in 1800, by the families of Patrick Magee, Patrick Brannon, James Lafferty, Roger Coyle, Daniel McBride and Daniel Carlin, who emigrated from Donegal county, Ireland, in 1795, and after a residence of three years on the banks of the Susquehanna in Northumberland county, and a year or two in Pittsburgh, took the northward course of Allegheny River and arrived in this township at what is known as Mageetown in April of that year. Prompted by their religious faith they named the township after the "Eternal City"—a name which was fully confirmed by the courts in 1828. Francis and James Magee, and Patrick Magee, Jr., sons of the pioneer, still reside at Mageetown. The former was born in Northumberland county, in October, 1797, and accompanied his father to this township, and the latter was born here in March, 1807. The elder Magee settled upon a farm of one hundred acres. A man named Howe settled two or three years later on the farm upon which D. T. Gregory now lives. The English settlement was commenced in 1833, by Benjamin Harrison, Sen., who was born in Northumberland county, England, Nov. 28, 1797, and emigrated to Patterson, N. J., in 1827, and removed thence to this township, to the place where he now resides, in company with his mother, his father having been some time dead. There was then a sled road from Titusville to Spartansburg, and he was occupied nine days in cutting a foot path from that to the place of his settlement. About the same year (1833) James J. and James A. Vrooman, father and son, removed from Schoharie county, N. Y., to the central part of the township, where they remained twelve years and cleared fifty acres. The son soon after removed to his present location. The elder Vrooman died in November, 1869, at the age of seventy years.

The first religious services were probably held by the Catholics, for soon after the settlement of the first Irish families they began to be visited once in eight or ten years by clergymen from Philadelphia and subsequently at less remote periods.

The Church of the Immaculate Conception, (Roman Catholic) at Mageetown, in the center of the township, was organized with 25 members, in 1822, by Rev. Simon Peters. It had no settled pastor until the present incumbent, Rev. Jos. P. Maurel, our informant, was installed. The house of worship was erected in 1848, on half an acre of ground, the gift of Mr. F. Magee. It cost, originally, $1,200, and will seat 200 persons. It has just been completed by the addition of a belfry, and the congregation have purchased a fine bell. The Church property is valued at $3,000.

SADSBURY was formed in 1811. It is an interior township, lying south-west of the center of the county, and contains 11,996 square acres. The surface is broken in the north-east part by Conneaut Lake, which lies mainly in this township. It is a beautiful sheet of water, four miles long by two wide, abounding in fish, and its outlet is the only considerable stream in the township. The old Beaver and Beaver & Erie canals pass through the township and unite a little north of the north line, in Summit. The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. enters the township upon the south border, but leaves it again in a very short distance.

The population in 1870 was 1,068, of whom 1,036 were native, 32, foreign, and all, except one, white.

During the year ending, June 3, 1872, it contained seven schools and employed fourteen teachers. The number of scholars was 277; the average number attending school, 214; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,205.29.

EVANSBURG, (p. o.) is beautifully situated on Conneaut Lake, seven miles from Meadville. It contains three churches, two hotels, and had, in 1870, 174 inhabitants. It possesses rare attractions to the lovers of piscatorial sports, and one of the finest hotels in the county, on the opposite side of the lake, dispenses excellent accommodations. This is one of the oldest towns in the county.

SHERMANSVILLE (p. o.) situated in the north-western part, on the Beaver and Erie Canal, was once a thriving town of about 250 inhabitants. It derives its name from the late Anson Sherman, an early settler, who died the present year (1873) at the age of seventy-nine years.

EVANSBURG STATION, (Stony Point p. o.) is situated near the south line, on the A. & G. W. R. R.

We are not advised of the date of first settlement, nor by whom it was made, but settlements were made as early as 1798 or '9 and perhaps earlier. At that time Samuel and Matthew Williamson came in from the southern part of the State. Dennis Hughes came from New Jersey in 1802, but was preceded in his settlement by a Mr. Craven, who occupied a log cabin, built under the direction of Gen. Mead, on the site of Sherman'sville. Mr. Hughes was a robust man, well fitted to grapple with the trials incident to pioneer life. His son, John Hughes, was then eleven years old and is now in his eightieth year. He served as a volunteer in the war of 1812, and offered his services during the war of the Rebellion, but owing to old age and infirmity he was rejected. At the time of his father's settlement salt was $20 to $22 per barrel. It was brought from the lake in small quantities, there being no roads by which it could be conveyed in wagons.

SOUTH SHENANGO was formed together with North and West Shenango in 1811. It lies upon the south border, near the south-west corner of the county, and contains 17,103 square acres. West Shenango was taken off April 14, 1863. The surface is drained by small streams flowing south-west into Shenango Creek, which separates this from West Shenango township. The Erie & Pittsburgh R. R. passes through the western part, adjacent to Shenango Creek.

The population in 1870 was 1,042, all of whom were white, 965, native and 77, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained eight schools and employed fourteen teachers. The number of scholars was 249; the average number attending school, 214; and the amount expended for school purposes $2,154.04.

MCLEANS CORNERS is situated in the south-west part, on the E. & P. R. R.

SOUTH SHENANGO is situated in the north-west part, on the E. & P. R. R.

MARSHALL CORNERS (p. o.) is situated near the center of the township.

JAMESTOWN, (p. v.) situated on the line of Mercer county, is partially in this township.

There is but one saw mill in the township. It is located in the north-east part, on the road leading from Jamestown to Linesville, was built in May, 1872, and is owned by Wm. H. and Robert A. Blair.

In 1795, and, as far as our information extends, previous to the settlement of the township, the camp of William Power, who was engaged in making surveys of tracts now embraced in South Shenango, was robbed by a band of Indians, on the 5th of June, and James Thompson, who had charge of the camp at the time, was taken prisoner, but subsequently effected his escape. The locality where this event occurred was known to the settlers as the "White Thorn Corner."

The first settlement of which we have information was made the following year, (1796) or about that time, by Hugh Fletcher, a native of Ireland. Robert McComahey and James Davis, also from Ireland, and M. Marshall, from Westmoreland county, came in 1797. McComahey came with knapsack and camp kettle upon his back and settled on the farm now owned by his son of the same name. Soon after his arrival he went to Westmoreland county and returned with cattle, sheep and horses, but his shirts and dishes were stolen by the Indians during his absence. He bought 200 acres, paying therefor one dollar per acre. He died in his eightieth year. Davis located on the farm now owned by his son William. He died in his fifty-first year. Marshall settled on the farm now owned by Wm. McLean. His son Joseph, who is living on the State road, was the first white child born in South Shenango. Michael Marshall came from Perry county, in 1798, and settled the farm owned by Wallace Marshall, which he worked till his death. Robert Bennett settled on the place owned by his son Samuel, in 1798 or '9, and died here in 1842. He was a soldier in the war of 1812. James Dickey came from Washington county, in 1799, and purchased of John Grimes, for a gun, powder horn and blanket, 100 acres, where his son, N. Dickey, now resides. He died at the age of eighty. John Gallagher, a native of Ireland, emigrated to this country in 1799. He landed at Baltimore, and after a short stay there he came to this township, on foot from Pittsburgh, and took up land on tract 810, now owned by his children, Sarah and John Gallagher, in 1800. He married his wife in Fayette county and brought her here in 1806. He died in 1832, aged 67 years. Solomon Dowlhott, John Nevins and John Mullian became settlers in 1801. Dowlhott was from Westmoreland county. He located on the farm owned by his son William, and died in his 69th year. Nevins was a native of the Emerald Isle. Mullian came from Washington county, accompanied by his son of the same name, and settled the farm owned by the latter.

The Shenango United Presbyterian Church was organized with about ten members, in 1801, by Rev. Daniel McLean, the first pastor. The Society first worshiped in a tent. In 1805, or about that year, a log house was erected, and in 1818 the present edifice, which is situated one mile north of the State road, and will seat 500 persons, was built at a cost of about $400. At present the Society is without a pastor. The Church property is valued at $1,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. Wm. McLean.]

North Bank M. E. Church, situated in the north-west corner, was organized with nine members, in 1824, by Charles Thorn, Charles Elliott and Charles Campbell, the former of whom was the first pastor. The church edifice, which will seat 350 persons, was erected in 1851, at a cost of $700, or twice the present value of Church property. The Society numbers 38. The pastor is Rev. I. D. Darling.

Ebenezer Church, (Ass. Reformed) situated north of the center of the township, was organized with thirty-five members, in 1868, by Rev. James Borrows, the first and present pastor, who is our informant, and the house of worship, which will seat 300 persons, was erected the same year, at a cost of $2,200. The Church consists of fifty members, and its property is valued at $2,500.

SPARTA was formed in 1830. It is the north-east corner township in the county, and contains 23,913 square acres. It is well watered by the east branch of Oil Creek, which passes through the central part, and the north-west branch of Spring Creek and Spaulding and Brittain runs, tributary to it. It has an important lumber manufacturing interest, its seven saw mills and three shingle mills having an aggregate capacity for cutting about 13,000,000 feet of lumber and 10,000,000 shingles per annum. The Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley R. R. crosses the township along the valley of Oil Creek, and affords ample facilities for the transportation of the vast quantities of lumber manufactured here.

The population in 1870 was 1,131, of whom 1,088 were native, 43, foreign and all, except three, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained eight schools and employed thirteen teachers. The number of scholars was 249; the average number attending school, 212; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,688.54.

SPARTANSBURG, (p. v.) situated on the east-branch of Oil Creek and the Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley R. R., a little north-east of the center of the township, is a thriving village of about 600 inhabitants. It is rapidly improving, both in the number of buildings and inhabitants. It contains two churches, two hotels, fourteen stores of various kinds, two carriage shops, a woolen mill, steam tannery, saw and planing mill and a cabinet shop. The first store, (which is now occupied by Blackmer & Farley as a boot and shoe store,) was built in 1837, by Andrew and Aaron Akin, from whom the place was known as Akinsville, which name it retained until the establishment of the post office, when the present one was substituted. It was incorporated as a borough in 1856. Its population in 1870 was 457.

Spartan Lodge No. 372 A. Y. M. was organized Jan. 2, 1867, and is in a prosperous condition. John G. Burlingham is W. M.

BRITTAIN is a hamlet in the south-west part on Brittain Run.

GLYNDON STATION is situated on the south line and on the O. C. & V. E. R. R.

The settlement of this township was commenced at a comparatively recent date, by Reuben and Abraham Blakeslee, father and son, who came from Washington county, N. Y., to Meadville in 1817, and to Sparta, April 11th, 1818. They located on the place now occupied by Abraham, who was sixty-two years old Jan. 4, 1872. Reuben died July 20, 1848, aged sixty-two years, and his wife Prudence, died Feb. 8, 1851, at the same age. Near the door of their residence stands an apple tree which is forty-five years old and measures seven and one-half feet in circumference. David Blakeslee, who was born at New Haven, Conn., May 12, 1740, came in from Granville, N. Y., the same year, and settled upon a tract of 175 acres which he cleared and on which his son, Jesse A., who was then sixteen years old, is still living.

SPRING was formed from Beaver in 1830. It lies upon the north border of the county, west of the center, and contains 26,102 square acres. It is drained in the west by Conneaut Creek and in the east by the headwaters of Little Cussewago Creek. The soil is of good quality and is well and profitably cultivated. The Erie & Pittsburgh R. R. crosses the township in close proximity to the west border, and the old Beaver & Erie Canal extends along the valley of Conneaut Creek. It is a fine dairy township, and possesses valuable manufacturing interests. At one time it contained no less than seven distilleries, all of which did a good business.

The population in 1870 was 1,522, of whom 1,457 were native, 65, foreign and all, except one, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained twenty-one schools. The number of scholars was 837; the average number attending school, 670; and the amount expended for school purposes, $4,939.11.

CONNEAUTVILLE, (p. v.) located on the south line, west of the center, and on Conneaut Creek and the old Beaver & Erie Canal, is surrounded by a rich and populous agricultural district, for the products of which, especially those of the dairy, it is the principal shipping point, and this is true not only of the country in the immediate vicinity, but also of the whole western portion of the county. Most of the lumber and the articles manufactured therefrom in this section seek a market through this channel. It is distant one and one-half miles east of the E. & P. R. R., and contains five churches, a fine public school, a newspaper office, (The Courier and Record), a bank, (The First National Bank of Conneautville, which was organized Jan. 1, 1864,) two hotels, two drug stores and several dry goods stores and groceries, two iron foundries, (one of which, F. M. Robinson's, manufactures portable and stationary engines, saw and grist mill machinery, sash, doors, blinds, window and door frames, and comprises a turning shop,) a tannery, (which gives employment to six persons and tans about 200 sides of leather per week,) John Spellacy's shook factory, (which gives employment to nine persons and manufactures about 200,000 shooks per annum—about one-third the number made previous to the insurrection in Cuba, to which place most of them were shipped,) three harness shops, four blacksmith shops, and had, in 1870, 1,000 inhabitants. It lies partially in Summerhill, and was incorporated as a borough in 1845. Its streets are mostly shaded with maples, and it presents an appearance of neatness and thrift.

The Crawford County Agricultural Society, the pioneer organization of the county, and the only one now in existence, holds a fair here on the first Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of October in each year.

SPRING (p. v.) is situated on Conneaut Creek, a little west of the center of the township, and contains three churches, one hotel, a drug store and a tin shop. It was incorporated as a borough in 1867, and in 1870 had a population of 323.

RUNDEL is a hamlet in the south-east corner, and contains a store, steam saw mill and cheese box factory, carriage shop, blacksmith shop, hand rake factory, cheese factory and millinery shop. The country in the vicinity is adapted and chiefly devoted to dairying.

Settlement was commenced as early as 1795, in which year Alex. Power, from Cumberland county, who, if not the first, was one of the first to settle in the township, located on the site of Conneautville. He was engaged the previous year in the first surveys made in Spring, and took up 800 acres, a part of which he gave to settlers, the remainder being still owned by the Power family. He built the first grist mill in the township, and the first saw mill west of French Creek. He also erected the first house in Spring, though the first framed house was built by Wm. Crosier. Other early settlers, though in what year we are not advised, were Justus Ross, from Monroe county, N. Y., Robert Temple, from Seneca county in the same State, Henry Hadsell, from Connecticut, Isaac Thayer, from Sadsbury, James Patterson, Wm. McGuire, who settled first in Beaver, and subsequently in Spring, Stephen Eighmy, from Saratoga county, N. Y., and Samuel W. Sheldon, from Steuben county, in the same State. John Foster, Robert Nelson, from Philadelphia, Samuel Thompson and James Fetterman, settled here in 1796. These early settlers were accustomed to procure their provisions from Pittsburgh. They conveyed them in boats up French Creek as far as Meadville, and thence upon their backs, a distance of sixteen miles, through the woods, being guided by blazed trees. Foot paths were the best roads which the wilderness then afforded. The animals indigenous to the climate were abundant and frequently troublesome. Game was an important item in the bill of fare of those days. Robert McCoy settled here about 1797. His son, Wm. R. McCoy, was born here in 1803. Thomas Foster located here about 1800; Thomas Bowman, from Utica, N. Y., in 1815; Barker Wells, from Conn., in 1816; Samuel Wetmore, from Oneida county, N. Y., a soldier of the war of 1812, in 1817, on the farm upon which he now lives; Platt Rogers, from Dutchess county, N. Y., and Isaac Hurd, from Bennington county, Vt., in 1818; Oliver Hall, from Onondaga county, N. Y., in 1819; and Elijah Thompson, from Vermont, in 1822. Black salts was the chief article of commerce with these pioneers and about the only thing which commanded ready money. They made their own sugar, and traded the surplus for other necessities, sometimes exchanging for fresh fish, pound for pound. So scarce an article was money that many went barefoot to Meadville to attend general training rather than subject themselves to a fine of only fifty cents. The first school house in the township was constructed of logs and was located about one and one-half miles north of Spring borough.

Spring Christian Church, at Spring borough, was organized about 1823. The first pastor was Rev. ——— Morrison; the present one is Rev. J. J. Summerbell, our informant. The Society consists of about 130 members, and its property, consisting of two church buildings and a parsonage, is valued at $5,500.

The First Presbyterian Church, at Conneautville, was organized with nine members, Oct. 31, 1835, by Rev. P. Hassinger. The first church edifice was erected in 1838. The present one, which will seat 400 persons, was dedicated June 14, 1871. It is a fine brick structure, with stone window caps and corners, and a spire 140 feet high. The audience room is finely frescoed and is furnished with modern improvements. Its cost was $17,000. The first pastor was Rev. J. W. Dickey; the present one is Rev. Moses D. A. Steen. There are ninety-six members. The Church property is valued at $25,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. A. P. Foster.]

The M. E. Church was organized with seven members, in 1836, by Rev. Daniel Richey, the first pastor, and the house of worship, which will seat 300 persons, and is located on Center St., was erected in 1863, at a cost of $1,500. The Church is composed of fifty members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. J. B. Wright, and the property is valued at $2,500.—[Information furnished by Mr. G. R. Cook.]

The First Baptist Church of Conneautville was organized in the fall of 1847, by Rev. ——— Whipple, and the church edifice, which will seat 150 persons, was erected in 1848, at a cost of $800, twice the present value of Church property. The Church contains sixteen members, but is without a pastor.

STEUBEN was formed from Athens in 1861. It is an interior township, lying east of the center of the county, and contains 13,772 square acres. It is drained in the east by Oil Creek and small streams tributary to it, and in the west by the head waters of Muddy Creek and the north branch of Sugar Creek. It possesses abundant railroad facilities, being traversed in the eastern part by the Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley and Union & Titusville railroads, which run parallel with and adjacent to Oil Creek, and in the central part by the Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R.

The manufacture of lumber is carried on quite extensively. There are four saw mills with an aggregate capacity for cutting six and one-half millions feet of lumber per annum; two shingle and two stave mills, and one shingle and stave mill combined, capable of making in the aggregate about six millions of shingles and five millions of staves; the whole giving employment to about thirty persons. Geo. A. Brice & Co., employ eleven men in the manufacture of wagons and carriages, to the value of about $12,000 per annum.

The population in 1870 was 1,020, of whom 968 were native, 52, foreign and all, white.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained eight schools and employed sixteen teachers. The number of scholars was 281; the average number attending school, 182; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,762.38.

TOWNVILLE, (p. v.) situated on Muddy Creek, near the south-west corner of the township, contains three churches, one school, two hotels, five stores, four blacksmith shops, two carriage shops, one grist mill, two wooden bowl manufactories, two milliner shops, a photograph gallery, three doctors' offices, and had, in 1870, 280 inhabitants. It was incorporated as a borough in 1869. Messrs. Kingsley and Post were the first two to build here, the former in 1833, and the latter in 1837.

TRYONVILLE, (p. o.) situated in the north-east part on Oil Creek and on the Union & Titusville and Oil Creek & Allegheney Valley railroads, contains one church, (M. E.) one school, one hotel, two stores, a cooper shop and forty-seven dwellings. The first buildings were erected here by James and David Tryon, who came from Connecticut about forty years ago, purchased a tract of 700 acres, and built a grist and saw mill upon the creek.

CLAPPVILLE is situated one and one-half miles south of Tryonville and contains a school, store, saw mill, blacksmith shop and seventeen houses. The Pennsylvania Petroleum R. R., when completed, will have a station here, which is to be named Waidville, by which name the place is now frequently designated. It was first settled about forty years ago, by a Mr. Clapp, from whom it derives its name.

The First Baptist Church of Steuben, at Townville, was organized with fifty members, in 1851, by a council of delegates from other Baptist Churches. The church edifice, which will seat 270 persons, was erected in 1854, at a cost of $1000, and about $400 are now being expended in its repair. The first pastor was Rev. Warren D. Bradford; the present one is Rev. Charles W. Drake. The Society numbers eighty-five, and its property is valued at $3,000.

Calvary Church, (Episcopal,) at Townville, was organized with nine members, by Rev. Henry Fitch, in 1867, in which year was commenced the building of the house of worship, which was completed in 1873, and will seat 175 persons. The first services were conducted by Rev. S. T. Lord, a missionary. There is no regular pastor, services being held by clergymen from Meadville and Titusville. There are sixteen members. The Church property is valued at $5,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. P. Rose.

SUMMERHILL was formed in 1830. It is an interior township, lying west of the center of the county and contains 14,603 square acres. It is watered in the western part by Conneaut Creek, and numerous small streams tributary to it, and in the eastern part by a small stream which empties into Little Cussewago Creek, in the western part of Cussewago township, and by the head waters of Pine Run, which discharges into Conneaut Lake. The old Beaver & Erie Canal extends through the township, along the valley of Conneaut Creek.

Among the more important manufacturing establishments are McMullin's and J. Close's steam saw mills, the former situated about three miles south of Conneautville, and the latter in the south-eastern part of the township, each giving employment to three persons and being capable of sawing 4,000 feet of lumber per day; McDowell & Hammond's cheese factory, situated at Dicksonburg, which was erected in 1873, gives employment to two persons, and manufactures the first quality of Cheddar cheese, in quantity about ten cheeses per day, each weighing fifty-seven pounds; and J. & R. Wormald's woolen factory, located in the eastern part of Conneautville, (which is partially in this township,) which occupies a large three-story building, erected in 1843 for a carding and fulling mill, and which was adapted to its present uses in 1849. It is operated by water, and has recently been repaired and furnished throughout with new and improved machinery. Six to eight persons are employed and 15,000 to 18,000 pounds of wool annually consumed in the manufacture of cloths, cassimeres, flannels, blankets, yarn, &c.

DICKSONBURG (p. o.) (formerly known as McDowell,) is situated on Conneaut Creek, in the south-west part of the township.

NORRISVILLE (p. o.) is situated a little north of the center of the township.

Settlement was commenced as early as 1803, by Valentine P. Gwin, of French descent, who is still living in the township at the age of seventy-seven years. His father accompanied Lafayette to this country and served under him in the Federal army till the close of the Revolutionary war. He then settled in Berks county and worked at his trade—that of a blacksmith—until 1803. He died in 1821.

The Evangelical Church of Summerhill was organized with twenty-five members, in 1863, by Rev. James Crossman, the first pastor, and their church edifice, which will seat 300 persons, was erected in 1871, at a cost of $1,800, the present value of Church property. There are thirty-four members. The pastor is Rev. ——— Myers.—[Information furnished by Mr. Minor Walton.

The M. E. Church, at Dicksonburg, erected their first house of worship in 1835, and the present one, which will seat 300 persons, in 1851, at a cost of $975. The Society numbers eighty and its property is valued at $4,000. The pastor is Rev. A. R. Rich.—[Information furnished by Mr. John F. McDowell.]

SUMMIT was formed in 1841. It is an interior township, lying west of the center of the county, and contains 14,012 square acres. It is drained in the eastern part by Pine Run, which flows south into Conneaut Lake, the northern part of which lies in this township, and in the north by the head waters of Conneaut Creek. The old Beaver & Erie Canal extends north through the central part, and unites with the Beaver Canal near the center of the south line.

Upon the farm of Mr. Almon Whiting in the south-east part of the township is a fine bed of marl, which is used as a fertilizer.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,034, all of whom were white, 991, native and 43, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained nine schools and employed ten teachers. The number of scholars was 272; the average number attending school, 227; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,240.97.

HARMONSBURG (p. o.) is situated on Pine Run, at the head of Conneaut Lake, a little east of the center of the township.

Settlement was commenced by Joseph and Jacob Gehr, brothers, with their families, including Samuel, Adam, David and Baltzar Gehr, but in what year we have not determined, though it was probably near the beginning of the present century. Baltzar, being the youngest and not over fond of work, was furnished with a gun and ammunition and was expected to supply the two families with game. Adam Foust and Henry Bright settled here in 1797. Foust came from Berks county and purchased 1,200 acres of land on the east bank of Conneaut Lake. Michael Foust, his son, came with him at the age of six years. He says this section of country was then a wilderness. There was but one house between them and Meadville, and that was unoccupied. Bright came from Bedford county, at the age of twenty-five years, and settled upon a tract of 200 acres on the site of Harmonsburg. His parents were captured by the Indians during the Revolution and were literally starved to death. James McClure came in from Mifflin county, in 1798, and bought of one named Field a tract of 400 acres, one-half of which he subsequently gave to his cousin, John McClure, as an inducement to settle upon it. In 1814 James returned to Mifflin county to care for his father in his old age, and in 1827, six years after the latter's death, he again removed to his new home in Summit, and died there in 1852. His son, John, still lives upon the old homestead. He has a tannery upon the farm and works a little at the business. William McFaden, from Philadelphia, settled here in 1801. Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, his daughter, of Venango township, was born here in 1803. Daniel Close, came from Union county in 1823, and settled upon a tract of 400 acres, which he bought at an advance of $50 of Judge Smith, of Waterford, who purchased it at auction sale the same day for $1,200. There were then no improvements from this tract to the Cussewago, though many had settled and made improvements on the Meadville road.

The following, entitled "A CURIOUS CUT IN A TREE," is an extract from The Conneautville Courier and Record, and as we have not had opportunity to examine and determine its significance we give it, with the credit, without comment:

"Mr. Eli Brown, of Summit township, in felling a large oak tree on his farm, noticed in one of the large splinters torn out of the center of the stump the marks of a sharp instrument, the cut seeming to have been made with an ax or something similar. Mr. Brown had the curiosity to count the layers marking each year's growth from the cut to the outside, and was surprised to find them to number upwards of three hundred, showing that the cutting must have been done as early as 1573. The block of wood was brought to our office, where it may be seen."

TROY was formed in 1830. It lies upon the south border of the county, east of the center, and contains 17,581 square acres. It is watered in the western and central parts by the north and east branches of Sugar Creek, which unite near the south-west corner. Oil Creek crosses the north-east corner. The Oil Creek & Allegheny Valley, Union & Titusville and Pennsylvania Petroleum railroads cross the north-east corner of the township in close proximity. Among the manufacturing establishments are S. B. Hayes' saw mill, which is located on the east branch of Sugar Creek, employs two men and is capable of sawing 4,000 feet of lumber and 10,000 shingles per day; A. T. & J. C. Burns' saw and shingle mills, which are located on the west branch of Sugar Creek, and are capable of sawing 1,500 feet of lumber and 5,000 to 8,000 shingles per day; Albert F. Newton's steam saw mill, which is situated on Oil Creek and the line of the P. P. R. R., and saws 8,000 feet of lumber per day; and the saw and stave mills of Johnson & Boush of Meadville, which are located in the western part of the township, give employment to twenty-seven men, and are capable of sawing 10,000 feet of lumber and 10,000 staves and heading per day. The timber is brought from the woods to the mill upon a tram-way one and one-half miles in length.

The population of the township in 1870 was 983, all of whom were white, 954, native and 29, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained ten schools and employed ten teachers. The number of scholars was 277; the average number attending school, 214; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,165.87.

TROY CENTER, (p. o.) situated on the east branch of Sugar Creek, near the geographical center of the township, contains a school, grocery, cooper shop, wagon shop and ten houses. Peter Keyes was the first white man to build here, though when he came a negro known as "Black Francis" was living there in a log hut.

NEWTONTOWN, situated in the eastern part, on the line of the P. P. R. R., contains a school, hotel, grocery and saw mill. It derives its name from Edmond C. Newton, who located here Jan. 6, 1847, and purchased of Samuel Sinclair, who is thought to have preceded him by thirty years, his property, consisting of 200 acres of land, only four of which were cleared, a log hut and a saw mill. Newton came from the town of Gerry, Chautauqua county, N. Y., at the age of thirty-three years, and died at Newtontown, Dec. 5, 1872. Wm. McGinnis and John Reynolds were early settlers in this locality.

Settlement was commenced by James Luse, who came from Essex county, N. J., about 1795, and located on the place now occupied by his grandson, Robert A. Luse. His wagon is said to have been the third one which left Pittsburgh for Meadville. When he came no one was living within nine miles of him. Jacob Rishel came with his father from Cooperstown, N. Y., about 1833, with a yoke of oxen, having at that late day to cut their own road a distance of nine miles. They settled upon the place now occupied by the former, on road 12 (see map.) Peabody Faunce came in March, 1838, and located at "Faunce-town," in the western part, upon a tract of land purchased of John McKenzie, who left the place a few years before and went to Cooperstown, and is supposed to have settled it five years before Faunce bought.

UNION was formed from Vernon, Fairfield and Greenwood in October, 1867. It is an interior township, lying a little south-west of the center, and contains 8,322 square acres. It is bounded on the east by French Creek, and on the south and west by Conneaut Outlet, which is a marshy waste one-half to three-fourths of a mile wide, with but little fall from the north-west corner of this township to its intersection with French Creek. Partial arrangements have been made to dredge it and thus reclaim large tracts of exceedingly fertile land overflowed by it. The surface of the township is rolling, especially in the southern part, the central portion being the most elevated. The people are chiefly engaged in agriculture, grain being the staple production.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. crosses the northern part of the township, and the old Beaver Canal runs in proximity to Conneaut Outlet.

The population in 1870 was 622, all of whom were white, 508, native and 114, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained seven schools and employed nine teachers. The number of scholars was 292; the average number attending school, 185; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,146.11.

DUTCH HILL (p. o.) is situated a little north of the center of the township.

Settlement was commenced near the beginning of the present century. One of the first settlers was James Smith, who came from the valley of the Tuscarora, in Juniata county, in 1805. Leonard Smock, a native of New Jersey, moved in from Westmoreland county near this time, and settled one-half mile north of Conneaut Outlet. His son, Cornelius, who was born in Union, in November, 1806, says that Indians were numerous and wild beasts abundant, especially in the Conneaut marsh. The nearest mill was at Peterson's, in Greenwood, and although the distance was not great the roads were so bad that they would defer a journey thither until the meal box was thoroughly scraped out. It was the custom of the miller at times to keep bread in the mill for his customers to lunch upon. John Thatcher came in from Greenwood, his native township, in 1810. Daniel Holton removed from Rhode Island to Meadville in 1796, and to Union in 1815. His son, Baanah, says he (Daniel) drove the first team into Meadville. Peter Kebert, from Germany, settled here in 1830. Francis Stein, from Bavaria, came in 1832. He came by canal from Albany to Buffalo, by lake to Erie, and thence on foot to his destination—his present place of residence. Daniel Hammon, from Germany, settled here in 1833, and a Mr. Huber, from New Jersey, in 1834. The first school, a framed building, was built in 1838, on the Aqueduct road; and the first church was erected in 1837, on the State road. It was a log structure and was converted to a framed building in 1854, by Wm. Stitt.

Mount Pleasant Church (M. E.) was organized with twelve members, in 1826, by John Leech and H. Kinsley, who officiated as first pastors. The Society worshiped at first in school houses. Their house of worship was erected in 1858, at a cost of $1,000. It will seat 300 persons. There are forty-five members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. F. Fair. The Church property is valued at $1,200.

VENANGO was formed in 1811. It lies near the center of the north border of the county, and contains 9,871 square acres. The surface is generally rolling, being somewhat uneven in the central and north-western parts. The north-east part is more level and contains some very fine farms. Along Conneautte Creek is some marshy land, which is generally well timbered. It is abundantly watered by French and Conneautte creeks, which form the east boundary, and the streams flowing into them, the principal of which is Stokes Run. The soil, which is easily cultivated and very productive, is a sandy and gravelly loam, except in the north-west, which is more elevated, where a clay loam predominates. The township is mostly improved, there being but little more timbered land left than is required to supply the farmers' wants, though it contains two steam saw mills. The farmers are chiefly engaged in stock raising and dairying, cheese being the principal product of the dairy. Wheat and corn are some of the crops raised.

The population in 1870 was 623, all of whom were white, 571, native and 52, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained seven schools and employed twelve teachers. The number of scholars was 264; the average number attending school, 234; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,198.92.

VENANGO, (p. v.) is beautifully situated on the west bank of French Creek, in the south-east corner of the township, eleven miles above Meadville, and contains three churches, one large brick school, one hotel, three dry goods, one hardware and one drug stores, a woolen factory, saw mill, flouring mill, tannery, three blacksmith shops, a wagon and carriage shop, two harness shops, one shoe shop, two cooper shops, a livery stable, and had, in 1870, a population of 318. It was incorporated as a borough in 1853.

Settlement was commenced in 1794, by Thomas Campbell and Christopher Siverling, from Westmoreland county. They moved their families here in 1796, on horseback, that of the latter including, Christopher, John and Daniel Siverling. At that time there was no wagon road in this country. Campbell located on French Creek, on the farm upon which Jacob Kepler now lives; and Siverling, one mile higher up the creek, upon what is known as the Tarr farm. Christopher Siverling, son of John, says that two bushels of corn, a small quantity of beef and a few turnips, which had been sown by members of the family who visited the place in the summer, constituted the entire stock of provisions on which his grand-father's family had to subsist during the first winter, except such as was afforded by the streams and forest. Pittsburgh was the nearest place where necessities could be obtained. Siverling built the first framed barn. Thomas Colter, who was born in Philadelphia, in 1865, settled here in 1796, and his uncle, Robert Logue, came the same year. They located the farm on which Frank Colter now lives, and each built a log cabin. Robert Colter, who was born in March, 1797, says he was the first white child born in the township. He relates that one evening, three or four years after his fathers settlement, a bear raised the logs of their pig pen and took therefrom the pig, with which he beat a retreat. Mr. Colter followed in hot pursuit with an ax, and as it was dark, Mrs. Colter followed with a torch light. Bruin was overtaken near a brush fence, which retarded his progress, and Mrs. Colter immediately applied the torch to his shaggy hair, which was soon ablaze and caused him to beat a hasty retreat without his porcine burden, the fire in the meantime spreading over his entire body. The pig however was handled so roughly that it died. Wolves were also very troublesome and necessitated the yarding of the sheep every night. The last wolf hunt took place about 1821. Twenty men and twenty dogs engaged in it and drove the enemy of their flocks across the Cussewago, whence they never returned to molest them. Samuel Quay came from Susquehanna county in 1797 and settled upon the farm upon which his son John now resides. Henry Bole came from Ireland to this county in 1793, and to this township in 1798. He located on the farm on which improvements had been commenced by Charles Stewart. Before coming here he was in the employ of Gen. Meade, at Meadville. Wm. Bole, his brother, came at the same time. John Bole, son of Henry, says his father built the first barn and the second framed house, the first one having been built by Christopher Blyston. Jacob Hogelberger, a native of Greensburgh, Westmoreland county, settled here in 1799. He was a soldier in the war of 1812 and was called to the defence of Erie. Isaac and Christian Blystone came from Lebanon county in 1800. In this year settlement was commenced on the site of Venango borough, by Philip Straw, from Westmoreland county. James Skelton came here from Philadelphia in 1801, and constructed a shelter of brush. He next built a house of such poles as one or two men could lay up, and in this he lived a number of years. Owen Skelton, his son, says this shanty afforded no shelter in a rain storm, and he recollects very distinctly of standing up when it rained while the water trickled down his body to his feet. His mother's supboard consisted of the base of a hollow birch. He says that during the first summer of their residence his father went to work fourteen miles down French Creek. He bought of one Van Horn a bushel of corn, which he got ground at Meadville on his way back. When within five mile of his home darkness overtook him and as he was very tired he staid there all night. In the morning he made his way to his famishing family. At times when they were much reduced for food his mother was accustomed to gather esculent vegetables which grew wild in the woods and mix the liquor in which they were boiled with milk. Families named Gross and Torry settled in this township in 1802. Gross located on the farm now owned by Henry Gross; and Torry on that upon which his son William now lives. Wm. Gross, son of the former, who is now eighty-three years old, had the misfortune to lose all his property on Lake Erie. Jacob Peters, a Revolutionary hero, settled here in 1804. His son, Henry, who was a soldier in the war of 1812, was then fourteen years old. He (Henry) married Miss Catharine McIntosh and died Oct. 25, 1872, aged eighty-three years. His wife survives him, though she is quite infirm. John Stokes, who was born near Reading, Pa., came to this county in 1804, and to this township Feb. 5, 1805. He settled on the farm where his son Samuel now lives, on which some slight improvements had been made. He served in the army in the war of 1812. His widow, who is still living at the age of ninety-four years, is the last of the first settlers left in the township. Joseph L. Perkins, who was born in Frederick county, Maryland, in 1807, came with his parents to Venango, in 1817. After a useful and active life, during which he was the first postmaster of Venango borough, and held for upwards of a quarter of a century the office of justice of the peace, he died at his residence Sept. 6, 1873, aged sixty-six years. In the latter year (1817) John Lasher and Solomon Walters purchased the improvements of Philip Straw, on the site of the borough. Anticipating the location of the turnpike through this place they laid out a village plot; but failing to realize their expectations in this particular, the thriving town they pictured still remained in embryo. In 1820, Walters sold his interest comprising the principal part of the present borough, to Michael Peiffer, who, in company with Jacob Sherrets, soon after built a saw mill. This, together with the mill privilege and eighteen acres of land was bought, in 1829, by Asa Freeman; and in 1832, John Kleckner, who moved in from Lycoming county the previous year, purchased the Pieffer tract, together with the mill property and the farm owned by Christopher Siverling, now known as the Tarr farm. That year he built a new saw mill near the old one, which he repaired. In 1838 he had the town lot surveyed and gave it the name of Klecknerville, which was changed to Venango when the borough was incorporated, and in 1841, he built a grist mill, the second one in the township. From this date the changes indicating the growth of the borough, become too numerous and intricate for the scope of this work.

Zion Church (Lutheran) was organized with fourteen members, in 1816, by Rev. Robert Colston. The first church edifice, a log structure, was built the same year; the present one, which will seat 400 persons, was erected in 1838 and '9, at a cost of $1,000. The first pastor was Rev. Elihu Rathbun; the present one is Rev. J. H. Smith, who has accepted a call extended him. The Society numbers sixty-five. Its property is valued at $5,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. George Kleckner, who says this was the first Church organized and the first church building erected in Venango borough.

The M. E. Church of Venango Borough was organized with ten members, in 1843, by Rev. Ahab Keller, the first pastor, and their house of worship, which will seat 300 persons, was erected in 1846, at a cost of $1,200. The Society numbers thirty-two. It is under the pastoral care of Rev. R. E. Smith, and its property is valued at $1,800.—[Information furnished by Mr. Isaac Peiffer.

"Stuarts Run Cemetery Methodist Church" was organized with twenty-five members, in 1843, by Revs. Messrs. Scofield and Bear, who were the first pastors, and the church edifice, which will seat 200 persons, was erected the same year, at a cost of $600. The Church property is valued at $500.—[Information furnished by Mr. I. H. Skelton.

VERNON was formed in 1830. It is an interior township, lying upon the west bank of French Creek, a little south-west of the center of the county, and contains 16,194 square acres. Its streams, in addition to French Creek, are Cussewago Creek in the north-east part, Conneaut Outlet on the south border, both of which are tributary to the former creek; and VanHorns and Watson runs in the central and western parts, the former flowing into French Creek and the latter into Conneaut Outlet. The old Beaver Canal crosses the south-west corner, and the Atlantic & Great Western R. R. just enters the township upon the south border.

The population in 1870 was 1,615, all of whom were white, 1,353, native and 262, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained twelve schools and employed sixteen teachers. The number of scholars was 554; the average number attending school, 452; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,353.87.

VALLONIA, (p. v.) situated on French Creek, opposite Meadville, was organized as a borough in 1869. It contains a store, two lager beer breweries, a malt house, tannery, stave factory, two blacksmith shops, a carriage shop, paint shop, three brick yards, and about 250 inhabitants.

The first settlement of this township was contemporary with that of the county, as the first nine settlers, including the three Meads, after one or two days' explorations on the east side of French Creek, in the vicinity of Meadville, crossed that stream above the mouth of the Cussewago, and erected a temporary place of residence, about the middle of May, 1788. "They then commenced plowing one of the old Indian fields, with four horses to the plow, and after breaking up some eight or ten acres, they planted them with corn. A freshet in the stream soon after destroyed their crop, and it was replanted in the month of June." Those who settled on the west side of the creek, in Vernon, were John and David Mead, the former about one mile north of the site of Meadville, and the latter upon a tract immediately south of him, but which he soon abandoned to occupy the location first selected by Thomas Grant—the site of Meadville—where he erected a cabin in the north part of the village which bears his name, and Cornelius VanHorne, who moved into an old Indian cabin which stood upon the track he selected. In October VanHorne was visited by Archibald Davidson, Sr. and Jr. and Jacob VanHorne, who remained about a week, when the four returned to New Jersey, whence VanHorne came. In the fall of 1789 VanHorn again visited this locality and remained until Christmas, when he again returned to New Jersey. In October, 1790, he, in company with Thomas Lacey and Peter and Matthew Colsher, left New Jersey for his new home with a wagon drawn by two horses. They came via Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. At the latter place they sold their horses and conveyance and proceeded thence to the Cussewago in a canoe.

The first few years of settlement were fraught with danger as well as privation, for the frequent threatened and actual attacks of bands of hostile Indian's rendered life upon these frontiers perilous, and several times impelled the settlers to abandon their lands and seek safety at Franklin, the nearest fortified place of any pretensions. The house of David Mead was fortified and in it the settlers were accustomed to congregate when suddenly and unexpectedly attacked. We extract from Incidents in the Early History of Crawford County, Pa., by Alfred Huidekoper, the following episode which forms an interesting chapter in the early history of this county, and is an event which occurred in 1791 and in which one of the first settlers in this township took a prominent part:—

"About the first of May, Cornelius Van Horn, Christopher Lantz, William Gregg and Thomas Ray, volunteered to leave the fort at Franklin, and return to Meadville, with their guns in their hands, and endeavor to put in a crop of corn. To do this it was necessary that Van Horn should first get his horses from Pittsburgh; and accordingly he went after them. In returning he was obliged to follow a wild path through the woods, from Pittsburgh to Venango, and he describes his ride as lonely, desolate and disagreeable. Crossing the Slippery Rock Creek the first day, he encamped for the night in a deep ravine. He had obtained some bread and two pounds of butter at Pittsburgh, out of which he made his supper, and then threw himself on his blanket to sleep with his gun by his side. Shortly afterwards he was awakened by the crackling of the fire, and found that, spreading among the dry leaves, it had communicated itself to his butter. In his endeavors to extinguish the flames, his hands were so severely burned as to prevent him from sleeping any more for the night. At day break he found that his harness was much injured by the fire, and that the horses he had turned out to browse had wandered away, so that it was ten o'clock before he was able to find them, and pursue his journey.

"The second day he progressed as far as Sandy Creek, and slept again in the woods. On his route he encountered one Indian, who was on his way to Slippery Rock, and whose good will he endeavored to gain by sharing with him from his bottle and his remaining stock of bread. On the third day he reached Franklin in safety, where he found the officer, with about twenty-five of his men, preparing to set out in a few days for Erie.

"On the fifth day of May, (Christopher Lantz being too unwell to accompany them,) Cornelius Van Horn, William Gregg and Thomas Ray, having returned to Meadville, went to their field to plant it with corn. They worked during the morning, Van Horn ploughing, and the others planting until noon, when Ray and Gregg returned to their cabin for dinner, leaving Van Horn ploughing alone, they engaging to bring his dinner to him. Shortly after they left, Van Horn, who had laid his gun on the bag of corn, at the end of the furrow, observed his horses to appear frightened, and on turning round, discovered two Indians running towards him. The foremost one threw down his bow and arrows, knocked off Van Horn's hat, and drew his tomahawk to strike. Van Horn, who, though short, was a stout built man, seized the tomahawk and held it with such force that the Indian could not wrest it from him. The second Indian, having laid down his gun, now came up and endeavored to get a stroke with his tomahawk, but Van Horn managed to keep up so much action, and to throw the other Indian between himself and the danger, that he could not accomplish it. Van Horn pleading for his life, the Indians conferred a moment together, when one of them, who spoke English, after cautioning him, with an oath, to make less noise, told him they would spare him, and that he might go with them. The Indians commenced unharnessing the horses, but Van Horn requested them to take the gears along, promising to plow for them. They took each a horse, and Van Horn ran between them. Crossing the Cussewago near its mouth, and going west, up a ravine, for about a quarter of a mile, they came to where two other Indians were waiting for them on the hill. Here the Indians inquired of Van Horn the situation of the settlement, and on learning how things stood, three of them took up their arms and went back, leaving the remaining one, an elderly Indian, in charge of the prisoner. After remaining about three-quarters of an hour, the Indian put Van Horn on one of the horses, while he rode the other, and they pursued a dim Indian path until they came to Conneaut Lake. After crossing the outlet they dismounted. The horses were fettered so that they could not escape, and the Indian then tied the rope which confined the arms of his prisoner, to a tree and left him, going back upon the trail, it is supposed, either to fish in the lake or to watch if they were pursued. When left alone, Van Horn, who had given up his knife and powder-horn to the Indian who had captured him, began to search in his pockets to see if he could find any instrument to escape with. He fortunately discovered a small toy knife, which he had picked up the day before. It was deplorably dull, but, after whetting it on the key of his chest, and sawing awhile, he succeeded in cutting off that part of the rope which confined him to the tree. He immediately ran down the outlet, crossed it, and after struggling through the swamp, succeeded in making his way eastward, until he came to a path leading up French Creek, which he followed until he reached a small nursery of apple trees he had planted near Kennedy's Bridge. Finding the nursery full of weeds, and apprehensive if the fire got among them that his trees would be injured, he commenced weeding, as well as he could with his arms fettered. He had been at work but a few minutes, when he heard some one call to him from across the creek. Fearful of danger, he dared not to answer; but when the call was repeated, he recognized the voice of John Fredebaugh, an old acquaintance. He immediately left his work, and, though the water was deep and cold, he waded through it to Fredebaugh, who conducted him to Ensign Jeffers, who, with thirty soldiers and three Indians, was at Mead's house. Jeffers cut the cord which bound Van Horn, and immediately ordered sentinels to be posted, and sent part of his men to the island for his horses, intending at once to leave for Franklin. The horses were all found but the Ensign's, and he with his men left, leaving behind two Indians and Van Horn, the latter refusing to go until he had collected some articles he wanted. He passed the night with the two Indians under some oak trees east of the present village, [Meadville] and in the morning, finding he had nothing to eat, he returned to the field where he had the day before been made a prisoner, and where he discovered, in a basket, the dinner which had been brought out for him the day before, by Gregg and Ray. After breakfast, having succeeded in catching the missing horse of Ensign Jeffers, he put his own saddle upon it, and gave it to one of the Indians to ride, while the other Indian and himself took a canoe, and descended to Franklin by water. The Indian on horseback was not heard of afterwards, and probably took his booty and rode off with it to the west.

"William Gregg and Thomas Ray, whom we left going to their cabin, after dinner went out to where they had left Van Horn, and found that he was gone, and immediately after discovered the three Indians approaching them. They retreated, but as Gregg was crossing the Cussewago Creek, near its junction with French Creek, he was shot through the thigh, and disabled for further flight. He called to Ray to assist him. Ray stopped, and the Indians came up. Both Ray and Gregg appear to have been panic stricken, or they might have defended themselves. The Indians took Gregg's gun (their own being unloaded) and shot him with it, as he was seated on the bank of the creek. They scalped and left him, taking Ray with them as a prisoner.

"They followed the trail of the Indian who had preceded them, and on arriving at Conneaut Lake found their comrade, and learned from him that Van Horn had made his escape; a circumstance which, the Indians told Ray, was entirely in his favor, as they had determined to risk taking with them but one prisoner, and that either he or Van Horn must have perished, if the latter had not eluded them. * * * After undergoing the usual vicissitudes of Indian captivity on his way to the west, his captors brought him at last in the neighborhood of a British garrison, near Detroit; here Ray, who was a Scot by birth, recognized one of the British officers (a Captain White) as a fellow-countryman, whom he had seen in Scotland. On making known his situation to Captain White, the latter, with generous benevolence, purchased his liberty from the Indians, gave him a suit of clothes, and paid his passage in a schooner to Buffalo. On reaching the latter place, Ray met with a Mohawk chief, of the name of Stripe Neck, who resided at Meadville, and who conducted him to Franklin, and from thence he proceeded to join his family at Pittsburgh, to the agreeable surprise of his relatives and friends, who had relinquished all expectation of having him return."

In the early part of 1794, the settlers organized a military company, and Cornelius Van Horn was chosen captain.

Watsons Run Church (German Reformed) was organized in 1825, by Rev. Philip Sizer, the first pastor; and the church edifice, which will seat 250 persons, was erected in 1847, at a cost of $1,200. There are about 100 members, who are under the pastoral care of Rev. ——— Apple. The Church property is valued at $2,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. John Andrews.]

Watsons Run United Presbyterian Church was organized with forty members in 1870, in which year was erected, at a cost of $1,800, the church edifice, which will seat 200 persons. The first pastor was Rev. Samuel Black, who is also the present one. The Society numbers forty, and its property is valued at $2,050.—[Information furnished by Mrs. Shartel.]

WAYNE was formed in 1811. It lies near the center of the south border of the county, and contains 20,066 square acres. The general shape of the township is that of a right-angled triangle, the hypotenuse or south-east line, bordering on Venango county, consisting of a series of right-angles, producing a somewhat singular conformation. The streams are French Creek, which crosses the extreme south-west corner of the township, and Sugar Creek and Deckers Run, which run parallel with the former stream through the township—in a south-easterly direction—and empty into it in Venango county. Sugar Lake in the north part, on the creek of the same name, is a small sheet of water, about a mile in circumference. The Franklin branch of the Atlantic & Great Western R. R., extends along the left bank of French Creek, across the south-west corner of the township.

The population in 1870 was 1,464, all of whom were white, 1,359, native and 105, foreign.

During the year ending, June 3, 1872, it contained eleven schools and employed twenty-one teachers. The number of scholars was 469; the average number attending school, 365; and the amount expended for school purposes, $2,174.54.

DECKARDVILLE, (p. o.) situated in the south part, on Deckers Run, four miles east of Cochranon, contains three churches, a school, two groceries, a shoe shop, blacksmith shop and fifty to seventy-five inhabitants. It is pleasantly located and is growing rapidly.

WAYNE CENTER post office, which was established about 1862, was discontinued in 1872.

We cannot state definitely in what year nor by whom the settlement was commenced, though it was doubtless at a much earlier date than we are able to record. We can do no better than give the names of a few of the early settlers. James D. Allen and — Wheeling, father of Mr. Jacob Wheeling, settled in the township in 1819. Allen is a native of Ireland, and is now sixty years old. He located where he now resides, when the locality was a wilderness infested by wild beasts. His nearest neighbors, the Brawleys, were two miles distant. Francis McDaniels, who was born in Ireland in 1788, immigrated to this country in 1818, and to this township in 1822, having previously resided in Lancaster county. He settled in the woods and had to make a clearing to erect his dwelling. Wm. Record, who was born in Allegheny county, in 1808, moved to his present place of residence in 1824, and was one of the first to settle in that locality. Jacob Rees came in from Philadelphia in 1829, and located on the site of Deckardville, when there was no house there and the locality was covered with a dense forest, and was the haunt of wild beasts. He was obliged to cut a road to the place of his settlement. Some idea of the animals and game which abounded here may be formed from the fact stated by Mr. John Ferry that his uncle, James Ferry, killed near Sugar Lake eighteen bears and eight hundred deer of which he kept a record. Many encounters with these denizens of the forest, involving great personal danger to those who engaged in them, are related, but the scope of this work does not admit of their repetition here.

The Evangelical Reformed Church at Deckardville, was organized with twenty-one members, in June, 1861, by Rev. L. D. Leberman, the first pastor, and the church edifice, which will seat 200 persons, was erected in 1859, at a cost of $1,000. At present the Society numbers seventy, and its property is valued at $1,250. The pastor is Rev. D. B. Ernest.—[Information furnished by Henry Hoffman and E. Noll.]

The The Church of the United Brethren, at Deckardville, was organized with twenty-six members, in 1865, by Rev. Wm. Cadman. Their house of worship, which will seat 200 persons, was erected in 1855, at a cost of $1,100. The first pastor was Rev. Daniel Bolster; the present one is Rev. R. Crispen. There are forty members. The Church property is valued at $1,200.—[Information furnished by Mr. Wm. Holtz.]

The Freevill Baptist Church, at Deckardville, was organized with forty members in September, 1865, by — Chase. Their house of worship was erected the previous year at a cost of $1,500. It will seat 200 persons. The first pastor was Rev. — Bumpus. At present the Church is without a pastor, and its membership has dwindled to fifteen. The Church property is valued at $1,600.—[Information furnished by Mr. John Waldo.]

Zions Church, (Dutch Reformed,) at Wayne Center, was organized with thirty members, July 17, 1870, by Rev. John Kretzing, the first pastor, and their house of worship, which will seat about 300 persons, was erected about the same time, at a cost of $1,600. The Church is discontinued. Its property is valued at $1,700.—[Information furnished by Mr. Thomas Allen.]

WEST FALLOWFIELD was formed from East Fallowfield in 1845. It lies upon the south border of the county, west of the center, and contains 6,629 square acres. The surface is undulating and heavily timbered, principally with pine, oak and chestnut. The soil is a clayey loam. The principal stream is Crooked Creek, which separates it from East Fallowfield. The old Beaver & Erie Canal extends through the eastern part of the township, in close proximity to Crooked Creek.

The population of the township in 1870 was 691, all of whom were white, 664, native and 27, foreign.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, the township contained five schools and employed nine teachers. The number of scholars was 204; the average number attending school, 137; and the amount expended for school purposes, $1,173.12.

HARTSTOWN (p. v.) is situated a little north of the center of the township, on the line of the old Beaver & Erie Canal and at the outlet of a large reservoir which fed the Canal, but from which, since the latter's abandonment, the water has been drawn. It was incorporated as a borough in 1851, and had, in 1870, a population of 188. The number of inhabitants has not materially changed since then. It has three churches, one school, a hotel, two stores, one harness shop, three carriage shops, two blacksmith shops, a barrel factory, a shoe shop and a steam grist mill, just completed, containing two runs of stones. The reservoir which supplied the canal at this place covered about 600 acres, and being well stocked with fish was a favorite resort for the lovers of piscatorial sport. Bass, white fish and pickerel were caught here in great abundance. The water was drawn off in 1872. Before the canal was abandoned Hartstown was a thriving village.

ADAMSVILLE (p. o.) is situated in the southern part of the township and contains two churches, (and a Society of Old-School Presbyterians who have no edifice,) three stores, two blacksmith shops, two shoe shops, one carriage shop, a steam flouring mill, (with three runs of stones and a capacity for grinding forty bushels of grain per day,) thirty dwellings and about 150 inhabitants.

Settlement was begun in the latter part of the last century. Hugh Fletcher was the first to settle in the northern part of the township. He was a native of Ireland and came here in 1797. His daughter, Sarah, was the first white female child born in Shenango township. Hugh Blair, also from Ireland, came in 1802 and settled upon a tract of one hundred acres about one mile north of Hartstown.

The Hartstown United Presbyterian Church was organized in 1830, by Dr. Dinwiddie. The first pastor was Rev. S. F. Smith. The first church edifice was erected in 1830, and the present one in 1855, at a cost of $2,500. It will seat 500 persons. The present pastor is Rev. H. H. Hervey, our informant, and the number of members, 130. The Church property is valued at $3,000.

The M. E. Church, at Hartstown, was organized with fifteen members in 1840, in which year was erected the church edifice, (which will seat 175 persons) at a cost of $500. The pastor is Rev. H. S. Goodrich, and the number of members, 35. The Church property is valued at $400.—[Information furnished by Mr. Enoch Ellis.]

The Adamsville Freewill Baptist Church was organized with twenty-one members, in April, 1852, by Revs. J. S. Manning and J. B. Page, the former of whom was the first pastor. Their house of worship, which will seat 250 persons, was erected in 1853, at a cost of $1,200. The Society numbers fifty-five, and is under the spiritual tutelage of Rev. N. H. Farr, our informant.

WEST SHENANGO was formed from South Shenango August 14, 1863. It lies in the south-west corner of the county, being separated from South Shenango by Shenango Creek, which is the only considerable stream. It contains 5,195 square acres. The surface is level and the soil adapted to the culture of fruit and grain. The Ashtabula & Franklin R. R., passes through the township adjacent to Shenango Creek.

The population of the township in 1870 was 357, all of whom were white and all, except 13, native.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained four schools and employed eight teachers. The number of scholars was 89; the average number attending school, 75; and the amount expended for school purposes, $589.23.

TURNESVILLE (p. o.) is situated in the eastern part of the township and is distant from the A. & F. R. R. one-fifth of a mile. It contains one hotel, a school house, store, harness shop, wagon shop, two blacksmith shops and twenty-one dwellings.

ROYALTON (West Shenango p. o.) is situated in the south-west corner of the township.

Settlement is believed to have been commenced in 1800, by Andrew and John Betts, father and son, the latter of whom preceded his father a few months. They came from Fayette county and located on the farm now owned by Henry Betts, on road 6. Andrew followed hunting for a number of years and his son John relates that in one season he killed deer to the number of 175. John subsequently became a preacher of the Methodist persuasion. Benjamin Snodgrass and Thomas Loughery also came in 1800. They both emigrated from Ireland. The former settled near where Matthew H. Snodgrass now lives. Samuel Scott and John White, the latter from Perry county, were earl_y settlers. A son of the latter advises us that his father settled about 1791, on the farm which he (the son) now owns, and that Scott settled about two years prior to that time. There is reason, however, to doubt this statement. Jeremiah Yokes, from Fayette county, settled in 1801, on the farm now owned by Alfred Kinne, and Robert French, from Redstone, settled in the northern part of the township in 1802. The first school in the township is believed to have been taught by Edward Hatton, who located on the place now owned by his son Leonard Hatton.

State Line M. E. Church was organized with fourteen members, about 1819 by Rev. E. Morse, the first pastor. The Society first worshiped in a school house, and in 1851, their church edifice, which will seat 400 persons, was erected, at a cost of $1,100. The present value of Church property is $1,875.—[Information furnished by Mr. Francis H. Royal.

WOODCOCK was formed in 1830. It is an interior township, lying upon the east bank of French Creek, a little north of the center of the county, and contains 18,702 square acres. The surface is pleasantly diversified by upland and valley, and is well watered by streams flowing into French Creek, the principal of which is Woodcock Creek, which enters the township in the south-east corner and extends in a north-westerly direction to the southern limits of Saegertown. The north branch of that creek rises in the north-east part of the township and flows south along the east border to its recipient. Bussard Run is a smaller tributary to Woodcock Creek in the central part of the township. The northern and north-western parts of the township are drained by Gravel Run and the south branch of that stream, which unites with its recipient near the confluence of the latter with French Creek, in the north-west corner of the township. Many small streams discharge their waters in Woodcock Creek on the south, the surface in the south part of the township having a slight declination toward that stream. The surface has a gentle ascent as it recedes from French Creek. Along this stream a steep bluff seventy-five to one hundred feet high extends from one and one-half miles below to two miles above Saegertown. A beautiful valley of great fertility commences between the sources of the north branch of Woodcock Creek and Gravel Run, (both of which rise in the north-east part of the township,) and extends in a southerly and westerly direction, through the central part, to French Creek. The soil in this valley consists of a rich, alluvial loam, the most elevated portions containing the most loam. It is marked by many fine farms, especially in the vicinity of Saegertown and along Woodcock Creek. The soil of the township is generally of a fine quality and produces good crops of corn, wheat, oats and grass. Dairying is the chief branch of agriculture, the milk being converted into cheese.

The industries of the township are represented by three cheese factories, which receive the milk from 1400 to 1500 cows; four water-power grist mills, one at Saegertown, one a mile west of Woodcock borough, on Gravel Run, and two on Woodcock Creek; five saw mills, four of which are propelled by water and one by steam, and which are located, one on Gravel Run, one on French Creek, two on Woodcock Creek and one on the north branch of Woodcock Creek; and two wooden bowl manufactories, both situated on Woodcock Creek.

The Atlantic & Great Western R. R. crosses the township along French Creek, and passes through deep cuts in the steep declivities of the bank above and below Saegertown.

The population of the township in 1870 was 1,943, all of whom were white and all, except ninety-six, native.

During the year ending June 3, 1872, it contained seventeen schools and employed twenty-seven teachers. The number of scholars was 702; the average number attending school, 519; and the amount expended for school purposes, $4,928.17.

SAEGERTOWN (p. v.) is pleasantly situated upon a beautiful plain on the east bank of French Creek and on the A. & G. W. R. R., and is distant six miles north of Meadville. It is surrounded by some of the best farming lands in the county. It was organized as a borough in 1851. It contains three churches, (Reformed, Lutheran and M. E.) a fine school building, two hotels, two stores, two groceries, a tin shop, two cooper shops, four blacksmith shops, two shoe shops, one millinery and three dress making establishments, a large flouring mill, a saw mill, lath mill, gun shop and about five hundred inhabitants. The population in 1870 was 441.

Three bridges cross French Creek within the limits of the township connecting it with Hayfield township. One of them located in this borough is substantially constructed of iron.

WOODCOCK BOROUGH (p. v.) is situated on the north line, about two miles from Venango Station on the A. & G. W. R. R. It was organized as a borough in 1845, and contains three churches, (one M. E. and two Presbyterian, but, owing to the unification of the two Presbyterian Societies, only one of the latter is occupied by that denomination,) one hotel, three dry goods, one drug and one jewelry stores, a tailor shop, harness shop, a cheese factory, using the past season the milk of 500 cows, though having a capacity for twice that number, and about forty dwellings. The population in 1870 was 220.

The estimated value of the school property in the borough is $2,500. The amount raised for school purposes in 1872 was $476.77; the amount expended for school purposes the same year, $408.10. The number of resident pupils attending school was 65, and the number of non-resident pupils was eighteen.

BLOOMING VALLEY (p. v.) is situated in the south-east part of the township, on the State Road, and was organized as a borough May 17, 1867. It contains one hotel, five stores, a wagon shop, two blacksmith shops, a bowl factory, cooper shop, marble shop, planing mill and about forty-five dwellings. The population in 1870 was 209. It has a graded school, the building for which cost $3,700.

The first settlement of which we have information was made in 1791, by James Humes, who located one mile west of Woodcock borough. Settlements were made in 1794 by Henry Rust, from Westmoreland county, James Long, a native of Lancaster county, who died in 1830, in the 93d year of his age, and John H. Bossard, who came from the vicinity of Greensburg, Westmoreland county. Patrick and Arthur McGill, brothers, came to the township in 1795. Arthur took up 800 acres and located on the farm now occupied by David and Josiah McGill. The south half of this tract was subsequently taken up by Patrick. John McGill, son of the latter, was about one year old when his father settled here and is now 78 years old. He retains his mental faculties well, though he is afflicted with a cancer in his face. Samuel Blair, grand-father of Mr. J. J. Long, and George Long, father of that gentleman, came to this township in 1797 and located on the farm owned by him. Blair was a native of Ireland and both came here from the Susquehanna country. Wm. Wykoff, a native of New Jersey, came with his son, John Wykoff, in 1797, and settled on Gravel Run, about two miles east of Woodcock borough, on the farm now occupied by Wm. C. Wykoff. John Greenlee came from the Susquehanna country in 1797 and in 1798 he located on the farm occupied by his son, Wm. Greenlee. The animals which infested the forests, though they furnished the settlers an ample supply of meat, were very troublesome to their flocks. Wolves and bears were especially destructive. For a long time it was necessary to yard the sheep at night, and they were frequently attacked in the day time. The bears tore down their pig pens and carried off the pigs, and not unfrequently the cows were set upon by wolves.

The settlement at Saegertown was commenced about 1796. About 1800 Maj. Alden built a saw mill on the site of the present mills, and the place was known for several years as Aldens Mills. In 1824 Daniel Saeger purchased the mill and the lands adjacent to it, and laid out the town under its present name. Mr. Saeger came from Lehigh county and possessed more than ordinary energy and business capacity. Being a native Pennsylvanian, of German descent, he soon attracted to this locality a large number of the hardy, honest German yeomanry of Lehigh and other eastern counties, thus giving to it all the characteristics of a Pennsylvania Dutch settlement. The first store in this village was kept by the Saegers and has been kept in the Saeger name ever since, now more than forty years. Among the early settlers here were Adam Brookhouser and his two sons, Adam and Jacob, Adam Newhouser and Peter Shaffer.

The Indians had a village or encampment at an early day near where the Reformed church now stands.

The first tavern in Saegertown was kept by Peter Shaffer, where Saeger's brick store now stands. The first school was kept by Jonathan G. David in a small log cabin, situated a short distance above the mill. In 1834 a frame school house was built near the Reformed church. It was a low building with a partition through the center, designed to have English taught in one apartment and German in the other. The post office was established in 1833, the mail being carried from Meadville to Girard once a week, and when the postman, David Yarrick, rode into the village on his little black horse, blowing his horn, no little sensation was produced.

Nathaniel Clark, from Armstrong county, settled in the township about 1801. Wm. H. Clark, his son, was born about half a mile from where he now lives, about sixty-two years ago. George Peiffer, a Revolutionary hero, came to this county from Northumberland county, in 1802, and removed to this township in 1809. Thomas Rice came from Allegheny county, in April, 1810, and settled on the farm now owned by S. T. Rice.

The first store in Woodcock borough was kept by James Moore; and the first hotel, by Jacob Keptler, who was also the first postmaster. Henry Zimmerman was one of the first merchants.

The first saw mill erected in the township was built by Archibald Humes, at the mouth of Gravel Run, where he located. He soon after built at the same place the grist mill which is now owned by Mr. Apple. James Dickson, who came from Cumberland county and settled on Woodcock Creek at a very early day, is said to have built the first grist mill erected in the north part of the county. The stones, which were common rock, were obtained near Pittsburgh, at a place called Lanrel Hill. Wm. Wise, who came to this township from Center county, in 1830, is 96 years old (1873) and is said to be the oldest man now living in the county.

The first religious meetings were held by Robert C. Hooker, a missionary from Kentucky, in a log house occupied by one "Sheaver."

Gravel Run Church, (Presbyterian,) at Woodcock borough, was organized in 1809, and their first house of worship was erected soon afterward. The present edifice was erected in 1854, at a cost of $2,500, which is one-half the present value of Church property. It will seat 350 persons. The first pastor was Rev. John Matthews; the present one is Rev. W. A. McCarroll. The Society numbers 117.—[Information furnished by Mr. Wm. Clark.]

Rockville Church, (M. E.) at Woodcock borough, was organized in 1810, by Rev. Joshua Monroe, the first pastor. The first church edifice was erected in 1817 and was constructed of logs; the present one, which will seat about 300 persons, was erected in 1838, at a cost of $1,800. The Society numbers eighty and is ministered to by Rev. R. C. Smith. The Church property is valued at $3,000.—[Information furnished by Mr. Isaac Peiffer.]

POSTAL RATES AND REGULATIONS.

LETTERS.—The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid), to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, pre-payment in money being prohibited.

All drop-letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop-letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

CRAWFORD COUNTY CLASSIFIED BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

EXPLANATION.

The Townships are alphabetically arranged at the end of the line, under the business classifications. The post office address of each individual or firm follows after the name. Where no post office is given after the name, it signifies that the name of the post office and the township is the same. In cities and villages the name of the street is given and precedes that of the post office. The names of farmers are omitted in this list, as they can readily be found in the general list, by noting the figures at the end of the line, which indicate the number of acres owned or leased by each.

Having established the most extensive Dry Goods House in the State outside of New York City, we can offer advantages to buyers of Dry Goods unequalled by any other dealers in the country. We import directly and keep constantly on hand full lines of Broche and Paisley Shawls, Pim Bros. Genuine Irish Poplins, Black and Colored Silks, Irish Linens and Lace Curtains, Lupins' Merinoes and Alpaccas.

Hilgers' Celebrated Broadcloths & Doeskins.

Our Stock of the following Goods is always Full and Complete:

Cloaks, Sacques and Mantillas; English, French and American Cassimeres; Genesee Falls Cassimeres, "our own make;" Mohair and Cashmere Dress Goods; Shaker and Ebenezer Flannels; White, Scarlet and Opera Wool Flannels; Damask Table Cloths and Towelings; Napkins, Doilies and Wine Cloths; Linen Sheetings and Pillow Casings; 3-4, 4-4, 5-4, 6-4, 7-4, 8-4, 9-4, 10-4 and 11-4 Cotton Sheetings; French, American and Scotch Ginghams; English, French and American Calicoes; Woolen and Cotton Yarns; Blankets, Quilts and Counterpanes; Real Laces and Embroideries; Swiss Nainsook and Victoria Muslins; Fancy Goods and Yankee Notions; Ribbons and Trimmings; Hosiery, Wrappers and Drawers; Balmoral and Hoop Skirts; &c., &c., &c., &c.

Our Jobbing business, which now extends from the Eastern portion of the State to the "Far West," offers inducements to city and country Merchants, equal to any house in the United States. In addition to our advantages as Manufacturers and direct Importers, we have the sale of several makes of Brown Cottons and Woolen Mills in this locality.

Price Lists and Samples furnished on application, and orders sent by mail or entrusted to our agents, will receive prompt attention, and Dealers can rely upon purchasing of us the year around

AT NEW YORK JOBBERS' PRICES.
